U. N. Votes To Study Discipline Against Israel

Restoration of Oct. 14 Positions in Negev Ordered by Vote of 9 to 1

Paris, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—The United Nations Security Council tonight adopted a resolution ordering Jewish and Arab troops to withdraw to the positions they held in the Negev area of southern Palestine before fighting started October 14.

The resolution, offered by Great Britain and China, was adopted by a vote of 9 to 1, with the Soviet Ukraine voting against the measure. Russia abstained instead of voting against the proposal, as her "no" vote would have constituted a formal veto.

The original resolution authorized a council sub-committee to study the use of economic and diplomatic penalties if necessary to enforce the withdrawal order, with which the Israeli government has flatly refused to comply.

U. S. Amendment Approved

Amendments presented today by Philip C. Jessup, United States, replaced the penalty clause with a paragraph authorizing the subcommittee to consider any action from a mere rebuke to actual military intervention to back up the order.

After the amendment had been approved, Britain sought to include a clause which would compel the Israelis to give up not only the territory they took in the Negev but also that which they recently seized in northern Palestine.

Russia and the Ukraine opposed what they called "another hasty decision." Canada suggested that a committee study the proposal. Finally the council adjourned at 11 p. m. until Saturday without taking a decision.

American Brig. Gen. William Riley of the UN delegation to Palestine is due here tomorrow and will be able to report to the council.

Delegates Wonder About U. S.

The United States took no part in tonight's debate on extending the withdrawal order to northern Palestine and other delegates were still not sure what American policy would be now that President Truman has been elected. They awaited developments to see whether the American amendments offered today would be followed up.

A U. S. spokesman said the amendments were intended to weaken the Anglo-Chinese plan, but Israeli representative Aubrey Eban complained angrily that the revised plan increased the possibility of drastic international action against the Jewish state.

Jacob Malik of Russia sided with Israel, flatly opposing the amendments, but France said that the U. S. plan had reduced greatly the possibility of decisive UN action.

A British spokesman said the American amendments did not greatly change the original resolution, but merely made it "more agreeable to Jewish sensitivity."

Canada asked for more time to study the American proposals, and four and a half hour adjournment of the Council was voted for this purpose.

Former Nat Star

Jake Powell Kills Himself As Police Are Questioning Him

Alvin (Jake) Powell, 39, who rose from local sandlots to major league baseball star, shot himself to death yesterday at police headquarters while detectives were questioning him about bad check charges.

The former star of the Washington Nats and New York Yankees was being questioned at headquarters shortly before 5 p. m. by Detective Sergts. Dave Higgins and Frank Dodson of the check and fraud squad.

With Powell was a woman, Miss Josephine Amber, 34, of Deland, Fla., who claimed to be his fiance.

The two detectives stepped back about 10 feet when Powell requested permission to speak privately with Miss Amber. Powell announced to the woman that he was going to "end it all."

When the woman rose to her feet and started toward the detectives to warn them of Powell's intentions, he whipped from his shirt pocket a .25 caliber automatic pistol and fired two shots, one through his left chest and the second through his right temple.

A Gallinger Hospital ambulance was at the scene within 10 minutes and Dr. Norman Isaacson of the hospital staff pronounced Powell dead.

Although Miss Amber told police she and Powell were planning to marry, Powell was already married. His wife, Elizabeth, their 15-year-old daughter, Joan, and Powell's mother, Matilda, 81, live at 606 Sligo ave., Silver Spring, Md.

Mrs. Powell, a Veterans Administration employe who was married to the ball player in April, 1932, said there had never been a divorce or, for that matter, even a question of estrangement.

White School Cuts Courses To 'Equalize'

King George Drops 5; New Negro Grade Is Ordered; Court's Deadline Is Today

King George, Va., Nov. 4 (Spl.).—In a drastic attempt to obey a Federal Court order to provide equal white and Negro school facilities here, five courses have been dropped from the local white high school curriculum.

At the same time, the King George County school board ordered that by Friday a ninth grade class should be created at the Negro King George Training School.

The latter action involves promoting half of the Negro eighth graders to create the ninth grade class. By this, both the white and Negro high schools will be on a five-year basis, with eighth through twelfth grades.

Both actions are intended to show that King George County is doing everything possible to "equalize" facilities, in addition to a referendum set for Saturday on the question of a $150,000 bond issue for a new Negro high school.

Deadline Today

Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson on October 22 gave the King George County school board a deadline of this Friday to "show cause" why it should not be held in contempt of his equalization order.

Dropped by the white high school were its elective courses in chemistry, physics, biology, geometry, and algebra II.

School Superintendent T. Benton Gayle said today that he "thoroughly disapproves" abolishing these courses.

While some fears were expressed that this might cost the school its accreditation as a high school, William L. Smith, jr., supervising principal of both the white and Negro schools, said, "I don't see where that will be affected. The school is still offering all courses that are required for accreditation."

Smith said the white high school has 177 students, and dropping the courses affects about 80 pupils. There are about 73 pupils in the Negro high school, he said.

No Pupils for Ninth

At the start of this term, an 8th grade was added to the Negro high school. Seventh grade pupils went into the 8th grade this year, instead of the 9th grade. Thus there were no pupils to enter the 9th grade.

Smith said examination were held yesterday to promote half of the present 8th graders to the 9th grade, so there will be pupils in all grades through the 12th.

The Negro school has some science equipment, but no physics and chemistry courses, while biology and algebra II are not being taught there this term, Smith said.

Earlier this week, Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazille said here that if the Federal Court should order the

France Gets $5,000,000 Arms Loan

Truman Approves Orders to Send Equipment From Stocks in Germany

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

Under orders proposed by Secretary Marshall and personally approved by President Truman, the Army in Germany has lent France enough military equipment to repair deficiencies in three French divisions.

The equipment, worth about five million dollars, was taken from reserve stocks left behind by American divisions formerly stationed in Germany. It was reported yesterday to include tanks from the great "tank park" at Kassel, in the northwest corner of the American zone, as well as tank parts, radios and other items needed to put three French divisions nearer to fighting strength.

The first public announcement of the transfer is expected to come this week from Army authorities in Germany. It will represent the first new departure in foreign policy by the Truman Administration since the election, and it will be a dramatic proof to the Western European countries that the United States is in earnest in encouraging them to rebuild their military strength.

Secretary Marshall brought the idea to Washington with him when he returned from Paris on October 9 at the time of the furore over the proposed Vinson mission to Moscow. The transfer of arms to the French was one of the subjects he discussed at the White House, and he got the President's emphatic approval for announcing it immediately after the election.

It will be followed by other steps to help rearm and encourage the western Europeans, even in advance of a large-scale program to lend-lease newly made American equipment.

One step now being considered, it was learned yesterday, is the training of French army and air force men in American maintenance and repair methods.

In wartime, the United States equipped 10 French divisions for combat. Some of the material then sent to North Africa and France is still in fair condition, but much of it has deteriorated badly.

The transfer of left-over equipment from Germany will fill some of these gaps in French armaments, but it is felt here that other gaps could be filled by the French themselves if they had spare parts and if they knew how to repair American equipment already in their army's hands.

Accordingly, it has been suggested that French technical teams be brought to Army and Air Force maintenance and repair schools in the United States and the American zone of Germany. One of the

'I Can't Bear Any Malice'

Truman Declines Invitation To Be Guest at 'Crow Banquet'

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Aboard President Truman's Train, Nov. 4.—President Truman indicated today that he would not be guest of honor at a "crow banquet" suggested by The Washington Post because "the fellow who lost feels bad enough without being crowed over."

At Jefferson City, Mo., this morning, Mr. Truman read The Washington Post's telegram of invitation as he spoke to 3500 people who met his Truman "Victory Special." Laughing heartily at the cheers evoked by nearly every sentence, he said:

"I'll say this to you: I've been in many election campaigns as you people here in Missouri know. After the election is over I can't bear any malice, because the fellow who lost feels bad enough without being crowed over. That's what I'm going to tell them."

The President could not be reached immediately for a definite answer. His Jefferson City statement, however, was understood among correspondents aboard to mean he would decline.

The Washington Post yesterday invited Mr. Truman to be guest of honor and principal speaker at a banquet attended by editors, pollsters and political writers who had predicted his defeat. These guests would eat "breast of tough old crow en glace" while the President would have turkey.

At St. Louis, where Mr. Truman wound up his countrywide campaign last Saturday with a blistering extemporaneous speech, he was received today with an ovation which jammed Union Station with 10,000 yelling men and women. While his train stood in the station for servicing, the President spoke briefly from the rear platform and introduced Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman.

Almost before the train stopped Mr. Truman spotted in the crowd someone holding up a copy of Wednesday's early edition of the Chicago Tribune. Roaring with laughter, he took the newspaper and held it up for the crowd to see. In heavy block type, its front page banner read: "Dewey defeats Truman."

"That," said Mr. Truman, "is one for the book."

The crowd laughed, booed, cheered and whistled, obviously as happy about the affair as he was.

Most of the huge crowd had been held in the concourse of the station after breaking down five gates to get that far. Mr. Truman could see them pressed against the glass of the barred doors leading into the train shed while several hundred others who had managed to get into the shed milled about the rear of his car. He went to the microphone and called: "Let the people behind those bars get in if they

Truman Won't Crow Over Crow-Eaters

The pollsters and the pundits won't eat crow with President Truman laughing at them. The Washington Post invited the President to a banquet at which the "experts" who predicted his defeat would eat crow. The President having decided not to crow over the crow-eaters, there won't be any banquet.

Truman Said Not to Care For Another Term

Aboard the Truman Train, Nov. 4.—President Truman, elected Tuesday to his first full term in the White House, does not care for another term, an intimate of his said today. He will be 68 in 1952.

Although Mr. Truman will begin his second term in office next January, he will be starting his first term as an elected Chief Executive.

Half Million Persons May Participate In Welcome

Victory Special Due At Union Station at 11 A. M.; Barkley Will Head Greeters

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The Capital area is set to turn out en masse to greet President Truman on his return today.

A half million Greater Washington residents are expected to throng the flag-draped route from Union Station to the White House for the event.

The Victory Special is scheduled to pull into Union Station with the Chief Executive at 11 a. m.

Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley will head the list of officials and Democratic leaders on hand to welcome Mr. Truman.

Honor Guest Route

The President, followed by about 30 cars of well-wishers, is expected to leave Union Station about 11:15 a. m. for the White House, traveling the traditional route of dignitaries being feted by the city.

The column of vehicles will travel down Delaware ave. to Constitution ave., on Constitution to Pennsylvania ave., then along the avenue to 15th st., around the Treasury Department building on 15th st. to the White House, where the President is schduled to speak about 11:35 a. m.

The area's 210,000 Federal and 18,000 District government workers will be released from their jobs long enough to participate. School students may be excused from classes for the affair if parents submit requests. Others of the 90,000 students will be led to the route from nearby schools by their teachers.

Alexandria city workers will be granted three hours off for the celebration, City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto said. Alexandria school children will be excused from classes if parents request.

Group of Greeters

The procession will be preceded by a V-shaped formation of 100 police motorcyclists, who have been directed to set a pace "of almost a walk" for the victory caravan.

The group that will mount the train platform to shake hands with the triumphant candidate includes the District Commissioners, mem-

Invokes Constitutional Right

Thomas Changes Mind, Won't Testify Before Grand Jury

Post Reporter

Although he had been asked to testify, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) yesterday stood on his constitutional rights against self-incrimination and refused to testify before a Federal grand jury investigating alleged payroll irregularities.

The outgoing chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities appeared before the grand jury in accordance with his own preelection request. In asking the privilege of being heard, Thomas had specified November 4 as the date he would like to appear. Thomas was reelected Tuesday but will be replaced by a Democrat as chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee in the Eighty-first Congress.

Thomas appeared before the jury at the scheduled hour of 10 a. m. but left the grand jury room in less than five minutes.

His attorney, William H. Collins, told reporters he had persuaded the New Jersey Congressman not to testify because it would serve "no useful purpose." Collins said he had advised Thomas to tell the grand jury he would not testify on the constitu-

3 Mentioned For Senate Leadership

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Two names figured prominently in the new Senate leadership picture last night after a third—Senator Millard E. Tydings (Md.)—practically took himself out of the running.

In the end, Senate Democrats may consult President Truman before choosing a majority leader. The choice now lies between these two close friends of his:

Senator Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), Senate Democratic campaign chairman and minority whip, who apparently has the inside track.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.), who went to bat for the President when his stock was low and like Lucas stumped for him in the campaign.

Tydings' name was thrown into the ring yesterday by his colleague, Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (Md.), who said he hadn't consulted Tydings. It was as quickly pulled out by Tydings himself.

Tydings said he wasn't a candidate and would make no fight for the post. O'Conor said he believed Tydings would accept it if offered. Tydings said he would cross that bridge when he came to it.

O'Conor had called a press conference to propose Tydings for the

2 New Polio Cases Are Reported in Area

Two new polio cases were reported at Children's Hospital yesterday, raising the year's total in Greater Washington to 238.

The new cases were a 6-year-old boy of the 200 block of North Thomas st., Arlington, and a 5-year-old boy of the 4200 block of 43d st. nw.

The reports raised the District total to 123 and the nearby Virginia and Maryland total to 115. The figure for this date last year in the entire area was 49.

Plumbing Systems Suspect

Drinking Water May Carry Polio Virus, Scientists Say

The possibility that polio and other virus diseases may be spread by polluted drinking water was reported yesterday by two scientists.

In an experiment, a plumbing system similar to that used in an ordinary home was contaminated with polio virus. The virus remained in drinking water from the plumbing for several days.

The research workers emphasized these points:

1. Polio virus has been found in municipal sewage systems during epidemics in Europe and the United States.

2. Scientists have demonstrated that water supplies may be contaminated by sewage cross-connections, minute quantities of sewage backing up into the water pipes through the valves.

3. There are cross-connections between drinking water systems and plumbing systems in all cities.

4. The water used in the Chicago experiment contained chlorine, a chemical used in most city water systems to kill germs. Despite the chlorine, the polio virus survived for several days.

The two research workers, E. A. Piszczek of the Chicago Health Department and Joseph Zichis of Chicago, said that only in one case, in Sweden, has a polio virus been found in drinking water. This was in a well at the home of a child who became ill with polio.

They said water in a plumbing system is continually changing and virus may be washed away or diluted so much in a short time that discovering it would be difficult.

Writing in the magazine Science, the two men said laboratory experiments have demonstrated that polio virus may enter the body through the mouth and cause the disease. They added that the virus may be excreted by persons with no symptoms of the disease.

Lively Debate on Racial Stand Arises in Baptist Meeting

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The final business session here of the 125th annual meeting of the Virginia Baptist General Association erupted unexpectedly today into a vigorous debate on the association's stand on the racial issue.

The discussion came to a head hours after the assembly adopted the report of the association's interracial committee which stated that existing prejudice made progress impossible at the present time.

Immediately preceding the debate Dr. Henry W. Tiffany, pastor of Norfolk Park Place Baptist Church, was elected 1949 president of the State association.

The argument was to decide whether to delete a portion of the interracial committee's report which some members felt would arouse unfavorable reaction and misinterpretation.

The controversial report, given by the Rev. J. B. De Foe, Wytheville pastor, disclosed that the committee was split on its racial attitudes and that no mutually agreeable stand could be reached.

"Christ did not recognize racial difference," the report stated. The third paragraph, center of the dispute, declared:

"We confess that we are prejudiced on this question in spite of the desires that come to us at times to be otherwise. We believe that most Baptists are likewise prejudiced. We confess that we are fearful, that we are afraid—for political, or ecclesiastical, or social reasons—to follow the way of Christ. We believe that most Baptists are likewise fearful and afraid. We confess to God our sins in this matter and plead to God to make us more willing to be Christ-like in our relation to all races.

"We call upon our Baptist people to repent before God, and call upon the name of the Lord that He may forgive them and make them courageous and wise and willing to do His will as it is revealed in Jesus Christ."

The assembly split, but finally approved, a motion by John J. Wicker of Richmond to delete the controversial part of the report.

Motions and substitute motions were piled on top of Wicker's action, arousing parliamentary complications which brought laughter into the otherwise heated debate. Each was removed in order until Wicker's suggestion to delete the third paragraph returned to the floor, and this action was finally approved by the assembly.

It was learned authoritatively that the remaining 800 dependents of the United States military advisory group in China will leave shortly because of the threatening situation.

U. S. Salary Adjustments, Too

O'Conor Foresees Move Soon In Congress on District Pay

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

There will be an early move in the next Congress to raise District employe salaries to a par with Federal scales, Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) said yesterday.

In addition, Senator O'Conor told a press conference he foresees further legislation to adjust Federal employe salaries, particularly by bringing job classifications up to date generally, and by raising high-level executive salaries.

On the District salary situation, Senator O'Conor recalled with sharp criticism the fact that municipal employes here in general were denied the pay increase given this year to Federal employes.

"I feel very keenly that an inexcusable omission was made in not giving District employes the same salary treatment given to Federal employes," O'Conor said.

Linked with Sales Tax

District salary increase legislation fell by the wayside in a fight that was linked with the issue of a District sales tax last summer. Senate members who wanted District pay boosts approved wouldn't approve the sales tax. Members who wanted the sales tax approved said it had to be passed to pay for the new raises, and without the sales levy they wouldn't let the pay increases go through. Both pay and tax bills were blocked.

O'Conor saw the fight as a member of the Senate Civil Service Committee. He has been listed as in line for chairmanship of that committee if Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) turns down the post in order to be chairman of the Senate District Committee.

On this point, however, veteran Capitol observers emphasized yesterday that it would be unusual for a member with but two years in the Senate to become chairman of

Early Start Is Planned on Housing Bills

On both sides of the Capitol yesterday leading Democratic advocates of low-cost public housing announced plans to push for enactment of legislation for this purpose as soon as the Eighty-First Congress convenes in January.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), said he will introduce a bill calling for low-rent public housing, slum clearance and farm housing early in the new Congress.

Representative T. Hale Boggs (D., La.) said he would introduce a public housing measure in the House the day the new Congress convenes.

The announcements came right on the heels of the Democratic election sweep. President Truman made congressional failure to provide low-cost housing for low-income families one of his major campaign issues. He strongly criticized the GOP - controlled Eightieth Congress for its failure to deal with this problem.

The TEW bill proposed a 5-year, 500,000-unit low-rent public housing project sponsored by the Government.

Boggs, a member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, predicted the bill would be favorably reported. Representative Brent Spence (D., Ky.), presumably in-

First Major Decision of Session

West's Atomic Control Plan Passed by U. N. Assembly, 40-6

Paris, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Western Powers won overwhelming approval in the United Nations Assembly today for their international atomic control plan.

This first major decision in the Assembly's 1948 session was taken over bitter Russian protests. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky said there was no point in new consultations on atomic control since no basis for East-West agreement exists.

He described the western plan as fantastic and unreal It would leave the economic life of other states at the "tender mercies" of a control organ which would be controlled by the United States, Vihinsky charged.

By a show of hands the Assembly approved the western plan 40 to 6. Four nations—India, South Africa, Afghanistan and Venzuela—abstained. Negative votes were cast by the Soviet bloc.

Representatives of the Western Powers held their lines against Russian attacks on the plan and defeated a Soviet counter-proposal and an Indian attempt to soften their stand.

By its vote on atomic energy the Assembly:

1. Approved the majority plan for atomic control as the basis for establishing effective international regulation. This is based on proposals made June 14, 1946, by Bernard M. Baruch, then the American delegate on the U.N. Atomic Energy Commission.

2. Expressed official concern at the impasse between Russia and the West on the subject. Russia objects to the inspection provisions of the Baruch plan and has steadily attacked it.

3. Asked the United States Britain, China, France, Russia and Canada to meet to find out if there is a basis for agreement and to report to the Assembly not later than the next session.

4. Called upon the Atomic Energy Commission to pick up its

Truman Fails To Get Majority Of Popular Vote

By The Associated Press

When 92.7 per cent of the Nation's polling places had reported late yesterday, they showed a total popular vote of 45,415,620 in Tuesday's elections.

The total, considerably short of most estimates, which ranged upward of 50,000,000, was divided as follows:

Truman	22,542,357
Dewey	20,786,173
Wallace	1,065,613
Thurmond	921,477

[At this point Mr. Truman, although elected, held a minority of the popular vote. Not included above are the votes of Socialist and other minor parties.—Editor's note.]

In the Electoral College, the vote was 304 for Democrat Truman, 189 for Republican Dewey, 38 for States Righter Thurmond and none for Wallace, the Progressive Party candidate.

By States, the division was 28 for Truman, 16 for Dewey and 4 for Thurmond.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Stavisky

Vice President-Elect Alben William Barkley Is a Southern Gentleman and Loyal Democrat

It could be that Senator Alben Barkley, Vice president-elect, had a vision of things to come as long as two years ago.

The Republicans—you will remember—had just captured control of Congress after 14 years of Democratic domination. A few days after that election, a prickly gray stuggling mustache was observed on the upper lip of the portly Kentuckian.

To startled colleagues, the former Senate majority leader explained: "The voters have just said they wanted something different. I'm giving them the mustache."

About six weeks later, though, Senator Barkley shaved off the straggly brush. "I just found out the people were wrong about wanting a change," he commented.

It was in 1944 that good-natured, party-faithful Barkley made the country take a close look at him.

Hitherto Alben Barkley had been considered a kindly gentleman who as Democratic majority leader served as a "glorified messenger boy" for President Roosevelt.

Bull-necked, booming-voiced Barkley had backed the New Deal from the beginning, and after he'd been elected majority leader through the aid of FDR in 1937, he'd led the unsuccessful fight to reform the Supreme Court. From then on, for seven years, he pressed FDR's program forward with dogged loyalty, and without deviation.

Then in 1944 FDR decided against the advice of Barkley and other Senate leaders, to veto a tax bill over which Congress had labored mightily. The veto message was a caustic one and contained a stinging rebuke to Congress.

For one of the rare times in his life, the easy-going Kentuckian got mad. He rose, delivered an excoriating reply to the President, and resigned as majority leader. The Democratic caucus promptly reelected the popular Kentuckian. The Barkley-FDR breach was later healed, but it was the President who had to back water.

Barkley always has been a workhorse as well as a wheelhorse. Besides being Senate leader in '46, he was chairman of the Pearl Harbor inquiry; acting chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee then dealing with the British loan, Bretton Woods, OPA, and often chairman of crucial Senate-House conferences committees seeking a compromise for jammed legislation.

After saying his good-night to "ever-who-all" in his office, he'd take off for his apartment at 2101 Connecticut ave., remove his shoes, place his paunchy person in a seat fronting the radio, and pile into volume of home work.

Alben William Barkley—who will be 71 November 24—was born in a log cabin, in Graves County, Ky., of tobacco-raising parents. He worked the fields, and worked his way through school—Marvin College, Emory College, University of Virginia—to earn a law degree, starting out in 1901 in the office of Paducah's Judge W. S. Bishop, the "Judge Priest" of Irvin S. Cobb.

At 15, Alben travelled to Cairo, Ill., to hear a cousin, Adlai Stevenson, Vice President under Cleveland, give a stump speech in the 1892 campaign. That gave Barkley his first touch of political fever. He's never lost it.

Alben was successively elected McCracken County prosecutor and judge; then in 1913 he was sent to the House of Representatives; and in 1927, to the Senate. No small factor in his early successes—say old-timers—was Barkley's fog-horn voice, still to be heard on the Senate floor, where he can bang a table with the thumpingest. A courteous man, he seldom interrupts a speaker, but you can tell he's irked by the twitching of his shoulders.

Senator Barkley has a farm in Paducah, operated by his son David. He also has two married daughters, and seven grandchildren. His wife died a year ago.

Both in Kentucky and Washington the Vice President-elect is famed for his story telling. Though often considered a ponderous sort of fellow, he is nonetheless quick with a quip when the occasion calls for it.

There was the time he tangled with the irascible Huey Long. The Kingfish had been holding the floor with an interminable harrangue and the Senators were weary of the oratory. Huey got to the point of boasting that he'd had no more than a fourth grade education. Barkley sprang to his feet.

"Did the Senator ever study music?" he asked.

"A little," responded the unsuspecting Huey.

"Then suppose the Senator sings for us—a little," snapped Alben.

Ky. Governor Seen Eyeing Barkley's Seat

(Special to The Washington Post)

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4. — Consensus of political observers here today appeared to be that Kentucky's Governor Earle C. Clements will keep Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley's seat in the United States Senate warm for himself.

They feel that Clements will appoint some close friend of whom he is sure to sit in Barkley's seat from January 20 when Barkley becomes Vice President until the November, 1949, election.

In that election, they say, Clements more than likely will be a candidate to fill out the last year of the Barkley term and, if elected, will be a candidate in 1950 for re-election to a full six-year term.

The reason that Clements will not resign as Governor and let his successor in that office, Lieut. Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby, appoint Clements to the Senate in January is that it would cause a special gubernatorial election.

Kentucky law provides that if a Governor resigns before he has served two years of his four-year term, a special election must be called on 30 days notice to fill the vacancy.

By waiting until the November, 1949, election to go to the Senate, Clements can avoid the risk of losing a special election to a Republican candidate for Governor. Clements, who resigned as representative from the Second Kentucky District to become Governor will have served two years in the latter office then.

Clements has gained political prestige by the fact that the Truman-Barkley ticket for President and Vice President carried Kentucky by the landslide majority of 123,124.

Truman and Barkley also saved him from condemnation by Kentucky Democrats when they carried Virgil Chapman into the United States Senate on their coattails over Republican Senator John S. Cooper. Chapman, who had Clements' backing for the Democratic nomination, received a majority of only 23,350.

Among persons close to Clements mentioned for possible appointment are State Senator Louis Cox, Frankfort; Rural Roads Commissioner Emerson Beauchamp, Russellville; State Highway Commissioner Garrett Withers; Joseph J. Leary, a Frankfort attorney; and Robert B. Hensley, former executive secretary to the governor.

bers of the Cabinet. Supreme Court justices, members of the White House staff and local Democraitc leaders.

In addition, a section will be roped off on the Union Station Plaza for "distinguished guests" from the ranks of Democratic units in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

As the presidential party leaves the station to enter waiting limousines, the Metropolitan Police Band will send the victory motorcade off to the tune of "I'm Just Wild About Harry."

A public address system will be placed at Columbus statue, just outside the station, in hopes the President will make a few comments to his well-wishers.

Barrett Car Leads

The first car in line will be occupied by Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett. The President, his family and Senator Barkley will be in the second car, followed by a sedan containing Commissioners John Russell Young and Guy Mason; Assistant Engineer Commissioner Kenneth E. Madsen, representing Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, who is absent from the city; A. L. Wheeler, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee of the District; Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner Young, and Melvin Hildreth, national Democratic committeeman from the District.

The Commissioners are honorary chairmen of the affair, and Wheeler and Stofberg are co-chairmen of the arrangements. Local leaders of Government, business and entertainment fields combined with District Democratic officials to plan the homecoming.

Labor Chiefs Join

The next five cars will be occupied by other members of the local Democratic Party, as well as labor officials. The labor representatives include William Green, president, American Federation of Labor; George Meany, secretary-treasurer, AFL; A. E. Lyon, official of the Railway Labor Executives Association.

The CIO representatives are David J. McDonald, secretary, United Steel Workers of America; Allen Haywood, director of organization, and John Brophy, assistant director of organization.

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), the President's campaign manager, and his party will follow, after which will come cars bearing Supreme Court justices, Cabinet members and the White House staff, with press, radio and television vehicles on the end.

10 Bands Along Route

The motorcade will move slowly along the route, passing 10 bands stationed at various points, thousands of school children waving small flags, flag-bedecked street poles, buildings decorated with bunting, huge photographs of the victorious team and congratulatory signs.

Television and radio facilities will be placed on the north porch of the President's home to carry his message across the Nation, and to crowds outside the White House gates.

"Every policeman who can be spared," about 1500, will be assigned by Major Barrett to handle crowds. In addition, 450 members of the District Fire Department will be posted along the route.

Throughout the day, as the arrangements committee labored at the myriad of details necessary for such an affair, their telephones hummed with calls from anxious politicos and others anxious to "get on the bandwagon," as one committeeman termed it.

The Weather Bureau predicted a "nice day" with highest temperature in the seventies, "rather cloudy and increasing wind."

Order of Bands

The bands on the route will be located in this order: Union Station and later at the White House, Metropolitan Police Band; Columbus statue, outside the station, Navy band; Delaware ave. and Constitution ave., Metropolitan Police Boys' Club; 4th st. and Constitution ave., St. John's College High School.

Seventh st. and Pennsylvania ave., Elks Club; 10th and D sts., Marine band from Quantico, Va. (main Marine Band is on tour); 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave., National Guard; Post Square, Howard University; 15th st. and Treasury pl., Army; Lafayette Square, Air Force.

In addition, a 30-piece Marine Corps orchestra will be stationed at the White House.

A guard of honor consisting of representatives of local veterans' groups will greet the President at the Whtie House grounds. Members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Amvets, Disabled American Veterans, Catholic War Veterans, Irish War Ceterans and Jewish War Veterans will participate.

Three 100-Foot Arches

The triumphal return of the President will proceed under three towering arches formed by 100-foot ladders of the Fire Department. Across the arches will be signs greeting President Truman and Senator Barkley.

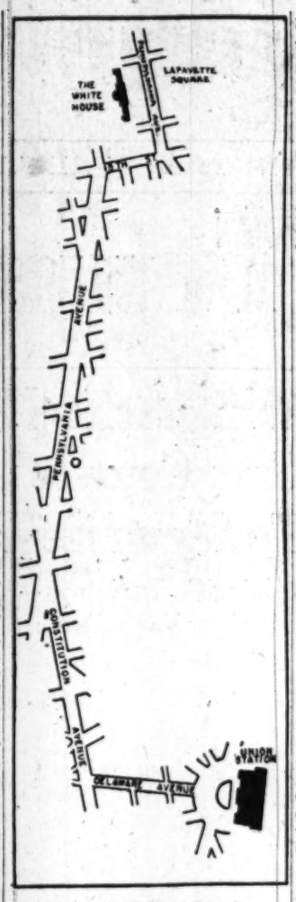
The aerial greetings will be placed at 4th st. and Constitution ave., Post Square and 15th st. and East Executive ave.

Among the first Democrats scheduled to welcome the President at the station, in addition to those already named, are Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, National Democratic Committeewoman; Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, alternate national committeewoman; J. C. Turner, arrangements committeeman and member of the local Democratic group.

Also, Tilford E. Dudley, alternate national committeeman; Clement F. Preller, labor advice chairman; retired Judge W. L. Houston, local committee treasurer; Gerald Van Arkel, secretary; Arthur Clarendon Smith, Harlan Woods, James William Bryon, Mrs. Hugh Thomas and Mrs. Estelle Pearce.

In addition, Representative Howard W. Smith and Gardner L. Boothe, chairman of the Eighth Congressional District Democrats, will lead a delegation from Oronoco and Washington sts., Alexandria at 10 a. m. Union Station bound.

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer of the Fifth Congressional District in Maryland will bring a group of Democrats to the welcoming party, too.



Route of Today's Parade

Now Is the Time for Unity, Barkley Says on Return Home

A jovial and wisecracking Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley arrived at National Airport at 11:20 last night ready for today's victory parade for President Truman.

To reporters who queried him on the Democratic success in Tuesday's balloting, his comment was:

"The election is over and we'll move forward now under unity."

He declined comment on what brought success for his party, saying, "I've done enough talking for a good while."

The smiling, but apparently weary Senator from Kentucky readily posed for photographers as he stepped off the plane. He was greeted at the airport by Leslie Biffle, staff director of the Minority Committee of the Senate, and Mrs. Biffle.

Barkley waved his hat as he emerged from the plane and said, "I've been waving this hat so much lately, it's been worn out; but I've gotten a new Homburg. It makes me look a bit more statesmanlike."

He was accompanied from his home in Paducah, Ky., by his daughter, Mrs. Max Truitt of Washington. She had gone to Kentucky to hear the election returns with her father.

Truman Team Oldest Winner

By outrunning Republican rivals 31 years younger, the Truman-Barkley team became the oldest presidential sweepstakes victor in U. S. history.

At 70, Alben W. Barkley will be the oldest of the Nation's Vice Presidents, while 64-year-old Harry S. Truman is the third oldest man elected chief executive—right behind William Henry Harrison, 68, and James Buchanan, 65.

The Democratic triumph also marks the first time two former Senate colleagues teamed up to win the White House prize. Back in 1888, the Republicans took the honors with a congressional combine when Senator Benjamin Harrison was elected President with Representative Levi Morton as his running mate.

Democrats Add 4 To Gains in House

Reports Spiked

No Reprisals Are Planned In Cabinet

With Truman en Route to Washington, Nov. 4.—Word that President Truman is not interested in making any "reprisal" dismissals from his Cabinet was passed to newsmen today by sources close to the victorious Chief Executive.

They said he feels that he should concentrate on "securing the peace" and strengthening the domestic economy.

Mr. Truman's fighting spirit was kindled by those who tried to sidetrack him before the last Democratic Convention. With all its burdens, he wanted a second term in his own right. He feels that he has been vindicated by his astounding upset victory.

He not only won a victory for himself, and helped elect a Democratic Congress, but he restored a weak and sagging party.

As for his Cabinet, there will be no abrupt dismissals based on lack of interest in the campaign.

John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury and one of his closest friends, will be pressed to remain on.

James V. Forrestal, Secretary of Defense, will not be pressed to stay.

Nor will Robert A. Lovett, Undersecretary of State, who is planning to leave soon anyway.

Secretary of State George Marshall indicated at Paris that he desires to retire at the close of the present Administration. He and the President have a warm personal relationship.

Democrats yesterday gained four more House seats as reporting of votes in Tuesday's elections continued.

The veteran Republican Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart was defeated by Cecil F. White, in the Ninth California District, the Associated Press reported.

Representative W. W. Bradley (R) lost to Clyde Doyle (D) in the Eighteenth (Los Angeles) District.

Representative Norris Poulson (R) defeated Ned R. Healy (Dem., Ind., Prog.) in the Thirteenth California and Representative Donald won in the Sixteenth from Ellis E. Patterson (Dem., Ind., Prog.).

Colorado's Third District elected John H. Marsalia (D) over Representative J. Edgar Chenowith (R), and Fred Marshall (D) defeated veteran Representative Harold Knutson (R) in the Minnesota Sixth.

At the same time, Representative Hadwen C. Fuller, previously reported reelected in the Thirty-fifth New York District, last night Associated Press from Utica reported that complete but unofficial returns showed Fuller trailing John C. Davies (D.) by 157 votes. Voting machines in the district are being rechecked.

In the Nineteenth California District Representative Chet Holafield (D) was re-elected and Representative Harry R. Sheppard (D) also was returned from the twenty-first.

Representatives Russell V. Mack (R) and Hal Holmes of the Third and Fourth Washington Districts were other successful incumbents.

Representative Wesley A. D'Ewart (R), in the Second Montana District, was re-elected.

The Associated Press tally of the parties standing in the new House was: Democrats, 262; Republicans, 172, and American Labor, 1.

Official Tally In Arlington, Alexandria

Official tally of Tuesday's vote in Arlington and Alexandria show only minor changes from figures reported earlier. None affected the election outcomes.

In the only close local contest, Democrat Alfred E. Frisbie captured the Arlington County Board seat with 5181 votes to Inpendent I. Lee Potter's 9052. Frisbie gained 45 votes in the official count.

President Truman defeated Dewey in Alexandria, 3917 to 3903, but lost to him in Arlington, 7798 to 10,774. In Alexandria, Thurmond received 777 votes; Wallace, 67. Thurmond received 1121 Arlington votes to Wallace's 267.

Democratic incumbent Howard W. Smith carried both areas in his Eighth District congressional victory. He defeated Republican Tyrrell Krum in Alexandria, 4127 to 3875; in Arlington, 9585 to 8840.

Democratic Senator A. Willis Robertson led the ticket in both communities, beating Republican Robert Woods in Alexandria, 4704 to 2650; in Arlington, 10,574 to 6998.

Arlington's $4,500,000 school bond issue received a greater vote of approval than any of the candidates, winning 10,774 to 9256.

The proposal to change the time of Arlington School Board elections was defeated, 12,559 to 6862.

Welfare Post To Be Asked For Cabinet

By The Associated Press

Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing said yesterday one of the first things the new Congress will be asked to do is to set up a new department of health, education and security.

Ewing said that since the new legislative body "undoubtedly will be more sympathetic to our program than was the Eightieth Congress," the chances for creating such a department are good.

Ewing, one of the leaders of the Truman campaign forces, said in an interview that the new Democratic Administration greatly increases the prospect of positive action on these proposals:

1. The President's 10-year national health program, based upon compulsory Government health insurance and vastly expanded medical services, to be financed initially by a tax of 1½ to 1 per cent of the first $4800 earned annually. The plan calls for increasing Federal outlays from 743 million dollars to $2,312,000,000 by 1960.

2. Extension of Social Security to persons not now included, and a broad increase of benefits to meet higher living costs.

3. Federal aid for education, amounting at the start to 300 million dollars.

4. Establishment of a national science foundation, as an independent agency, to support basic research and education in the sciences.

5. Action to meet the serious shortage of doctors, dentists, technicians, nurses and operating staffs of hospital and medical intitutions.

6. An increase in the field of vocational rehabilitation, additional aid for hospital construction, more funds for medical research and diagnostic clinics, and a school health program.

Ewing said that in every instance appropriations in these fields would show a tremendous dollars-and-cents return in improvement of national health and welfare.

The proposed new department, Ewing said, would take over the present functions of the Federal Security Agency. That agency was created in 1934 by assembling from scattered departments the Office of Education, Public Health Service, Social Security Board and other related bureaus.

A bill for its establishment was introduced in the Senate this year under the bipartisan sponsorship of Senators Taft (R., Ohio) and Fulbright (D., Ark.) but is was not acted upon.

"Our farmers are represented by a Secretary of Agriculture, our working men by a Secretary of Labor, our businessmen by a Secretary of Commerce," Ewing said. "Today there is no representation in the President's Cabinet for just Joe America, his wife and their children as plain human beings.

"Joe America has no spokesman at the level where it is needed. Representation at the top on behalf of human values is an indispensable instrument of a democratic society.

New Labor Law Due Early in '49, Tobin Says

Boston, Nov. 4 (AP).—Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin said today one of the first things placed before the new Congress would be the writing of a new labor law—"fair to both workers and management"—to replace the Taft-Hartley Law.

Tobin said in an interview with Dow Jones he could not be specific at this time, but:

"Such action definitely will be one of the first things to be taken up so far as my own recommendations are concerned."

want to. Open those gates. Open the gates."

The gates were thrown open and the crowd surged into the train shed. Then the President addressed them.

"This certainly is worthwhile," he said, "and I appreciate it more than I can tell you. It has been a tremendous fight and it was a fight for the welfare of the country and the people, I think.

"The reason I am so happy is because my home State stood by me so well. You must continue to stand by me, because I have got the biggest job in the world now. With your help it can be done, just as we have been trying to do it for the last 3½ years.

"I hope that everything will continue to go well with you. Continue what you have been doing in the past for the welfare of this great country."

Mr. Truman did not exaggerate when he said he was happy, as any man would have a right to be who had confounded the experts to win a political campaign without parallel in history. His reception along the way since he left Independence, Mo., at 8 a. m. would justify his good cheer.

At every stop his train had made joyous crowds were at the station to look at the champ and wish him well. Where the long train roared through little wayside stations, entire populations stood along the track to wave and cheer and, now and then to salute him with brass bands whose members could hardly play for looking.

In railway yards, men stopped work to wave him on to Washington. Families stood beside their lonely farmhouses on the prairies of Missouri, Indiana and Illinois to wave from afar at the train bearing their President back to the toughest job on earth.

His way eastward was a trail of waving hands and fluttering handkerchiefs, of smiles and cheerful shouts. The mood of the people matched his own; his triumph was theirs, his victory a common possession.

When he boarded the train at Independence at 7:45 a. m. a small crowd of his home folks was on hand to give him godspeed. With him was his mother-in-law, Mrs. David Wallace, who will spend the winter at the White House.

Mr. Truman told several thousand well-wishers at Vincennes, Ind., that "I don't feel elated at the victory—I feel overwhelmed with the responsibility."

"It is a great victory, my friends," he said, "for the people. We must not do anything that will reflect on the judgment of the people—so when we get back to Washington and are sworn in on the 20th of January, we will continue to work for the people and in the interests of the country."

He was presented with an old $10 banknote of the First National Bank of Independence by a veteran of the 128th Field Artillery, who told him "this is the first time I ever shook a President's hand." A uniformed band played "Missouri Waltz" as the train pulled out.

At Sedalia, Mo., where his train made its first short service stop, a crowd of several hundred was waiting and cheering and calling for "Harry." He came to the platform all smiles, and spoke briefly, and simply. He was Harry S. Truman at his best, among the people he understands.

"I have myself now," he said, "a great responsibility. I hope I can fill it to the satisfaction of the people of my home State.

"No one could ask for more than you did for me on election day. It is a great satisfaction that the State where I live and the people who know me best still want me to run the Presidency."

The station at Jefferson City, squeezed between the Missouri River on one side and, on the other, a bluff crowned by the State capitol, was packed with radiant Missourians. A Negro quartet called "The Cavaliers," was giving with "Happy Days Are Here Again," and "I'm Just Wild About Harry."

When things had quited down the President, beaming happily, told them that "this is the most wonderful thing that ever happened to a man." Then, more solemnly, he said: "This is a terrible responsibility and you must stand behind me."

When he stepped inside his car to get The Washington Post's telegram of invitation to the "crow banquet," the Cavaliers started up an old campaign song:

"Stay on the right side, sister!
"Stay on the right side, brother.
"Look out for old man Dewey;
He's a lot of hooey."

Gallup Offered to Bring Own Crow to Banquet

Dr. George Gallup would have been "delighted" to attend a crow-eating banquet—and he would have brought his own crow, he said yesterday.

Pollster Gallup, in a telegram to Philip L. Graham, president and publisher of The Washington Post, said:

"Delighted to eat crow with you and Mr. Meyer (Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post) at President's convenience. In our business we could undoubtedly use Mr. Truman's forecasting ability, but since he has another position for the next four years I would personally like to present a bouquet to him at your eat-crow dinner. Will bring own crow.

"GEORGE GALLUP."

job. He said Tydings had "ability, length of service and every requirement of a leader." He said Tydings had strong Southern support for Vice President and still campaigned for the ticket and the platform.

Senators Lucas and O'Mahoney will arrive in Washington today, probably before the President's own homecoming. Neither has announced candidacy for the leadership.

But in answer to a question, Senator Lucas told Associated Press in Chicago yesterday:

"If the Democratic caucus sees fit to select me, I shall be glad to accept the leadership."

No formal decision on the leadership, or the many Senate organization shifts, will be reached until Senate Democrats caucus at the outset of the new Congress but the slates actually will be worked out far in advance.

coming chairman of the committee, has always favored public housing measures.

During the last session, the TEW measure was bottled up by the Republican-controlled House Rules Committee. Representative Adolph Sabath (D., Ill.), ranking minority member of the committee, who will become chairman with the Democratic sweep, charged at the time that the rules group was using dictatorial methods.

Ellender predicted swift passage of legislation which has been prevented from passage for four years.

"With the support of a Democratic President and Democratic majorities in both House and Senate," Ellender said, "I am confident that housing will receive priority consideration in the Eightieth Congress, and I predict that the program will finally become law before the end of the first session."

Boggs, who fought strenuously for the original Taft-Ellender-Wagner measure which was killed in the closing days of the last session, said his bill would contain those provisions of the TEW measure Congress did not adopt.

In a formal statement, Ellender said:

"In my opinion, there is no issue of greater importance to the welfare of the American people than the launching of a concerted effort to rid this Nation of its slums and to bring decent homes within the reach of all American families."

Ellender pointed out that the House Republican leadership had refused to permit a vote during last summer's special session on any housing measure containing provisions for low-rent public housing, slum clearance and housing aids for low-income farmers.

"The housing legislation which passed at the special session, while helpful as far as it goes," Ellender declared, "refuses any assistance to those very groups within our population which are most urgently in need of help in order to secure a decent living environment.

"I, for one, do not intend to rest content with this kind of half-measure nor do I believe that the people of the country will be content with anything short of a comprehensive housing program which will actually promise an end to intolerable housing conditions."

The Democratic victory, Ellender declared, reflected a demand for an adequate housing program.

"The housing plank of the Democratic Party platform," he said," clearly supports this kind of program, and to my mind, the sweeping Democratic victory of last Tuesday reflects an urgent demand of the American people for immediate enactment of an adequate housing law."

a major committee. It would be settled by the caucus of Senate Democrats, and a member with longer service might be given the assignment. Senator O'Conor, former Governor of Maryland, began his first Senate term in January, 1947.

Senator O'Conor said yesterday the salary differential that is now hitting District employes "merits very prompt consideration of their just claim."

"I'm thinking of efficiency in the performance of their work here," said O'Conor. "Unless and until District employes are given adequate compensation and equal treatment with Federal employes, I think there will be losses to the service."

He recalled that when he was Governor of Maryland he had seen high-caliber men in the State service taken away by other States that would pay them higher salaries.

On the Federal pay question, Senator O'Conor said he was very much interested in bringing the classification system up to date. He said there were Federal jobs whose salaries had not changed since 1910. If the salaries were right then, he said, it follows that they are not right now.

He pointed out that one feature of this year's pay legislation called for a general revision of the classification system, but that this feature had been forced out of the pay bill, along with the plan to lift the $10,000-a-year pay ceiling to $13,500.

Senator O'Conor said he feels, too, that men in key positions should get some salary readjustment.

Present ceiling on salaries in the classified Federal Civil Service is $10,330; but many salaries fixed by separate acts of Congress have not been changed by general pay increase legislation.

For example, Cabinet salaries are still fixed at $15,000. O'Conor recalled that there had been proposals for making Cabinet salaries $25,000, with corresponding adjustments in the salaries for other key officials.

Moline Crusader Warned to Quit

Moline, Ill., Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Marie Van Muelsbrock, modern Carrie Nation who had 11 tavern owners arrested last week in her antislot machine campaign, said today she had been warned of a threat on her life.

Miss Van Muelebrock, 26, said an unidentified youth came to her home last night and told her of a plan "to bump you and your mother off or railroad you out of town unless you stop your antigambling activities."

The two women declared war on the tavern owners because the city refused to build a community animal shelter. Miss Van Muelebrock said that if there was no money to build a shelter, then there should be no money for gambling.

C. S. Dewey Quits As Aid Watchdog

Charles S. Dewey, a former Republican Congressman and assistant secretary of the Treasury, resigned yesterday as "agent-general," of the congressional watchdog committee on foreign aid programs.

His job would have lost its meaning in a Democratic Congress and under a Democratic Administration. He was apointed by Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), chairman of the Republican controlled joint committee, as head of a staff to keep a full-time check on the Economic Cooperation Administration.

At least one of Dewey's privately circulated reports, highly critical of ECA's opertaions, was reported used by Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) in his campaign for reelection, although it was never issued publicly by the committee.

The future of the watchdog committee was in doubt yesterday in the light of the overwhelming Democratic victories in Congress. Democratic leaders in the last Congress never liked the idea of setting up such a joint committee, and Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) fought against it on the ground that his Foreign Affairs Committee was competent to do its own "watchdogging."

In the end its establishment was authorized, largely as a device to quiet Republican fears about the European Recovery Program. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) urged that such a joint committee would help bridge the gap between a Republican Congress and a Democratic Administration.

With the Democrats in the saddle in the next Congress, much of the committee's motivation will disappear, and its continuance into the second year of ECA was regarded as unlikely.

In spite of Dewey's resignation as the chief watchdog and the expected disappearance of the committee, former Ambassador William C. Bullitt still plans to leave for China next Tuesday for an investigation under the committee's auspices.

$83 Million Release To French by ECA

Paris, Nov. 4 (NYHT).—David Bruce, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration mission in France, announced today the release to the French government of 25 billion francs (about $83,333,333) from the special Marshall plan account under E. C. A. control in the Bank of France.

Five billion francs will be spent to develop strategic raw materials for American stockpiles. This is the third release from the counterpart fund of francs.

The E. C. A. gains graphite from Madagascar by the latest release.

Assembly Passes Atom Control Plan

work where it left off last spring, when the commission decided it could accomplish nothing until the east-west deadlock was broken.

The Assembly action showed no change in the east-west lineup on the subject. The western plan had been approved by a majority of the 58-nation Political Committee. Before it had been vetoed in the Security Council by Russia.

Fundamentally the disagreement hinges on international inspection and control of atomic energy projects. The western powers want an adequate system of that kind set up and working before the atomic bomb is banned.

The Russian proposal, which the Assembly rejected today, called for a treaty banning the atomic bomb and a separate pact setting up controls. The treaties would become effective at the same time.

The vote against the Soviet proposal also was 40 to 6, with only the Soviet bloc states voting in favor.

An Indian amendment to approve the western plan "in substance" was rejected 15 to 9, with 26 nations abstaining. The west insisted on full approval.

Truman's 'Leftist Speeches' Won, Says Daily Worker

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Daily Worker, official Communist Party organ, said today the election results "prove that the left-sounding speeches which Truman copied from Roosevelt and Henry Wallace found a profound response among the electorate."

In an editorial entitled "The meaning of Truman's Election," the newspaper said:

"The American people are not swinging to the right. On the contrary they show that they want peace, greater social security and more democracy. They felt they could get this by voting for Truman. We believe this to be a mistake . . .

"In short, Truman won the election by a hypocritical copying of the speeches of Franklin Roosevelt and by imitating as much as he dares the charges of the Progressive Party and Henry Wallace whose campaign forced into the elections the vital issues which neither of the candidates of the old parties had intended to discuss . . .

"The Progressive Party forced Truman to make his promises . . .

"The vote for Wallace, it must be admitted, fell below not only the unrealistic quotas assigned to him by certain forces, but even below what his most sober supporters, including this paper, had expected.

Thomas Changes Mind; Won't Testify Before Grand Jury

tional grounds that his testimony might tend to incriminate him.

The refusal recalled the fact that Thomas has clashed frequently with witnesses before his committee who refused to testify on other constitutional grounds, although he always accepted refusals on the grounds of possible self-incrimination.

The Justice Department began an inquiry last month into published charges that Thomas had taken "kickbacks" from members of his office payroll.

Thomas has clashed frequently with Attorney General T. C. Clark over what he and members of the committee termed Clark's failure to prosecute Communist espionage agents revealed by the committee.

Both sides have accused the other of "playing politics" with the situation.

Assistant United States Attorney General Alex Campbell told newsmen the Government has now completed its case before the grand jury. He said he did not expect the jury to act before next Monday at the earliest. The jury can ignore the charges or vote an indictment of Thomas, he said.

Several former employes of the New Jersey Congressman have testified before the grand jury in connection with charges that Thomas put certain individuals on the payroll of his congressional office but required them to "kick back" all or part of their salaries to him.

Thomas gave waiting reporters a terse "no comment" when he appeared before the grand jury yesterday.

His attorney distributed the following statement:

"Congressman Thomas arrived in Washington yesterday and in compliance with understandings previously had, expected to appear before the grand jury today.

"He retained me as counsel and after full conference with him, I as his attorney, have recommended that he do not appear before the grand jury because it is my considered judgment that no useful purpose from his viewpoint will thereby be served.

"Congressman Thomas has reluctantly acquiesced in my advice."

Under normal procedure, witnesses are not called upon to testify before a grand jury investigating charges involving them.

Grand juries, however, can grant persons the privilege of appearing at their request.

U. S. District Attorney George Morris Fay previously had stated that the Government was proceeding under two sections of the U. S. criminal code—section 88, which provides a penalty of two years imprisonment, $10,000 fine or both for conspiracy to defraud the Government, and section 80, which provides 10 years imprisonment, a $10,000 fine or both for making false claims against the Government.

Divorcing Same Man 4 Times Convinces Her

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—Mrs. Ruth Slifer, 33, divorced her husband—the same one—for the fourth time today.

"I know when I've had enough. I'll never go back to him," she told Superior Judge Joseph Sabath.

U.S. Asks Reds to Find Killers of ECA Aide

The State Department served notice yesterday it will demand that Russian authorities in Austria take "proper measures" to find and punish the murderers of American foreign aid official Irving Ross.

Ross, a representative of the U.S. Economic Cooperation Administration, was clubbed to death in the Soviet zone of Vienna last Sunday. Vienna reports said he was assaulted by four Russian soldiers.

Department press officer Michael J. McDermott said American officials in Austria are pressing an investigation, but have been hampered by the refusal of Soviet authorities to permit questioning of Miss Dana Superina, Austrian girl who was with Ross at the time of the attack.

Miss Superina also was injured and is being held in a hospital in the Soviet sector of Vienna.

While his statement appeared to indicate the United States may send a formal note of protest to Moscow, McDermott declined to speculate on that possibility.

Md. Man Wounded In Indo-China

A 27-year-old Silver Spring man was wounded Sunday night in a restaurant near Saigon, Indo-China, when "terrorists" tossed a hand grenade into the building, his parents have been informed.

Biebusch

Charles Edward Biebusch, an accountant with the Saigon office of the California Texas Oil Co., was reported in satisfactory condition with a fractured left leg. Sixteen other persons were wounded by the grenade, the parents were told

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Biebusch, 617 Lycoming st., Silver Spring.

Biebusch, who has been in Saigon with the oil company almost two years, is due to return to the United States in January. He is a graduate of Montgomery Blair High School in Silver Spring and Benjamin Franklin University, and worked for the National Capital Trust Co. as an accountant before the war.

Britain Relaxes Many Commodity, Plant Controls

London, Nov. 4 (AP).—The government today relaxed a long list of commodity and manufacturing controls, given some private industries the first free hand for expansion since the war.

On the machinery side, it was mostly an outright lifting of production quotas. Among commodities, it involved acquisition, disposal, use and prices.

Controls on clothing weere not affected.

France Gets Arms Loan

biggest of such training centers is at Fort Knox, Ky.

In view of the overcrowding of training facilities of all kinds in the United States, any ambitious program of training the French might require authorization and perhaps appropriations from the new Congress. The same need for American maintenance and repair training does not arise in the case of the British, Belgians and Dutch the other members of the so-called Western Union, because all of them use British equipment in their armed forces.

As part of the effort to rearm western Europe, the defense departments here are going over their lists of surplus material, to see what could be useful across the Atlantic. Most of the huge surpluses of 1945 have deteriorated badly, but some have already gone to China and Latin America, and others, in a few categories, may be available for early shipment to western Europe.

In this case, too, authorities here think a congressional authorization would be needed, although one report yesterday said President Truman intended to transfer surpluses to western Europe by executive order.

As for the coming lend-lease program of armaments, which the President is expected to call for in his first message to the new Congress, the Budget Bureau is still working on defense department estimates of the amount that will be requested for the coming year.

The first year's figure is expected to be about a billion and a half dollars, but it will still be a guess in terms of actual supplies to be made and delivered. The defense departments still do not know precisely what the Europeans can do for themselves, what they will need from the United States, and what can be spared from the needs of American defense.

Top officials here have agreed, however, on one thing: that western Europe should not be forced to convert its own civilian industries, which are making goods for home consumption or export, to the making of armaments.

U. S. Expected to Call Atlantic Pact Session

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—The United States is expected to take the initiative shortly in calling a conference of diplomatic representatives of western European nations, the U. S. and Canada to begin drafting a North Atlantic security pact, a government source said here today.

French Coal Crisis Near End

Paris, Nov. 4 (NYHT).—Robert Lacoste, French Minister of Industry and Commerce, said today the nationalized coal mines would be ready for normal production the first of next week.

His radio appeal added government assurances there would be troop protection to suppress Communist reprisals against the back-to-work movement.

Lacoste called upon the non-Communist miners to increase production.

New SNOWDRIFT

RECIPE

"HAPPY PARTY" CAKE
An "m-m-m" cake—quick-mixed and so easy with quick-blending Snowdrift!

Sift together in a large bowl:
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
3½ teaspoons double-action baking powder (4½ teaspoons single-action)
1 teaspoon salt

Add:
½ cup Snowdrift (Emulsorized... gives blending aid)
⅔ cup milk

Mix until flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes. If you beat by hand and take "rests," count beating time only. (If you use electric mixer, set at "low speed"; scrape bowl and beaters frequently.)

Add:
4 egg whites (unbeaten)
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat 1 minute. Turn into 2 greased 8- or 9-inch layer pans, with bottoms lined with thin plain paper. Bake in moderate oven (375°) about 25 minutes. Cool on cake racks 5 minutes; turn out of pans, invert and cool. Put layers together with—

PINK PARTY FROSTING
2 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Few drops of red coloring

Combine all ingredients except vanilla and coloring in double boiler, over boiling water. Beat constantly with rotary beater 7 minutes or until icing "peaks." Cool. Stir in vanilla and enough coloring to make frosting a delicate pink.

Chiang Massing Best Remaining Troops In Central China to Block Any Red Drive

Nanking, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Chinese government was marshaling its best remaining front-line forces in central China today to block any Communist drive south toward the Yangtze River.

Key to the situation was Suchow, major government base only 170 miles north of this capital.

It was estimated that more than 400,000 government troops were massed in that general area. These were described as mediocre but the best remaining to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek after the Communist victories in Manchuria and North China in the past month.

(The Communist radio, meanwhile, reported capture of Yingkow, south Manchurian escape port, and destruction of a government division there. The broadcast, heard in San Francisco, said Yingkow fell Tuesday and that a government transport and a score of junks were sunk by Communist artillery as they sought to flee.)

A government spokesman said the garrison of Communist-captured Mukden had been "evacuated according to plan" but declined to say how many men escaped. Most independent reports said the bulk of the Mukden garrison (possibly 100,000 men) was captured after a brief fight.

The spokesman conceded that more than 25,000 Communists were operating south of the Lunghai railway. That East-West route, although cut at several places, is nominally the government's central China defense line. It runs through Suchow.

Chiang Kai-shek also faced a cabinet crisis brought on by economic collapse.

Hollington Tong, a government spokesman, said President Chiang urged Premier Wong Wen-hao to withdraw his resignation for the third time, but added that Wang Yun-wu, Finance Minster who also resigned, "is no longer functioning as a cabinet minister."

Crash of the economic-currency program of last August found store prices jumping 300 to 700 per cent per cent.

Allied Tribunal Finds Japan Guilty of Waging War of Aggression

Tokyo, Japan, Nov. 4 (U.P.)—Japan, which 12 years ago invaded China and seven years ago attacked Pearl Harbor, was found guilty today of waging aggressive war.

An international war crimes tribunal convicted Japan in the opening pages of a long and historic judgment which contains, in its final pages, verdicts regarding the personal guilt of former Premier Hideki Tojo and 24 other Japanese war lords.

The tribunal blamed the Japanese army for deceiving Emperor Hirohito and leading that Nation into war.

Sir William Webb, the tribunal president, was reading the 1700 page judgment. It will be sometime next week before Tojo and his codefendants learn their fate—hanging, imprisonment or freedom.

Tojo sat emotionless in the prisoners' dock. He wore his old uniform, faded and stripped of insignia. On occasion, he doodled or took notes. "I will be glad to get it over with," he said.

The judgment said the Japanese military seized control of the government from civilian leaders in a struggle that started during the Meiji era, considered the dawn of modern Japan.

The decision to launch Japan on wars of aggression was made at a cabinet meeting August 11, 1936, the tribunal said, and one month later Japanese armies plunged into China from the foothold they had seized in Manchuria in 1931.

U. S. Spurs U. N. Aid For Near-East DPs

The State Department said yesterday that the condition of nearly 480,000 refugees in Palestine and Transjordan is becoming extremely critical because their supplies "are now almost completely exhausted."

It is the view of the United States Government, the department said in a statement, that the United Nations should "act speedily" on a resolution calling upon all member nations and voluntary organizations to provide supplies and personnel to help relieve "the desperate plight of these refugees."

American Red Cross and other American agencies already have sent substantial supplies abroad.

The State Department said there are about 7080 Jewish refugees in the Palestine-Transjordan area and about 472,000 Arabs.

Truman Says U. S. Must Supervise Aid to China

President Truman yesterday forwarded to Congress a report warning that any U. S. aid to China must be supervised closely by Americans on the spot if it is to be effective.

The warning came at the end of a 37-page, routine report on administration of a 350-million-dollar special relief program for China, Austria, Greece, Italy and Trieste.

Congress voted the funds in the spring of 1947, and most of them were spent long ago. The report covered the windup period April 1 to June 30, 1948.

Emphasis on the "many difficulties" of extending effective help to China was regarded as especially significant because demands are currently being made in several quarters that this country sharply increase its military and economic assistance to the battered Nanking government.

The report asserted that the Chiang Kai-shek government failed to comply fully with the agreement under which the relief supplies (about 41 million dollars mostly in bread grains) were granted.

Chief violation, it said, was the breakdown of the rationing system set up in Nanking to assure fair distribution of supplies.

But the report added that the Chinese government showed no evidence of "international disregard of the basic principles" of the agreement.

The real blame, it said, must go to the economic conditions resulting from the civil war and "the inherent weaknesses and limitations of the governmental machinery."

"Taking into account an underpaid and partially demoralized officialdom, it may be said that on the whole a commendable success has been attained and a conscientious effort made by the Chinese to abide by the terms of the agreement."

It immediately added:

"The importance of foreign—in this instance American—supervision cannot be overemphasized in the attainment of a reasonable deegree of success in the aid-to-China program.

"It is doubted that the aid to China could have been successfully carried out without this type of supervision and control."

U. S. to Use Force If Necessary to Move Jewish DPs

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 4 (U.P.). United States Army authorities said tonight they would use force if necessary in case Jews refused to evacuate Zeilsheim displaced persons camp near here by November 15.

A proclamation by Brig. Gen. Robinson Duff, commanding Frankfurt military post, said that the closing of the camp was in line with American policy of reducing the number of such establishments.

Berlin City Council Asks Single Mark

Berlin, Nov. 4 (AP).—Berlin's city council asked the western powers today to outlaw the Soviet east mark and give the western sectors of Berlin only one kind of money.

Since the currency reform of last June both the Deutsche mark—sponsored by the United States Britain and France—and the East mark introduced by Russia have circulated in western Berlin.

The council, which is anti-Communist, also voted unanimously to go ahead with its plans for a city election December 5. The Russians have refused to permit voting in their sector. Under the plan adopted today council members from the Soviet sector would retain their seats until elections are possible in their districts.

[The United Press said the Russian-controlled Radio Berlin and ADN agency tonight carried a Washington report that Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) has asked President Truman to send Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Moscow to talk to Premier Stalin on Russia's blockade of Berlin.

[Western Allied officials suggested it might mean the Russians would welcome such a direct approach to Stalin.

[Wilhelm Pieck, Germany's top Communist, commenting on the American election, called for better Russian-American relations and the removal of Gen. Lucius D. Clay as American commander in chief.]

Berlin Bishop Near Death

Berlin, Nov. 4 (UP).—Konrad Cardinal von Preysing, Catholic Bishop of Berlin, was reported near death today. A medical bulletin said he was sinking and it was intimated that little hope remained of saving his life. Cardinal Preysing suffered a stroke Oct. 21.

Czechs Say American Intelligence Agents Encouraged 6 Young Plotters

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 4 (AP).—The State said today six youths plotted against the Czechoslovak government because American intelligence agents told them there would be a war soon and the United States Army would dictate to central Europe.

The prosecution read a document described as the confession of the group's leader, Miloslav Choc, 23. He is charged with killing Communist Leader Augustin Sram last May.

The state said Sram's killing was to have been the signal for an uprising in which Defense Minister Ludvik Svoboda was marked for death.

The document said Choc denied he killed Sram at the orders of an exile Czech committee in Germany and denied such a committee existed. It quoted him as saying United States intelligence agents told him war was coming. It said Choc and his group wanted to be on the "right side."

Many Foreign Aid Opponents Beaten

About a third of the Republicans in Congress who voted against the Marshall Plan last spring bit the dust in this week's election.

The latest list of defeated Senators and Representatives showed that isolationists were routed more decisively than in any election since before the war. Although foreign policy was not believed to have been a determining factor at the polls, the defeat of so many opponents of the bipartisan foreign policy was expected to smooth the way for foreign aid measures in the next Congress.

Defeated Senators who voted against authorizing the European Recovery Program were Henry C. Dworshak (Idaho), C. Wayland Brooks (Ill.), George Wilson (Iowa), Joseph Ball (Minn.), and Chapman Revercomb (W. Va.).

Defeated Republican Representatives who voted against the Foreign Assistance Act were Richard B. Vail (Ill.), Fred Busbey (Ill.), Robert J. Twyman (Ill.), George W. Gillie (Ind.), Gerald W. Landis (Ind.), Harold F. Youngblood (Mich.), Harold Knutson (Minn.), Wat Arnold (Mo.), Max Schwabe (Mo.) and William C. Cole (Mo.).

Others in the same category were William C. Cole (Mo.), Marion T. Bennett (Mo.), Parke M. Banta (Mo.), Howard H. Buffett (Nebr.), Frederic R. Coudert (N. Y.), Edward O. McCowen (Ohio), P. W. Griffiths (Ohio), Earl Lewis (Ohio), George Schwabe (Okla.), Francis J. Love (W. Va.) and Hubert Ellis (W. Va.).

War Goods Curb Reaffirmed

Paris, Nov. 4 (AP).—The United States said again today it will supply no "materials for building up the military potentials" of Russian-dominated eastern Europe.

Willard Thorp, assistant secretary of State for economic affairs, denied Soviet charges the European Recovery Program discriminated against eastern Europe.

He told the United Nations Assembly's economic committee America can scarcely be expected to supply war potential materials to "countries which have, through their aggressive actions as well as words, forced the free nations of the world to adopt appropriate measures in the interest of their own security."

A Gift From Grandma Moses . . .

The Washington Post

PAINTING EXHIBITED—Officials and interested children view The Red Feather, a painting by Grandma Moses, who gave it to the Community Chest Federations of America. The canvas, unveiled yesterday in the lobby of the National Museum, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw., will be displayed through Saturday. Looking it over are (from left) Chauncey Parker, general chairman of the Red Feather drive; Patrick Ryan, 10, of St. Joseph's Home and School; Norman Clatterbuck, 10, of the Epicopal Home and School; Margaret Clark, 10, of the Warrington School, and Thomas Beggs, director of the collection of fine arts of the Smithsonian Institution

Chest Plans To Resolicit U. S. Workers

Community Chest officials yesterday mapped plans to resolicit Federal employes for fuller contributions in renewed efforts to reach the Government Unit's goal of $1,524,557, now 76.28 per cent filled.

C. Girard Davidson, Government Unit chairman, sent telegrams to Red Feather chairmen in 53 Government Departments and agencies, as part of the greater Washington Chest's final two-week attempt to fill its total goal of $4,566,790.

"I understand that many employes made smaller Community Chest pledges because of their uncertainty about the future," Davidson said in a message.

"With this uncertainty dispelled, I am sure many who hesitated to give or who gave less than normally are anxious to make up their full subscriptions to the Chest campaign," he continued.

Yesterday Chest officials also unveiled ano original oil painting by 88-year-old Grandma Moses, entitled "Red Feather," which will be on exhibit through Saturday in the lobby of the National Museum, 10th and Constitution ave. nw.

Three sturdy youngsters, "foster children of three Red Feather homes here, were honor guests at the ceremony.

"The girls always play around the flagpole like that," said Norman Clatterbuck, 10, pointing to a group of children prancing about the giant Red Feather flag in the painting. Norman, who lives at the Episcopal Home for Children, is in the fourth grade at Lafayette School.

Margaret Clark, 10, said it was a child swinging from a fir tree in the painting that made her think of the Christ Child Farm for Convalescent Children, where she is recovering from an attack of rheumatic fever suffered last summer.

Patrick Ryan, 10, pointed out a fat boy, lugging a bench across the lawn, and said it looked just like one of the boys he knew at Saint Joseph's Home and School.

Chest volunteers will hold a general report luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today in the Washington Hotel, with Charles M. Fyfe, director of the Boys Club of Washington, as guest speaker. A seven-man Guatemalan marimba orchestra will play.

Plans Sought To Tighten U. S. Security

By Elton C. Fay
Associated Press Reporter

A committee of the armed forces and State Department is looking for ways to plug loopholes in the internal security setup through which enemy agents could strike at the Nation.

The matter was the subject of a recent memorandum from Defense Secretary Forrestal to President Truman, it was learned last night. Forrestal began looking into the problem last winter and talked it over informally with several Cabinet members, including Attorney General Tom Clark.

Those familiar with the situation say Forrestal's views run along these lines:

Although there are a score or more agencies of the Government concerned with separate aspects of internal security, no one person or agency knows fully the field covered by each agency—or, more important, areas not covered.

With this in mind, Forrestal suggested to the National Security Council last winter a study to determine in what areas of national activity there is no internal security interest by any agency. The Security Council did two things: employed as a special consultant a former FBI man, J. Patrick Coyne; assigned the study to the State-Army-Navy-Air Coordinating Committee, a permanent group. Coyne was reported to have been selected on the basis of recommendations by Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Forrestal believes there should be one person, perhaps with a small group of assistants, to coordinate the many agencies in the internal security field.

Changes Indicated In Defense Set-up

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman's unexpected and overwhelming victory at the polls paradoxically promises more important changes in the Nation's defense picture than if there had been a new Administration.

While normally the reelection of an American President means a continuation of present faces, policies and trends, the following results of Tuesday's election are being forecast:

An improvement in the Navy's position in the continuing interservice row over air combat missions, through change of committee chairmanships on Capitol Hill. Two former "Army men" are expected to be replaced by veterans long familiar with naval problems.

The probable appointment of a "stronger" defense chief succeeding Secretary Forrestal.

Some changes in the civil high command at the Pentagon.

Prominently mentioned for Defense Secretary is Louis Johnson, former Assistant Secretary of War. Johnson is an Army reserve colonel who served ably in preparing the Nation for war prior to Pearl Harbor. He was promised the post of Secretary of War by the late President Roosevelt but not given it. And Johnson has been a staunch supporter of Mr. Truman in the recent campaign.

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall, who campaigned for Truman against the Southern Dixiecrats, also is mentioned for the post.

There were reports that the President felt the Defense Secretaries failed to support him during the campaign. This is not true of Royall, nor of Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan. Sullivan has been one of the few who has been freely predicting Truman's reelection. And he made 17 speeches for the Democratic ticket in the past five weeks.

Congressional Changes

Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington is a Missourian who has been a Truman supporter. However, last winter he incurred the President's displeasure by advocating increased Air Force funds on Capitol Hill. Congressional GOP leaders backed him.

A major result of the election will be the replacement of Republican chairmen of the Armed Services and Appropriations Committees by Democrats. Representative Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), longtime chairman of the old House Naval Affairs Committee is due to be chairman of the House Armed Services groups.

Though he led the fight for increased Air Force appropriations in the last Congress, Vinson has many friends in the Navy and knows its problems and role well. He replaces Representative Walter G. Andrews (R., N. Y.), a former Army officer.

Tydings May Replace Gurney

Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.) is expected to replace Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) as chairman of the Armed Services Committee of the upper house. Though all of the armed forces have gotten along with Gurney, he was a supporter of the "merger" plan for uniting the services, a proposal strongly opposed by the Navy.

Tydings is a former member of the old Senate Naval Affairs Committee and aided the Navy in its fight against the original merger plan.

The Air Force will lose a partisan with the replacement of Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He probably will be succeeded by Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.). All of the armed forces will applaud the probable appointment of Representative Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) to supplant Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) as chairman of House Appropriations.

Board of Trade Asked to Suggest Plan for Hospital

The Silver Spring Board of Trade meeting Wednesday at Indian Spring Country Club was asked to suggest an alternate plan to finance construction of the proposed Silver Spring Memorial Hospital.

Ralph Boyd, president of the hospital association, said prior to Tuesday's referendum approving charter form of government for Montgomery County that plans had been to seek authorization of a million dollar bond issue from the State Legislature.

The Gallup Poll

Surveys Find No Voter Shift On Foreign Policy in Election

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 4.—Political observers in the world's important capitals — from Paris around the globe to Berlin, Moscow, Tokyo and London—should take care not to misread the results of Tuesday's American elections.

The final count emphatically does not mean a shift in the views of the Nation's voters toward relations of the United States with the rest of the world. Not only have Democratic and Republican policy makers supported a bi-partisan foreign policy, but, what is more important, rank and file voters in both parties see eye to eye on the day's major international issues.

Institute surveys in the past year provide convincing evidence that this unity of opinion exists as strongly among the voting population as it does among the country's political leaders. Results of these polls indicate that sentiment in the United States does not favor pulling out of Europe or returning to isolationism.

As far back as last July, for example, the views of Truman and Dewey voters were identical on what policy the United States should follow on the Berlin crisis. Eight out of ten in each party believed we should stay in the German capital even if it meant war with Russia.

The attitude towards the Berlin situation is but a facet of public sentiment regarding the over-all policy this country should pursue in its relations with Soviet Russia. Voters throughout the past year have overwhelmingly favored a firmer policy in dealing with Moscow, and, again, there is practically no difference between the views of Republican and Democrat voters.

In July the Institute asked a representative cross section of voters this question: "Do you think the United States is too soft or too tough (firm) in its policy towards Russia?"

This is the way members of the two major parties voted on that question:

	Reps.	Dems.
Russian policy too soft ..	73%	70%
Russian policy too tough..	3	4
Russian policy about right	14	14
No opinion	10	12

A main bone of contention between the East and West is, of course, the Marshall Plan. Last March, just before Congress approved the program, almost equal proportions of Republicans and Democrats—a majority in both cases—who were familiar with the proposal favored it.

Another phase of the Russian problem that will be pressing for a decision in coming months—the proposed military alliance with Western European allies participating in the Marshall Plan program—finds three out of four Democrats and Republicans heartily in favor of the alliance as building a more solid front of nations facing Russia.

In April, when Congress was debating the question of increasing the amount of monetary and military aid to Nationalist China, approximately 6 out of 10 Republicans and an equal number of Democrats favored the increase.

No major differences appeared between the two parties in regard to the necessity for continuing the reciprocal trade treaties, under which the President has powers to work out agreements with other nations to adjust tariff rates on individual items on a reciprocal give-and-take basis. Eight out of ten of the voters in both parties who had opinions on the subject last May, when the issue was before Congress, favored a renewal of the Trade Agreements Act.

When it comes to supporting the bi-partisan foregn policy with stronger armed forces, the Republicans and Democrats in similar proportions favored Universal Military Training, which Congress did not adopt, and the new selective service draft law.

The overwhelming unanimity with which voters view American foreign policy is one of the major reasons for the relatively small vote received by the Progressive Party candidate, Henry A. Wallace. Wallace attacked the decision to remain in our zone of Berlin, opposed a military alliance with Marshall Plan countries, and attacked the new draft law.

Canada Admits 'Red Dean' After Delay Over Passport Snarl

Montreal, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Dr. Hewlett Johnson, the "Red Dean" of Canterbury, was cleared by immigration authorities today after being "technically" detained by what he called an "overzealous young official impressed by newspaper accounts."

Dr. Johnson arrived at Dorval Airport early today from London, but his passport was not stamped by immigration authorities. He was permitted to go to a hotel and appeared at the immigration office this morning.

"The immigration people were extremely courteous and the difficulty was quickly cleared up," he said. "The young man who stopped me apparently was impressed by newspaper accounts and, quite rightly, was not taking any chances.

"When a general is challenged by a young sentry, if he is not a fool, he will halt," the dean added, smiling.

Navy to Accept U. S. Merchant Ship Officers

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Navy will accept qualified young merchant marine officers in commissioned billets to forestall them being drafted, a Defense Office spokesman said last night.

Instructions will be issued to naval personnel centers to order applicants to active Navy duty at any time up to their actual call for induction into the Army, it was said.

At the same time, a representative of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Union told The Washington Post that Selective Service Chief Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey had assured them that merchant marine officers could go to sea while their draft appeals were pending. To date, merchant officers classified as 1-A were barred from sailing with their ship pending an appeal.

This statement came as a 20-man committee of scientists and educators met here to prepare rules for deferring scientists and scientific students from the draft.

Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, selective service director, addressed the newly appointed group, and urged them to work out a policy that is simple, geared to the local level, and bears in mind that the national manpower pool is "not unlimited."

In effect, he was warning them not to be too liberal in proposing deferment of students and technicians.

It is expected that the recommendations of the committee will be submitted to local draft boards for their guidance rather than be mandatory rules, in the same manner as the recently announced plan for deferring medical and dental students.

The Defense Office statement on merchant marine officers followed a visit to the Pentagon of Capt. William Ash, national vice president of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Association (AFL). Ash protested that skilled young mates are being drafted from their seagoing posts to serve as Army GIs.

The men were trained at Government expense at the U. S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. Y., or Federally supported State academies and hold Naval Reserve commissions, Ash declared.

Defense officials told the maritime union leader that the Army and Navy are opposed to drafting qualified merchant marine officers into the land forces. Instead, the Navy will accept applications from the men for active duty in their rank, even after they have been called up and taken their preinduction physical examination. Normally, no one is permitted to enlist after being called.

Captain Ash also urged that occupational deferments be extended to merchant marine officers. He was referred to Selective Service Headquarters by Pentagon officials. A Selective Service spokesman declined all comment and refused to state whether or not the union official had conferred with officials of his office.

Later Captain Ash told The Post that he had talked to General Hershey more than an hour and had received a sympathetic response to his complaint. Ash said the deferment of active merchant officers is necessary because a number of them came up from the ranks and do not have naval reserve officer status. He revealed Hershey's decision to permit officers to go to sea pending their draft appeal.

Dr. M. H. Trytten of the War Research Council heads the overall committee on draft deferments for scientists. Dr. Leland W. Parr of George Washington University was named chairman of the committee on agricultural and biological sciences, composed of Prof. Lewis J. Stadler, Columbia, Mo.; Prof. E. G. Butler, Princeton, N. J.; and Prof. John S. Nicholas, New Haven, Conn.

Other Committees

The committee on engineering sciences consists of Stephen L. Tyler, chairman, George W. Bailey of New York, N. Y. and Prof. C. Richard Soderberg, Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. Charles E. Odgaard of the American Council of Learned Societies here heads the committee on "humanities." Others are Dr. Berthold L. Ullman, Chapel Hill, N. C., Dr. Earl Swisher, Boulder, Colo., and Monsignor John M. Cooper, Albuquerque, N. Mex.

Dr. R. C. Gibbs of the National Research Council here is chairman of the committee on physical sciences. Serving with him are Thomas B. Nolan of the Department of Interior, Dr. Henry A. Barton, New York, N. Y., Dr. George O. Curme, jr., New York, N. Y., and Prof. Samuel S. Wilks, Princeton, N. J.

Dr. Charles W. Cole, Amherst, Mass., heads the committee on social sciences, composed of: Dr. J. Kenneth Galbraith of Cambridge, Mass.; Dr. Malcolm M. Willey, Minneapolis, Minn., and Prof. Everett L. Kelly, Ann Arbor, Mich.

They're in the Army Now . . .

The Washington Post

INDUCTEES—The first postwar draftees from nearby Maryland raise their hands and take the oath of allegiance from Capt. Laurence Bairstow (left), commanding officer of the Silver Spring Recruiting Station. The new recruits are James D. Rogers (center), 25, of 9807 Burnett ave., and Emmett M. O'Grady, 25, 1217 Linden lane. Both are from Silver Spring. They will be assigned to Camp Pickett, Va.

Florida Refused Negro on Charge 20 Years Old

Philadelphia, Nov. 4 (AP).—Judge Louis E. Levinthal refused today to grant extradition of a Negro to Florida where he is accused of escaping from prison about 20 years ago.

The Negro is Tom Johnson alais William T. Jones. Judge Levinthal said Johnson was arrested here in 1929 on robbery charges but Florida authorities advised that the State did not want to bear the expense of returning him due to the briefness of his sentence. Johnson since has served a sentence on the charge here.

T. S. Eliot, 2 Others Win Nobel Prizes

Tiselius Blackett Eliot

Stockholm, Nov. 4 (AP). — T. S. Eliot, American-born British poet and dramatist, won the 1948 Nobel Peace Prize for literature today.

Patrick M. S. Blackett, British nuclear physicist from Manchester University, won the physic award for his development of the Wilson method of studying the courses of radioactive particles and his discoveries in cosmic radiation.

Prof. Arne Tiselius, Swedish biochemist, won the chemistry prize for his development of two methods for biochemical study of proteins, enzymes and other substances.

A week ago Dr. Paul Mueller of Basel, Switzerland, was adjudged the winner of the prize in medicine for his development of insect-killing DDT.

The prizes are worth the equivalent of $44,000 each.

The Nobel peace prize winner, still to be selected, will be chosen by a committee appointed by the Norwegian Parliament.

Eliot, whose work strongly influenced the literature of the past two decades, was chosen by the Swedish Academy of Literature; Tiselius and Blackett by the Swedish Academy of Science. The awards will be made formally here December 10. They are given under the will of Alfred B. Nobel, Swedish industrialist who died in 1896.

Eliot, now 60, is a native of St. Louis, Mo., but the Eliot family was among the earliest settlers of Massachusetts and has been identified prominently with new England through three centuries.

Eliot sprang to prominence in 1922 with his poem, "The Waste Land," in which he expressed the bitterness and disgust of his generation with the savagery of the World War I.

Tiselius, the chemistry winner, developed techniques value in the fields of medicine, biology and industrial research.

The 46-year-old biochemist, a member of the faculty of Sweden's Upsala University, won the award for his methods of electrophoresis and absorption analysis, which are used to identify and in some cases to purify the most important proteins in the mixtures supplied by nature.

Blackett was the ninth Briton to win the physics prize since the award began in 1901.

Jake Powell Kills Self After Arrest

Powell had planned to be married at Rockville, Md., yesterday and did not because Powell was unable to locate a judge friend of his. She said they had then decided to go to New York for the marriage.

It was the woman's announcement to Powell during their private conversation at police headquarters that she would not go to New York and intended to return to Florida that precipitated the shooting.

She told police that Powell begged her to stay and promised to make good the checks.

"I'm ashamed of you," she told him. "You've lied to me and everyone else. You've reached the end of your rope and you might as well face the music. I'm going home."

"Well," she quoted him, "if you insist on going, here is four dollars I have. I won't need it where I'm going."

"What do you mean?"

"I'm going to end it all."

"That's silly."

Miss Amber said that at this point she rose to her feet, intending to tell the detectives to search Powell for a gun. She had gone but two steps when the shots were fired and Powell slumped to the floor.

The shooting occurred on the third floor of police headquarters in the narcotics squad room which adjoins the check and fraud squad room. This is only 50 feet from the homicide squad room and 150 feet from the press room.

Detective Sergt. Lawrence Hartnett said he was sitting in the homicide squad room and heard the shots. Immediately he received a telephone call from Higgins and Dodson.

Powell was arrested at about 4 p.m. at Union Station. Miss Amber said she and Powell planned to take a train to New York.

The arresting officer, Higgins, who is head of the check and fraud squad, said later he gave Powell a quick frisk before placing him in the car to take him to headquarters.

"I searched him and I missed it," he admitted.

Police officials, however, said no disciplinary action would be taken against the two detectives. They pointed out that a man arrested on such a charge could hardly be expected to be armed and also that the weapon was very small. However, an investigation was ordered by Inspector Clarence Lutz, acting superintendent of police.

Powell was booked at headquarters at 4:18 p. m. and the shooting took place about 40 minutes later.

A suspicious credit manager at the Ambassador Hotel brought about Powell's arrest.

Credit Manager Acts

The credit manager, Roy Clinard, questioned a $25 check cashed by Powell yesterday as he was preparing to leave the hotel. During his stay at the hotel, police said later, Powell cashed checks totaling $305.

The $25 check was drawn on a Dayton, Ohio, bank. Clinard called the Dayton bank long distance and was told Powell had no account there.

Clinard immediately called police and instructed John Garrison, assistant manager of the hotel, to follow Powell and Miss Amber. Garrison followed them to Union Station where Powell was arrested.

At headquarters, Powell was confronted with a warrant sworn out in June, 1947, by Benjamin Goldman, of 7723 Georgia ave. nw., complaining Powell had given him a bad $25 check.

Police said Powell also was wanted on bad-check charges in Deland, Fla., and had been arrested last December in Towson, Md., in similar charges.

Met in Florida

Miss Amber, a tall, good-looking blond clad in a bright red dress told police she had not known of the bad-check charges or that he was married.

Police said in her statement she told them she is a divorcee, has a 14-year-old son and shares ownership of a restaurant in Deland with her brother.

She said she met the Silver Spring-born Powell in Florida last August while he was playing minor league baseball. She said he started dating her and finally asked her to marry him. They left Florida for Washington last Saturday, she added, so she could meet his parents before the marriage.

Police said they registered at the Ambassador Hotel Sunday as Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Powell of Dayton, Ohio.

Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg announced he would issue a certificate of suicide today.

Film Celebrity List Seized in Marihuana Raid

Hollywood, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—A pretty former model and two men were arrested in a midnight marihuana raid by police who seized a little black book they said was filled with the names of film celebrities.

Raiding officers A. M. Barr and J. B. McKinnon said they confiscated 46 marihuana cigarettes in the apartment where they arrested Howard Cook, 29, used car salesman; his common-law wife, Carol Dunbar, 20, former pin-up model, and Robert D. Allen, 29.

"Some of the actors and actresses' names in that little black book would surprise you," Officer Barr said. "The book is loaded with big names and private telephone numbers.

"The movie people include many we know are marihuana addicts," the officer said.

Three Brothers, Two Others Die In Maryland Mine

Kitzmiller, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Five miners, three of them brothers, were asphyxiated today when fire broke out in the fan house of the George Nethken mine near here.

The victims were identified as Clarence, Herman and Martin Keller, brothers, of Kitzmiller; Charles Kifer of Mount Storm, W. Va., and Robert Jackson of Kitzmiller.

Gerald Iman, president of the Kitzmiller Fire Department, said the men were overcome by smoke sent into the mine by the ventilating system in the fan house.

Jackson, "outside man" at the mine, died when he went into the shaft to warn the five other men in the mine at the time, firemen said.

On his way to the face of the 1000-foot horizontal shaft, he met George Nethken, the owner, who was unaware of the fire. Nethken went to the surface to summon aid.

When rescue squads reached the five bodies about 20 minutes later, they were huddled together, less than 150 feet from the opening.

Cause of the fire in the fan house, a shed at the top of the mine housing the ventilating fan, was not determined.

Parrot Yells, 'Hey, Ma,' Brings Pet Rescuers

Newark, N. J., Nov. 4 (NYHT.).—Newark firmen conducted rescue operations on a grand scale this morning during a three-alarm fire in a four-story building.

They rescued 75 love birds, 50 canaries, 25 puppies, 100 mice, 25 turtles, 50 hamsters, a type of chipmunk and 65 tanks of tropical fish from a pet shop.

They also rescued a pair of silver-crested cockatoos valued at $1000 and a large green parrot who attracted attention by yelling: "Hey Ma!"

Three Planes Carrying 34 Are Overdue

Seattle, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Two Navy planes and a Pacific Alaska airlines DC-3 with an estimated combined total of 34 persons aboard were overdue and believed down somewhere in the northern Pacific, authorities reported tonight.

The DC-3, carrying 11 passengers, was overdue at Annette Island near Ketchikan on a flight from Sitka, the Civil Aeronautic Administration said. The plane normally carries a crew of two.

A four engine Navy PB4Y Privateer was lost in the Bristol Bay area in western Alaska. The craft carries a normal crew of 12, the Navy said.

A Navy P2V Neptune, long-range patrol bomber has not been heard from since 7 a. m. It was taking part in a joint Air Force-Navy-Army simulated "enemy" attack on Pudget sound. The Navy said "between seven and nine crew members" were aboard.

19 Are Killed In B-29 Crash In the Azores

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 4 (AP).—Nineteen men were killed in a bomber crash in the Azores yesterday. There was only one known survivor among the 20 occupants.

MacDill Field announced the B-29 bomber crashed about 500 yards offshore a few minutes after taking off from Lagens Air Force base in the mid-Atlantic after dark. MacDill said the ship was demolished.

Normally the B-29 carries a 10-man crew. The plane, one of 29 returning to MacDill field from a training tour in England, had 10 ground crewmen as passengers.

Twelve of the planes, belonging to the 307th Bomb Group, have arrived at their Tampa base. Another was reported to have landed with mechanical trouble in Bermuda without injury to anyone.

The only survivor of the Azores crash, Staff Sergt. Henry B. Anderson of Tampa, was in a critical condition.

The dead included: First Lieut. Leonard Post, pilot, Tampa; First Lieut. William Jacobs, copilot, Petersburg; M/Sergt. Robert V. Wise, Sergt. William D. Branch, Sergt. Albert J. Snead, M/Sergt. J. E. Carriker, T/Sergt. William P. Stubblefield, S/Sergt. Raymond J. Chaplain, M/Sergt. Franklin E. Albright, Sergt. William T. Langley, S/Sergt. Francis A. Tilton and Sergt. William E. Spivey, all of Tampa.

Later the following were added to the list of dead: M/Sergt. Fred R. Baker, Blytheville, Ark.; First Leut. James W McGuire, Milwaukee, Wis.; Sergt. John E. Cook Dallas, Tex.; T/Sergt. Albert Castrucci, Cambridge, Mass., S/Sergt. John F. Gabriszeski, Tampa and First Lieut. Amado Salinas, of Fort Worth, Tex.

Truman Vote Margin 156 in Prince Georges

Election returns officially certified by the Board of Election Canvassers in Prince Georges County yesterday gave President Truman a margin of 156 votes over Governor Dewey—one more than reported in unofficial returns early Wednesday.

The final, official tally gave the Truman-Barkley ticket 14,874 votes to 14,718 for Dewey and Warren; 258 for the Wallace-Taylor Progressive slate and 174 for the Thomas-Smith Socialist pair. Although not on the ballot, States' Rights presidential candidate J. Strom Thurmond polled 140 write-in votes, while his running mate, Fielding Wright, was given 114.

In the congressional race, Democratic Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer polled 19,033 votes, to 10,625 for his Republican opponent, C. Maurice Weidemeyer.

The only all-local referendum showed four Prince Georges communities voting overwhelmingly for imposition of a local fire tax of 10 cents on the $100, to aid fire-fighting units in their respective areas. They were Spaulding, which approved the measure, 1502 to 666; Oxon Hill, 640 to 128; Seat Pleasant, 1108 to 465, and Lanham, 534 to 169. They were the only areas to vote on the proposal.

A referendum proposal to reduce the term of Commissioner of Motor Vehicles W. Lee Elgin was approved in Prince Georges, although it failed in State-wide balloting. Throwing its support behind Governor Lane, who had indorsed the proposal, the county voted 8234 to 5145 in favor of a shortened term.

Seven amendments to the State constitution, which drew State-wide approval, also were given substantial majorities in Prince Georges, the canvass showed.

"Crusade in Europe!" Eisenhower's own story of World War II starts Sunday, November 7 in The Post.

Seven Found Guilty In Racial Disorders

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—Six men and a woman, all white, were convicted of conspiracy charges today in connection with disorders which broke out when police stopped some Negro-white tennis matches in a public park.

Among them were Harold Buchman, director of the Progressive Party of Maryland, and Stanley Askin, director of the Maryland Young Progressives.

They acknowledged the tennis matches were arranged to test a Baltimore park rule enforcing segregation on playgrounds. Their cases were disposed of, however, without a ruling on the point.

There was a torrent of hoots and some pushing and shoving when police swooped down on the tennis matches in Druid Hills Park on a July Sunday. Some of the participants sat down on the courts and had to be carried to patrol wagons.

Originally they were charged with violating the segregation rule. Then the State substituted another charge: conspiracy to riot and disturb the peace. The seven were convicted on the charge. Then the State dropped the park rule charges.

Judge Herman M. Moser acquitted 10 Negroes and 5 white persons of the conspiracy allegation. He had purposely delayed his decision until after the elections. He did not pronounce sentences upon those convicted, waiting for them to file appeals.

White School Cuts Courses

white school available to Negroes in the absence of equal Negro facilities, he would shut down the white school until such facilities were available through a bond issue or other means.

Similar views had been expressed here earlier, with the reasoning that, "If we close the white school, then no one can claim the white facilities are better."

Last September, a group of Negro students attempted to register at the white school, contending that while there had been some improvements at their school, facilities were not equal to the white school. They were refused registration in view of Virginia's segregation laws.

Negro leaders then sought the contempt action against King George, and Gloucester County, which is involved in a similar case with a Friday "show cause" deadline.

Lane Favors Roadside Area Control Law

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—Governor Lane said today that he favored "some form of roadside control" that would make the movement of traffic in Maryland easier and preserve the natural beauty of land along roads and highways.

The Legislative Council has approved a bill for presentation to the 1949 General Assembly that would give the State Roads Commission authority to designate "roadside protected highways."

The bill would regulate new business and commercial structures on the "protected" highways, but would require the commission to recognize local zoning.

Lane declined to comment directly on the proposed legislation, but said: "I hope that some form of regulation may be provided that will guarantee the future facility of traffic through the State and prevent the beauty of our roadsides from being unnecessarily marred."

Delegate Sybert (D., Howard) headed the committee that drafted the bill.

Prince Georges Orders Survey

The Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday authorized a survey to determine practicability of building an alternate route between Hyattsville and Beltsville to the heavily congested Baltimore blvd.

The action was taken on recommendation of the advisory committee to the commissioners. It proposed that the alternate route be constructed either parallel to or on the Capital Transit Co. streetcar line to Beltsville.

Use of the roadbed would be contingent on eventual abandonment of the Beltsville trolley line and the utility's willingness to sell the right-of-way to the county.

Under the advisory committee's proposal, the new road would be an extension of Rhode Island ave., which now merges with Baltimore blvd. at Hyattsville. From that point to Beltsville, the boulevard now is one of the most congested stretches of highway between Washington and Baltimore, since it not only follows heavily traveled U. S. Highway Route 1, but passes through five incorporated towns.

In requesting the survey, the advisory committee pointed out that construction of the highway would not fall within "the financial capabilities" of the county, but suggested that additional funds might be obtained from the Maryland Roads Commission and the Public Roads Administration.

'Vice Admiral' Gets Hearing Today on Parole

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—William J. Sachs, 32-year-old ersatz "admiral," comes up for a hearing Friday on whether he'll be paroled to relatives in Dayton, Ohio.

Sachs and an acquaintance are charged with passing $376 in bad checks.

They were arrested when Sachs, dressed as a vice admiral, accosted Naval Academy Midshipmen and ordered them to salute. The friend, 24-year-old Edward E. Bastido of Sioux City, Iowa, was decked out as a warrant officer.

The "admiral" made the mistake of ordering the Middies to salute when bareheaded. That's against Navy practice. So the Midshipmen called police and the "naval officers" were unmasked.

Sachs' attorney has made arrangements to have the Dayton relatives repay money the "admiral" allegedly obtained by means of the bad checks.

Bastido was held for further investigation. Police said he is wanted in Iowa, Pennsylvania and California on charges that included armed robbery.

College Launches Jewish Studies

The College of Jewish Studies of Washington last night held its first classes in the Hillel Foundation of George Washington University, 2129 F st. nw.

First courses were a survey of Jewish history, with Rabbi Samuel H. Berkowitz, of the foundation, as instructor, and a survey of great books of literature, taught by Rabbi Ephraim S. Greenberg, of Beth Israel congregation.

Forty students have enrolled in the college, organized to provide instruction in Jewish learning and to train individuals for service in Jewish educational, social and religious institutions, Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, of Adas Israel Congregation, and college dean announced.

The college offers a four-year course leading to the degree of chaver, or fellow, in Jewish studies. Admission is open to graduates of an accredited high school. Members of all faiths may enroll in courses which are held Monday and Thursday, evenings.

Sailors Relax Strike, Ferry Food to Isles

Galway, Eire, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—The 10 striking sailors of the ferry boat Dun Aengus tonight took mercy on the 2000 hungry people of the Isles of Aran and agreed to make a single crossing of Galway Bay with supplies for the primitive islanders.

Pleas from the Dublin Parliament persuaded them to carry flour, sugar and canned goods to Aran on Saturday, the sailors said. But after that the strike which has isolated the Aranians for three weeks goes on.

For three weeks the people of Aran Islands have looked in vain for the little ferry supply boat Dun Aengus which weekly makes the 12-mile journey from this west-central Ireland port.

Mountainous seas have kept the men of Aran from making the trip in their cowhide currachs—small, primitive boats.

The men dress in homespun tweed pants and white bawneens, white jackets made from unbleached wool. The women wear red flannel petticoats down to their ankles with black blouses. They speak only Gaelic.

On their feet they wear wraparounds of cow or sheep hides called "pampooties."

Kansas U. Keeps Growing

Lawrence, Kans. (U.P.).—Although registration of war veterans declined, enrollment at the University of Kansas has reached a new peak for the third straight year. It is now 9597.

Monongahela Valley Air to Be Checked

Donora, Pa., Nov. 4 (U.P.).—An extensive program for the constant checking of the air in the Monongahela River Valley, where 19 persons died last weekend, was announced tonight.

The program approved by both State and Federal health authorities includes establishment of sampling stations throughout the valley.

The stations will be manned around the clock. When fog descends they will give advance warning on the amount of poisonous elements in the air.

The plan was outlined by Dr. Joseph Shilen of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, and Dr. Duncan Holaday of the U. S. Public Health Service.

The doctors said the American Wire & Steel Co. had their permission to reopen the zinc smelting plant here. Dr. Shilen said there was no evidence the zinc plant was guilty. He said the entire valley is full of industrial plants which throw off fumes.

Both doctors said a change in the prevailing wind brought about the five-day smog in the Monongahela valley.

"The same thing could happen in northern New Jersey, New York City, or Los Angeles," Dr. Holaday said.

A long time smog in Los Angeles, according to Dr. Holaday, would find persons "crying themselves to death," because of the type of fumes there.

World Is Losing Fight on Hunger

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization said yesterday the world still is losing ground in its battle against hunger.

In a report on world food conditions and prospects the FAO said population is increasing more rapidly than food production.

Based upon a world-wide survey, the FAO report was prepared for a conference of agricultural ministers and secretaries from 57 nations to be opened here November 15. The conference will study the world food situation.

Gutt to Visit Seven Countries in South America

Camille Gutt, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, announced yesterday he will leave November 15 by plane to visit seven South American countries and talk over financial problems.

He will stay from four to six days each in Brazil, Uruguay, Chile, Argentina, Peru, Ecuador, and Colombia. The stop in Argentina will be merely a travel convenience since that country is not a member of the Fund.

Gutt told reporters he plans to discuss with government leaders questions relating to exchange rates, balances of payments, multiple currency practices, gold and dollar reserves, and price levels.

Gutt emphasized the purpose of his trip is largely educational since he has never been in any of the countries before.

Deep Sea Dive Is Abandoned By Piccard

(By the Belga News Agency)

Brussels, Nov. 4.—The Belga Agency correspondent with Prof. Auguste Piccard aboard the S.S. Scaldis said today the scientist will not make his scheduled deep sea dive and the expedition is considered ended.

The Scaldis will sail Saturday for Dakar from its position in the Atlantic off the Cape Verde Islands.

The corespondent said the decision to abandon the enterprise came after Piccard's bathyscaphe had made a successful, unmanned dive 1400 meter (about 4250 feet) off Santiago, the main island in the Cape Verde archipelago.

Piccard and his assistant, Max Cosyns, had expected to descend 2½ miles below the surface in the vessel.

[The present diving record, held by an American, William Beebe, is 3028 feet in a descent off Bermuda in 1934 the United Press said.]

The bathyscaphe was launched at noon yesterday. It was brought to sea level by an automatic device today, 21 hours later.

It was impossible to pump the oil contained in the floaters back into the mother ship's tanks, the dispatch said. The oil was emptied into the sea. This made necessary a new reserve of oil for the bathyscaphe floaters.

Brush Fire Burns 200 Homes

Los Angeles, Nov. 4 (AP).—More than 200 homes were reported destroyed by a brush fire sweeping down Topanga Canyon toward the Pacific Ocean.

Hundreds of residents had left the area, some of them burned out and others abandoning their property to the advancing flames.

Officers were evacuating the residents of Fernwood, estimated by officers at upwards of 2000, as the fire reached within half a mile of that area, still pushed by a high wind.

The fire started early this afternoon and swept over an area of more than 10 square miles.

No deaths had been reported, and only minor injuries.

Queen Elizabeth Has Flu-Like Cold

London, Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Queen Elizabeth is suffering from a influenza-like cold of the sort that has swept London in recent weeks, it was disclosed at Buckingham Palace yesterday.

The King's personal physician, Sir John Weir, visited the Queen, who is remaining in her palace rooms. The illness forced her to cancel her scheduled visit yesterday to the disabled servicemen's exhibition here.

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Those Absent Voters

No one can accuse the citizens who actually voted of being indifferent in Tuesday's upset. But, contrary to the election night prognostications, one of the least spectacular aspects of the balloting was the total vote. At this writing it is calculated in the neighborhood of 46 million. That is roughly two million fewer votes than were cast in 1944, and is substantially below the 1940 total of nearly 50 million. Moreover, the country's population has grown by approximately 14 million since 1940. In other words, instead of mounting, the proportionate vote has gone way down.

The figures also indicate with a smashing finality that those who predicted that the Democrats could win only with a tremendous vote, including the otherwise right Louis H. Bean, were dead wrong. The total Democratic vote in this election seems likely to run several million below the 27,234,000 they mustered in 1940. The Republican vote also is likely to be considerably less than the more than 22 million run up in 1940 and again in 1944. Two conclusions seem obvious to us from these facts. First, again contrary to advance predictions, the apathetic voters who stayed home hurt the Republicans more than the Democrats, in whose behalf organized labor combed the city precincts. Second, the country apparently is of a good deal more "liberal" mind than had been assumed, and the people believe that the Democratic Party upholds the popular version of "liberalism."

The really remarkable thing is that the world's most powerful democracy conducts its elections with such a small proportion of the electorate participating. The Census Bureau estimates that as of July 1 there were 93,704,000 citizens of voting age. Thus a 46 million total means that less than 50 per cent of the potential electorate bothered to vote. In any western European democracy that low a vote would amount to a national scandal. Such a percentge will astound the residents of Australia and New Zealand, where fines are levied for failure to exercise the franchise. It would be unfair, of course, to contrast the American total with the 99.44 per cent pure vote the Russians exact, though undoubtedly the Kremlin will make use of our figures for some additional sneers at decadent democracy. But in this day when the rights of man are on trial throughout the world, it is disquieting to realize that not even half of the potential voters in the United States think enought of their privilege to exercise it.

Mén Of Straw

The eclipse of the public-opinion analysts and straw-vote savants, and the present discomfiture of so many celebrated political commentators and publicists seem merely to prove that the business of expertise, while frequently lucrative, is attended by the same occupational hazards as astrology, soothsaying, teacup divination and the interpretation of Tarot playing cards. It is now pretty clear that those who had undertaken to anticipate the election were suffering from an acute form of the disease that the Greeks called hubris, induced by their previous triumphs. In short, they were the victims of the same naivete and credulity upon which their authority was based.

The method of acquiring what in the approved scientific jargon is called the "control group" of statistics varies between one prognosticator and another. In the famous Literary Digest poll, which so lugubriously miscarried in the election of 1936, the control group was based upon sheer volume. For 20 years after the election of 1916, this method had seemed wholly reliable. When it failed, the failure was explained by saying that since the polling was confined to persons whose names could be taken from telephone books, it was merely representative of tendencies among the upper economic strata—that is, people able to pay telephone bills in a time of severe depression. Thus the method of compiling the control group of statistics by "representative sampling" was substituted for the method of trying to make the poll as extensive as possible. The new method assumed that as far as opinion is concerned, the whole population could be divided into categories or groups, and that ratios discoverable among a small number of persons in each group could be safely surmised for the whole group.

We should be inclined to agree with Mr. Wilfred J. Funk, last editor of the defunct Literary Digest, that "the word 'science' isn't going to be used with a poll for a long time," if we did not suspect that science itself may turn out to be just another fond superstition. There remains of course the question how Mr. Truman happened to be right when all the experts happened to be wrong. Here we venture another guess: namely, that Mr. Truman, with what was doubtless a sound earthy wisdom, put his trust in magic from the beginning, and never allowed a day to pass without sticking another pin into one of Governor Dewey's campaign posters.

The New Congress

No fact about Tuesday's election is more important than the elimination of the hiatus between the White House and Congress. Once it was clear that the Democratic Party would have majorities in both the House and Senate we suspect that a vast majority of the people hoped for a Truman victory. Election of Governor Dewey to the Presidency to work with an opposition Congress would have been a tragedy for himself as well as the country. The pulling and hauling between the executive and legislative branches over the last two years was argument enough against continuation of divided control.

In many instances the congressional victors of the Democratic Party ran ahead of President Truman. We shall long hear controversy over whether his fighting campaign carried Congress with him or the strength of the local candidates pulled him along to victory. In any event, a number of first-rate men have come into the Senate and House along with Mr. Truman's election. Men of the caliber of Representative Kefauver of Tennessee, Governor Hunt of Wyoming, former Secretary of Agriculture Anderson of New Mexico, Mayor Humphrey of Minneapolis, Paul H. Douglas of Illinois and former Senator Gillette of Iowa will add a good deal of strength to the Democratic contingent in the Senate. The Democratic Party in these various States had the good judgment to put up men of stature, and that policy has paid striking dividends.

By the same token the Republicans undoubtedly weakened their bid for public support by renominating such men as the isolationist C. Wayland Brooks in Illinois, Chapman Revercomb in West Virginia and George A. Wilson in Iowa. Some of their nominees, moreover, had been associated with scandals, notably in Illinois. It was evident that the voters in the nonpresidential contests were judging records as well as candidates aside from partisanship. Even the Republican leadership seems to acknowledge that a large body of independent voters must have been attracted by the general superiority of the Democratic senatorial candidates, although one has to remember that in Louisiana the Democrats elected the son of Huey Long to the Senate without opposition.

On the House side, most of the Republican leaders appear to have been returned, except Chairman Knutson of the Ways and Means Committee, who at the eleventh hour confessed before his constituents his mistake in voting against the Marshall Plan. The significant fact is that the Democratic Party will have an ample margin to assure control of the House. However, it must be remembered that even when the Seventy-ninth Congress was controlled by the Democrats, the President met with many reverses, and most of the leaders who then occupied key positions will be back in the saddle. Whether the President will be able to control Congress will depend, therefore, upon the degree to which Mr. Truman's victory has enhanced his prestige in Congress, as well as the leadership he shows from now on. In this connection the President would do well to pick out some of the new and old Senators of obvious worth as a sort of informal liaison group with Congress.

The victory for the Democratic Party in Congress appears to be the more sweeping because the public had been led confidently to expect a Republican triumph at least in the House. Apparently the Administration's strength in the Senate will be a little less than it was prior to the 1946 elections, but in the House it will be greater. Aside from partisan considerations, therefore, the rejoicing at this time is based chiefly upon the fact that responsibility for the conduct of the Government has once more been placed squarely on the shoulders of one party.

Dewey: Never Again

Governor Dewey's announcement that he would never again seek the Presidency or run for reelection as Governor of New York was no surprise. Two defeats for election to the Presidency following an unsuccessful bid for nomination as a candidate for President effectually close the door to achievement of his highest ambition, and would seriously handicap him for some time to come as a contender for lesser political offices. However, Governor Dewey is still a young man judged by the standards that the American people apply in determining fitness for public office. It is quite possible that in his middle years he may again be called upon to put his talents at the service of the country in an official capacity. Certainly the public will be the loser if a man with his experience and proved capacity as a brilliant prosecutor and as an administrator were to withdraw from public life and close the door to possible reentry.

For the present, of course, Governor Dewey has a full-time job at Albany and ample opportunity before his anticipated withdrawal from political life to enhance his outstanding record of achievement as New York's chief executive. That record should convince any fair-minded observer that he is not a tool of the reactionary elements within his own party, but a man who has worked for and secured progressive legislation, while maintaining his reputation as an efficient, economy-minded head of state. If Governor Dewey's achievements on behalf of war veterans, minority racial groups and public housing had been better known throughout the country, he might have made a more powerful and effective appeal to the voters of the country. The Washington Post hopes that the Republicans will not be deprived of his advice and guidance in the years to come when the party will have to face more realistically than heretofore the problems of a new era for which the political formulas and attitudes of a vanished past no longer provide solutions acceptable to a majority of the people.

Old Dominion

Despite all the anti-Truman threats that emanated from Richmond last summer, Virginia has remained a Democratic dominion, and comfortably. The margin by which President Truman won over Governor Dewey was, to be sure, less than in any recent presidential election save that of 1928, when Virginia gave its votes to Herbert Hoover. But the 1928 upset can be traced largely to a religious prejudice against Al Smith which was lacking this year.

What the Truman victory indicates is that the States' rights issues on which the Republicans relied to split the Democratic vote were largely phony issues insofar as they concerned the Virginia electorate. Despite record Virginia turnout of more than 400,000, the Dixiecrats appear to have captured only a little more than one fifth the number of votes given President Truman. Northern Virginia counties adjoining Washington plumped for Dewey, and there was a strong Republican showing in southwest Virginia, but neither of these areas could counteract the general Truman trend.

The Truman surge is a vindication of the political wisdom of old-line Virginia party men such as Senator Byrd in remaining aloof from the lures of the Dixiecrats. It also is an implied rebuke to those State Democratic leaders who toyed with the thought of denying Truman a place on the ballot. Especially it is a repudiation of the attitude of Governor Tuck, who only a month ago coyly played host to the Dixiecrat candidate, Governor Thurmond.

No one should be surprised over the sweep of Senator A. Willis Robertson. He always was the safest of the Democratic candidates, and his switch back to the regular fold after a brief flirtation with the States' rights defection undoubtedly helped to entrench him. Representative Howard W. Smith had a tougher fight in the Eighth Congressional District, barely carrying his home city of Alexandria. Basically his victory can be attributed to the fact that the Republican sweep, upon which his opponent, Tyrrell Krum, relied, did not materialize in the rural districts—plus the fact that Mr. Krum, who predicated his campaign largely on an appeal to veterans, seemed to offer little fundamental change.

Arlington County voters have cause to rejoice over the fact that the school bond issue desperately needed to supply new classrooms passed by a reassuring majority. Unquestionably it was interest in the schools that brought an unprecedented vote of nearly 22,000. Arlingtonians apparently heeded the fears that a change in the school board election date would play into the hands of the "machine." They voted down the referendum on this point as leaders in the school fight had suggested. The one anomaly is the defeat of the only county board candidate who had openly supported the school bond issue, I. Lee Potter, by the incumbent, Alfred E. Frisbee. Perhaps the voters felt that, whatever the attempts to relate the issue of better schools to the county board race, they have no logical connection. At any rate, the vote to provide more classroom facilities should convince the county board that Arlingtonians feel strongly about their schools.

Et Tu, Brute

Representative J. Parnell Thomas has refused to testify before the grand jury investigating illegal salary kickbacks in much the same manner as witnesses appearing before Mr. Thomas' own committee. In such instances Mr. Thomas and his colleagues on the Un-American Activities Committee have taken an almost gleeful revenge in citing offenders for contempt. There is no reason for the grand jury to reply in kind, especially since Mr. Thomas appeared at his own request and then apparently changed his mind on advice of counsel. If the charges of padded payrolls in his office can be substantiated, then he should be treated in the same manner as any other citizen under indictment, and, of course, Congress out of self-respect would itself have to take accompanying action. In any case, Mr. Thomas' refusal to speak on his own behalf is all the more reason for the grand jury to scrutinize carefully all the evidence that is brought before it. His evasion also leaves the distinct impression that Mr. Thomas cannot take what he dishes out.

MEASUREMENTS

In morning, early,
A wren, securely
Moored to a twig,
A bird about as big,
Feathers and all, as a fig,
Can loose such floods of song
That even the heavens tremble.

An ordinary thimble
Can hold the past.
A bee can proffer pain
A mile in length. A grain of wheat can slay, at last,
The hunger of a nation.

You cannot reckon God
By any measuring-rod.

Crow

The Washington Post has been known for some time, both among newspapermen and to its other readers, as a paper with a flair for anticipating newsworthy events as well as covering them.

It seems to have outdone itself—and as far as my reading goes, any of its Washington or out-of-town contemporaries—in its issue of November 3. The latest edition of November 3 available on downtown streets carried no less than six columns based on the assumption that a man named Dewey was going to be our next President.

Drew Pearson, Marquis Childs, the ineffable Alsops and, to a lesser extent, Malvina Lindsay were naturals. What some of us wonder was how Shirley Povich and Joe Livingston got into the act.

It was nice, too, after what had been coming over the wires and had been shouted over the air for more than 12 hours, to find a headline which referred to Dr. George Gallup as an "expert." The copyreader may have shared my New England upbringing, during which I learned that an expert was a man a long way from home.

"Fighting Irish"

I am forced to agree with D. R. H. whose letter appeared on November 1, on one point only. Irishmen do not dominate the Notre Dame line-ups, but I am sure that if you check a little deeper you will find Brennan, McGee, Sullivan and many others. To change the "label" of a school which has contributed so much to football would be a direct insult. I don't believe all the boys playing ball at Purdue are Boilermakers, Wolverines at Michigan, Generals at Washington and Lee or Terps at Maryland.

I understand that Sam Baugh is only a Redskin by trade.

JAMES E. O'REILLY.

Rogers Heights, Md.

I want to commend D. R. H. and his stand on the nickname "Irish" as applied to a football team from the Midwest. Of course he modestly didn't tell the whole story.

The "Irish" had in their lineup last week such other "phonies" as follows: Hart, Fischer, Begley, Landry, Williams, Walsh, McGehee, Martin, Fallon and Flynn. Further, I have on good authority that only through great embarrassment were the "Irish" forced to keep out of the contest such persons as Coy McGee and Terry Brennan.

But D. R. H. omitted the best argument, other football teams. For example, there is not a member of the Michigan team who does not trace his family tree to an old group of wolverines. Every member of the California team is a descendant of a famous California grizzly bear which actually was gold in color. Every loyal son of Eli would freely admit that he was of pure bulldog stock. Each member of the Southern California squad can trace his ancestry to that loyal band of Trojans that rescued fair Helen. Every local laundryman knows each member of the Redskin clan is also a member of one of the six Indian nations.

School Victory

Tuesday the voters of Arlington County approved the $4,750,000 school bond issue. This action is largely the result of the excellent coverage given by your paper to the need for increased school facilities in our community.

May I extend the thanks of the Coordinating Council for the Arlington School Bond Campaign to The Washington Post for the public service you have rendered in bringing these facts before the people.

ROLLAND W. STOEBE,
Chairman, Coordinating Council for the Arlington School Bond Campaign.

Carrier Bases

At the conclusion of his article on October 28, Mr. John Norris states, "Some Air Force officials are known to feel that carriers are very vulnerable."

The above statement is most interesting when contrasted with the views of many high Navy officials. They feel very strongly that the submarine is more of a menace to our land-based Air Force than to fast carriers.

Both Mr. Symington and General Spaatz have stated that we must have overseas bases if our land-based air force is to be effective, and that attacks based on this continent "would not be decisive." The required overseas bases must be established and supplied by ship. It is obvious that a 10-knot cargo ship is far more vulnerable to subs than a 30-knot aircraft carrier.

It then follows that if carriers are too vulnerable to operate, the Air Force should put forth a major effort in obtaining fighters to defend our homes and our cities, rather than concentrating so much effort on slow, long-range bombers.

Let us not forget that we have probably several billion dollars invested in aircraft carriers—bases that are built, paid for, and ready for an emergency. It would seem most unwise to toss aside this tremendous investment on the basis of statements made by people who do not know the potentialities of sea-based aviation.

Truman's Leadership

At home the three years of Truman's Presidency were years of fears and great problems.

Truman was big enough, despite complex world forces, to produce for the American people the greatest prosperity in any three peacetime years of any nation in the history of the world.

The national, net "take home" average per capita income in these three years, 1945-6-7 was $719 or $2662, for the average family of 3.8 persons. This was 40 per cent more than $507 net per capita income in the next highest three peacetime years of 1938-9-40 in the Roosevelt Administration, or $735 more, for the average family. It was 35 per cent more than the $530 net per capita income in the most prosperous Republican three years of 1927-8-9, or a total of $522 more for the average family.

From October, 1947, when Truman asked the Republican Congress for laws to stop price increases in cost of living, to May 15, 1948, those increases have cost the people nearly four billion dollars if they bought the same amount of goods and services as they did in 1947, 164.4 billion dollars. At May 15 prices, if maintained, they will cost the people 11 billion dollars in the coming year, or over twice the Republican tax reduction.

Truman and Roosevelt were both big enough not to measure taxes halfway, that is by how much people pay instead of also by how much return they get. They knew how to use the people's money and bring them back $4 for every $1 they used and interest on the $1 to boot. In the seven Democratic peacetime years, 1933-40, following the depression, aggregate increases in the Federal taxes and debt over 1933 were 43 billion dollars. In return they brought the people aggregate increases in incomes of 189.9 billion dollars—profits to the people of $4.41 for every $1 spent.

In Roosevelt's three best peacetime years, 1938-9-40, all Federal taxes combined were 21.9 billion dollars, and the net take-home income of the average family was $1927. In the Truman three years, 1945-6-7, combined taxes were 131.6 billions, or 600 per cent higher; consumers' prices were 42.1 per cent higher and yet the net family income was $2262, or the $735 increase already cited.

Truman has stopped Russia in Iran, Korea, Austria, Germany and Turkey. He won a decisive victory in Italy. He is winning in Greece. And he has helped France and all western Europe to hold out.

In Japan today he has established the most permanent and happy peace with a great enemy. And he has done it through a great Republican.

He has inaugurated the European Recovery Program, the biggest international economic enterprise in the world's history. And he gave credit to his Secretary of State by calling it the "Marshall Plan."

In these world achievements, he is big enough and right enough that the majority of the whole Republican Party in Congress has followed him and is following him today. Their cooperation is commendable and a credit to them. Nevertheless it is cooperation in Truman leadership and the establishment of the Truman Doctrine.

None of this is wholesale praise. Apparently he has failed to get along with some of his Democratic friends in Congress. He has failed to get the people informed of his own results. He has some subordinates not big enough to get the big results he wants.

But these faults and failures added together are a puny pittance compared to just one of the things that has come with his lonely fight. That is that in his term of office there has come to Americans the greatest abundance of material good things that ever came in years of peace to any people on earth.

Washington Calling

Truman's Sweep

WE WERE wrong, all of us, completely and entirely, the commentators, the political editors, the politicians—except for Harry S. Truman. And no one believed him.

The fatal flaw was reliance on the public opinion polls. No amount of rationalization ever can explain away this mistake by Gallup, Roper & Co. It is nearly as complete and disastrous as the fiasco of 1936 when the Literary Digest poll predicted the election of Alf Landon over Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The only person I know of in the so-called expert class who came close to predicting the outcome—besides President Truman—was Jack Kroll, director of the CIO's Political Action Committee. He was saying, privately at least, that the election would be so close it would be thrown into the House of Representatives.

Similarly in Michigan, where the "political experts" were predicting an overwhelming Dewey sweep, key individuals in the United Auto Workers Union were aware of a groundswell that might bring a result entirely different from the one so widely predicted. The quiet, intensive work of CIO and AFL had as much to do with the outcome as any external factor.

But in spite of the flood of rationalization there is only one real reason—Truman. He did it almost single-handedly with an endurance and a persistence rarely matched in American politics.

A FEW assistants do, however, deserve special commendation. One is Undersecretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman. Chapman was far and away the ablest lieutenant in the strategy field.

During the weeks when the fight seemed so hopeless, he was advance man for the Truman road show. His tireless work with politicians and labor leaders at the grass roots had not a little to do with the huge and friendly crowds that turned out to listen to the President everywhere.

Chapman, a New Dealer of integrity and conviction who remained loyal to his party in adversity, has proved himself one of the most astute and knowledgeable politicians in the country. But even Chapman, sitting close to the flow of intelligence from out in the country, recognizing the shift in opinion taking place in the closing weeks, could hardly bring himself to believe it was sufficient to mean an upset.

Another who deserves commendation is Harold L. Ickes, the old curmudgeon. In the closing days he added the salt savor of lusty humor to what had been a dull campaign. He should now return to the Truman Administration, which is in sore need of men of conviction and capacity.

Perhaps it gets down to the old political axiom: You can't beat something with nothing. Dewey and his famous team of efficiency experts tried to hold the needle as nearly as possible on the neutral mark. Only in the vaguest and most general terms did the Republican candidate discuss the issues before the country. He chose to assume that a rich, ripe air of victory would induce the reality.

IN MY OPINION he was less inclined than many of those around him to underestimate the Democratic threat. This was indicated in a private talk I had with him on his campaign train two weeks before the election.

I had said to him that many observers were of the belief that even if Truman had begun on September 1 with the headstart, as shown by the polls, the Republican candidate had, the advantage would have been fumbled away. Dewey challenged this at once, expressing his view that the voters of the country had been educated to vote Democratic and that his formidable task was to persuade a sufficient number to switch to the Republican side.

He had to try to do this against the dead weight of his own party. With Senator Taft telling Southern bourbons they were just like the Republicans and under the forbidding stare of reactionaries and covetous spoilsmen, he could not have taken a clear and positive line even if he had been so minded.

What is startlingly revealed is the way in which the Republican Party is removed from the realities of present-day American life. The information brought to Dewey from out in the country was completely wrong. It is today a party in bankruptcy. What its fire sale value may be only the distant future can tell. The measure of its complacency and ignorance was that a charming Philadelphia stuffed shirt named Hugh Scott could be chosen national chairman.

This should be for many a chastening experience. And as the jubilation ends, it should be chastening for the victors as well as the vanquished. To live up to this political miracle will take a lot of doing.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Have A Drumstick

THERE IS only one question on which professional politicians, poll-takers, political reporters and other wiseacres and prognosticators can any longer speak with much authority. That is how they want their crow cooked. These particular reporters prefer their crow fricasseed.

With this preface, it is interesting to speculate on the triumphant reelection of President Harry S. Truman in the face of the universal belief that he was a beaten man before the balloting started. An explanation is at least strongly suggested by the vote for the four presidential candidates, plus the votes for candidates for Congress. The people of the United States are considerably further to the left than had been supposed. The facts to support this conclusion can be summarized very easily.

First, anyone who paid much attention to what Truman said must have been astonished to observe that his campaign speeches were consistently more aggressive and more radical than any Franklin Delano Roosevelt ever uttered. At his hottest and angriest, Roosevelt never laid into big business as Truman did. Nor did Roosevelt ever promise specific reforms, well beyond any currently popular with other politicians, as Truman did.

Second, the record of the Eightieth Congress was beyond doubt Truman's greatest strength. In the farm States, he could and did point to such phenomena as the Republican Senators and Representatives undercutting the Rural Electrification Administration at the behest of the power lobby. In the great urban areas, he could and did point to the Taft-Hartley Act. His huge audiences did not seem to listen very carefully at the time. But these points of Truman's meant pork chops to the farmers and workers; the farmers and workers evidently went home and thought about it and decided that a vote for Truman would be the best safeguard of their interests.

THIRD, the Republican conservatism of the great Midwestern farming area, which has been an accepted fact in all recent American political calculation, is a fact no longer. Truman had to carry several States in this area in order to counter-balance his loss of New York and the Dixiecrat territory. He carried them handily.

No one can any longer talk with pompous certainty about "isolationist, stand-pat Iowa." The voters in these States were not going to the polls in the mood of the sheriff-chasing mortage-burning farmers of the '30s. A good many of them could, if they chose, have flown in to cast their ballots in their private airplanes. Yet they voted for the Democrats just the same.

There may be something to the argument that the prevailing prosperity was a great help to the Ins and an obstacle to the Outs. But it is outrageously patronizing to assume that the electorate did not understand the issues involved in this election.

Furthermore, there is ample proof that the voters knew exactly what they wanted. Without exception, the senatorial candidates of true Eightieth Congress flavor—the brassy Brooks of Illinois, Ball of Minnesota, Wilson of Iowa, Robertson of Wyoming and the Neanderthal Revercomb of West Virginia—ran badly behind Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. In these States Dewey was undoubtedly preferred, as being relatively modern-minded. On the other hand Dewey trailed the more progressive Cooper of Kentucky, who was unfortunately beaten by a small margin, and Saltonstall of Massachusetts, who won. All these returns, together with the ridiculously small vote for the pathetic Henry A. Wallace, make a perfectly clear picture of the voters' political viewpoint.

ONLY ONE or two of the Republican isolationist-reactionaries sensed the voters' viewpoint before balloting. One such was the great tax-cutter, Harold Knutson of Minnesota, who listened to the wind in the grass roots of his supposedly rock-ribbed isolationist Republican district, and loudly announced his last-minute conversion to the Marshall Plan a few days before November 2. Those who could not grasp what the voters wanted before November 2, however, must at least be able to do so now. The brand of domestic policy peddled by the National Association of Manufacturers, and the brand of foreign policy offered by Col. Robert R. McCormick, may now be officially considered to have about as much political appeal as red-hot vegetarianism.

This is the answer, of course, to those blind extremists in the Republican Party who are now muttering that the whole business was the fault of Thomas E. Dewey and his "high level" campaign. Governor Dewey could only have come to hard grips with President Truman by talking like Senators Brooks, Revercomb & Co. In that case, the figures say that he would have been far worse beaten than he was. Dewey took the best line he could have taken, to escape the onus of the Eightieth Congress record. The Eightieth Congress record, which was Truman's central campaign issue, was a handicap Dewey could not overcome.

As to what will now ensue, these reporters, feeling somewhat replete after one heavy meal of crow, are not prepared to make forecasts. President Truman returns to the White House owing no individual anything except grudges. He owes much to the American people collectively. But the labor leaders did not want him, the political leaders tried to get rid of him, the Democratic contributors almost unanimously dried up on him, and the press patronized and discounted him. Even within his own Administration, there are those whose support he must regard as having been strikingly lukewarm. The question is whether he will now proceed to pay off the unfaithfuls, or will concentrate on the vast responsibility he has courageously won again.

'Virus' Found To Produce Rat Cancers

Accidental discovery of a virus that produces cancer in mammals was reported yesterday to researchers of National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., by a Japanese pathologist.

The claim, if substantiated, would set up a firm base for intensified research and would greatly speed laboratory work toward finding cancer's cause and cure, cancer experts agree.

Reporting out his findings personally, Dr. Ryojun Kinoshita, professor of pathology and chief of cancer research at Osaka University Medical School, Japan, told of producing cancer tumors in rats in one week. Present laboratory methods require up to a full year, it was said.

Stomach Fluid Used

The pathologist said he uses a stomach fluid which forms in cancerous rats after their injection with potassium arsenite. Even with the best filters, he said, he has been unable to block off the cancer-producing organisms in the fluid. He said it was "logical" to assume the agent was a virus.

Cancer has often been claimed and disclaimed to be a virus disease, transmissible by unknown means. The fact that it is neither contagious nor infectious by presently known carriers has been used largely to disprove virus as its source.

Dr. Kinochita's most exciting news to many in his audience was his claim of inducing cancer in rats in so short a time. If true, they said, cancer researchers could experiment freely with assurance of a continuing supply of infected animals.

They pointed out that present laboratory means of inducing cancer in mammals is long, laborious and uncertain.

Additional Testings Needed

As to his report that testings showed that the organism was a virus, they said additional testings were needed. They pointed out that the pathologist, himself, said he had positive reactions from only two serums of seven batches run through cell-blocking filters.

It is possible, NCI researchers said, that the filtration was faulty in both instances.

Dr. Kinoshita, recognized as a cancer authority even by those who asked more proof, said discovery of the cancer-potent stomach fluid was "a laboratory accident." It was observed, he said, in the stomach of a rat that had already developed a cancer tumor induced by routine injection of a carcinogenic substance.

By some laboratory slip-up, he said, the cancerous rat was given an injection of the potassium arsenite. Studying effects of the accidental injection, the pathologist said, it was noted that the stomach fluid (not found in other similarly cancerous rats) had formed.

The fluid was experimentally injected into healthy rats, and within a week they developed symptoms of cancer, he said. Apparently it's an unending chain, he said, since rats made cancerous by the fluid can be made to produce a similar stomach fluid before their death.

Dr. Kinoshita did not claim that he had isolated a cancer virus. He claimed only to have demonstrated that the fluid contains something as yet unrecognizable that defies filtration and produces cancer.

Study of the filtered fluid under the electron microscope, he said, has revealed "several suspicious forms."

Dr. Kinoshita was invited to report his findings to the NCI researchers yesterday, NCI spokesmen said. He recently arrived in the United States from Japan on invitation to give details of his cancer work to the annual meeting of the American Cancer Society in New York. He is scheduled to speak before the society on Sunday night, friends said.

Cancer Expert Hits Doctors' Interest Lag

New York, Nov. 4 (NYHT)—An authority on cancer said here today that "physicians are not as alert to cancer as the general public is becoming." For this reason, he said, a major portion of the American Cancer Society's education program will be directed at physicians next year.

The authority, Dr. Edwin P. Lehman, president of the society and professor at the University of Virginia, spoke at the opening of the society's four-day annual meeting here.

Dr. Lehman said cancer research is turning up "an extraordinary number of fascinating new observations, any one of which may have its bearing on the ultimate solution of the problem.

"It can be said without ekuivocation that there are alive today numbers of patients who would not have been alive were it not for some of these new facts that are being discovered," he said.

Tonight Dr. James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard University, said that "If this Nation wants scientific progress, university careers should be made as attractive as possible," with excellent opportunities for doing the kind of scientific work the scientist wants to do at any time. "He should have the maximum of flexibility in his plan and the minimum of obligations for a project or a program."

U. S., New Zealand Make Legations Embassies

The United States and New Zealand will raise their legations in Welington and Washington to embassy rank, the White House announced yesterday.

Robert M. Scotten, who has been Minister to New Zealand since April, will become an Ambassador. The New Zealand government has named Sir Carl Berendsen as first Ambassador to this country. He has been Minister since 1944.

Historic Sites Council Plans To Ask Charter

The National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings will seek a charter for a national trust from the next Congress, it was decided yesterday.

The organization, opening a two-day annual meeting in the National Gallery of Fine Arts, proposed the national trust be chartered as a quasi-public agency for "preservation and interpretation of sites and structures significant in American history and culture."

While the trust should be concerned primarily with historical properties, it also should be authorized to assist in the temporary preservation of scenic sites in jeopardy by accepting them temporarily, "pending further disposition into sympathetic hands," according to the proposal.

Report Submitted

The proposal was embodied in a report submitted by a committee headed by H. Alexander Smith, jr., of Baltimore, and adopted by the approximately hundred member historians, architects, archaeologists, geographers, city planners, archivists and antiquarians attending the meeting.

The report cited as precedents in the United States, operating in different fields, the Smithsonian Institution, National Academy of Sciences, American Historical Association and American Red Cross. The National Trust for Places of Historic Interest or Natural Beauty, operating in England, and similar foreign organizations were cited as precedents in the same field.

Pending receipt of a charter, the executive board of the National Council is instructed to act as an emergency operating committee to receive in the name of the proposed national trust gifts or properties fulfilling the requirements of the trust.

The meeting was keynoted by David E. Finley, National Gallery of Art director, who said the preservation of the American heritage of freedom and culture is of vital importance "at this time when America and everything she stands for is under attack." He added:

"In the art museums our people are brought into direct contact with the greatest works of art. In the historical field, however, much still remains to be done."

Points Out Williamsburg

After pointing to Williamsburg and other architectural and historical monuments that have been preserved, Finley said: "But these monuments are few and far apart, while Americans in fast moving motor cars, with time on their hands and nowhere to go, crowd the roads and look eagerly for instruction as well as entertainment."

Newton B. Drury, director of the National Park Service, told delegates that the proposed national trust would "take a load off the Federal Government" and "meet a real public need."

Guy Stanton Ford, historian and former president of the University of Minnesota, in a report on criteria to be used in selecting historic sites and buildings, indicated that historic sites relating to events or persons within the past 50 years would not as a rule be eligible, and that it was desirable that the project "have a place in national, State, or regional plans."

As an example of the need for a national trust, George M. Morris, president of the Woodlawn Public Foundation, Inc., spoke briefly on Woodlawn, an estate associated with George Washington who sketched the first plans for it. The foundation is seeking funds to purchase Woodlawn for a public monument.

Bonnet Praises Plans

Speaking at the National Council's dinner in the Hotel Statler last night, Ambassador Henri Bonnet of France praised plans for a national trust.

"It is a sign of civilization to take pride in preserving historic monuments belonging to your common heritage," he said.

He described the work of the historical monuments service in France, where more than 20,000 sites and monuments are classified as worthy of preservation and about 15,000 other buildings and sites are classified in a separate category as worthy of protection.

Also speaking at the dinner, at which Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, III, presided as president of the National Council, were Clarence D. Maginnis, an architect, and Miss Nancy V. McClelland, an interior decorator, both of New York.

Jury Cuts 1000 Art Works to 19 for Exhibit

Only 19 out of 1000 works of art submitted were picked by a three-man jury this week as worthy of the Corcoran Art Gallery's third annual exhibit of Artists of Washington and Vicinity.

But gallery officials said yesterday that "considerable enlargement" of the exhibit, which opens November 20, is planned, after complaints of local art groups.

"We stand behind the jury for what they did," Gallery Director Hermann W. Williams, jr., said, but he stated that the enlargement "by popular demand" had definitely been decided upon.

Williams said a "mutually satisfactory" agreement was reached in a meeting yesterday between representatives of three local art groups and Corcoran officials, after earlier complaints by the presidents of the three groups that "the action of the jury was too drastic."

The art groups felt that "a logical average of at least 100 out of 1000" works were worth showing, Williams said.

Jurors chose the 19 works from 1000 items submitted by artists within a 50-mile radius of the District. Last year, the exhibit included 178 works chosen from about 800 submitted items, and in 1946 the show included 126 pieces from about 800 works submitted.

Willis F. Woods, assistant to the director of Corcoran Gallery; Miss Dorothy Grafly, Philadelphia art critic, and Walter Stuempfig, jr., Philadelphia artist, were members of the jury.

This year's jury was chosen by Corcoran officials from names submitted by artist members of Corcoran Gallery, according to Woods.

Decision Upheld

Court Backs Theater on Negro Ban

The Municipal Court of Appeals yesterday upheld the right of the old National Theater to refuse admittance to Negroes.

In a unanimous opinion, the court upheld a lower court's action in dismissing a suit brought against the theater by E. B. Henderson, Arlington. It also ruled that the lower court had jurisdiction, although this point was not denied by the appellants.

Henderson had sued to collect a $500 penalty prescribed in the Civil Rights Act for violation of the statute which outlawed racial segregation. This act was later held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

In its opinion, the Appellate Court held there is no reason to believe that the Supreme Court today would reverse a past decision on the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Act.

Attorneys James A. Cobb, George E. C. Hayes and Leon A. Ransom representing Henderson argued that in the light of the anticovenant and similar decisions the high court today would probably hold by the Civil Rights Act.

The appellants also argued that, while the act was held unconstitutional, it could be construed as constitutional as far as the District of Columbia was concerned.

In affirming the lower court's decision, the Appeals Court held that "it is well established that when a court is confronted with a statute the presumption is strongly in favor of its constitutionality. However, we believe that after the Supreme Court has spoken the presumption should be to the contrary."

The court also held that the case which resulted in the nullification of the Civil Rights Act "did not turn on the question of public policy, as did the recent restrictive covenant cases, . . ."

The opinion was concurred in by Chief Judge Nathan Cayton and Judges Bryce Clagett and Andrew M. Hood.

Attorneys James M. Proctor jr. and Robert E. Kline jr., represented the National Theater.

Mount Vernon Shrubs Sent to British Rulers

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Four magnolia shrubs from George Washington's Mount Vernon, Va., home were en route by planes today to Buckingham Palace, London.

The 2-feet-high plants are the gift of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

The royal couple expressed interest in the plants when they visited Washington's home in 1933, but because of quarantine restrictions and the war their shipment abroad was held up.

Bishop Oxnam Denounces Segregation

"It is intolerable that anyone should be excluded because of his race or color from any Christian place of worship," Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam declared here last night.

Speaking at an interdenominational mission rally at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., he also denounced the fact that there were halls in Washington where a Negro cannot appear on the stage.

The New York Bishop stated that there is a trend today away from selfish nationalism to intelligent internationalism and added that men and women in the world are resolved to end war so their sons may give their lives to creative service.

Declaring that we face a "crisis filled with opportunity," he said power must be brought under democratic control and justice established by the democratic process.

He called upon the church to heal its division and regain its contact with reality, to deal realistically with the problems of hunger and poverty in the world.

Mrs. Paul Moser, a member of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, told the meeting that if war comes again, it will be because the church in America is "to complacent and too indifferent" to see its opportunities.

Mrs. Moser, who toured the Philippines and Siam after the war, asserted that we can have one world if we want it, but that we cannot get it through war or the work of diplomats.

"We can achieve one world," she said, "if we are willing to send out across this world men and women of good will—men and women who have the love of God in their hearts and who have in their hands food and clothing, books and medicine, and the implements of agriculture," she continued. "If we don't do it, if we fail to build one world, if war comes again, it will be because the church in America is just too complacent and too indifferent to see the opportunities that God is putting into our hands today."

The rally was one of 26 regional missionary advance meetings sponsored by the American Board of Foreign Missions.

Denominational meetings by many groups preceded the rally at Calvary Church.

Baptists, Congregational Christians and Methodists will hold the second day of their two-day missions conference today.

Iran Protests Reds

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 4 (AP).—A usually reliable source said today Iran has protested to Russia that Soviet soldiers invaded Iranian territory last week. The report was not officially confirmed.

Postlude

Two French Artists Show Mastery

France has sent America two more uniquely great artists.

Pierre Bernac, baritone, and Francis Poulenc, composer and pianist, made their initial appearance in the United States last night when they opened this year's concerts of the Friends of Music of Dumbarton Oaks

In the Renaissance music room of Harvard University's beautiful estate in Georgetown, the singer and the creative artist were as one in a program indescribable in its penetrating effect. Bernac is a mature singer, vocally polished, and an artist of rare distinction. To hear him sing Schubert, Debussy, Lully, or Poulenc, is to know that you are in the presence of yet another of that small group of mastersingers.

Poulenc, two of whose cycles of songs completed the program, plays music on the piano with the authority of one who understands the proper function of the art, and has mastered both its origin and its outer expression.

The range of mood covered in Poulenc's set of songs, "Tel jour telle nuit," was matched by the breadth of Bernac's insight. The addition of "C" as an encore gave the evening its deepest moment, touching something of that same profundity that filled Schubert's "Doppelgaenger."

America will be wise to listen to these artists as often as they sing and play here. Their equals are too few, their art supreme.

80th Congress Poor, GOP Winner Agrees

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 4 (AP).—Republican Gov. Ernest W. Gibson, who won reelection handily Tuesday, said today he believed a change of Republican leadership in the United States House of Representatives is indicated.

The young Governor, who led his ticket, said in a statement:

"As far as the Republican Party is concerned, I believe that the Republican leadership in the House of Representatives in the Eightieth Congress was very vulnerable, was successfully attacked and was one of the reasons for the Democratic victory."

"It would seem to me that a change in such leadership is indicated," he added.

Prince Georges Group Gets Invitation

The question of affiliating with a newly-organized county group opposed to un-Americanism was referred by the Prince Georges County Civic Federation last night to its member bodies.

The group had been invited to send three delegates to the Prince Georges County Association Against Un-Americanism, sponsored by the county's Lions Club.

Also referred to the member units was a proposal to seek double shifts in county schools to avoid the necessity for higher taxes for the construction of new schools.

The meeting was held at the County Service Building, Hyattsville.

Miss Truman Offered Tour

London, Nov. 4 (U.P.)—President Truman's daughter, Margarett, was offered a two-year contract today to make a singing tour of Britain. Lynfor-Joel Promotions cabled her a proposal for a series of concerts here in 1949-1950.

Several Thousand Murderers Undetected Yearly, AMA Says

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—To the axiom, "you can't get away with murder," the American Medical Association rebuts:

"Several thousand do each year."

And it puts full blame on the coroner's offices in most cases.

It's simply that coroner's offices often don't recognize a murder victim when they see one, the Journal of the AMA said in an editorial.

"In most States the coroner's office is so incompetent in the acquisition and interpretion of medical facts that only when murders have been witnessed or when bodies bear wounds regarded as being obviously homicidal are the deaths likely to be reported as murders," the journal said.

One death of each five in the United States—approximately 300,000 each year—is known or suspected to have resulted from violence or occurred unexpectedly from obscure causes.

"In regions where competent medical investigations of such deaths are conducted, in 10 per cent to 20 per cent of all murders, the crime appears to be unwitnessed and the body does not display external wounds that can be regarded as indicative of homicide."

Unemployed Metal Worker Commits Suicide by Hanging

Oscar Wennberg, 68, was found hanging from a closet door on the second floor of his home, 1502 17th st. nw., yesterday by a roomer.

A certificate of suicide was issued by District Coroner A. McGruder MacDonald.

A piece of sash cord was knotted about Wennberg's neck, strung over the door and looped around the door knob, police said.

A note addressed to the roomer, Ralph W. Long, 36, said Wennberg could not continue living, police said.

Wennberg, a metal worker, had been unemployed for about six months because of poor health, and had been despondent since the death of his wife three weeks ago, Long told police.

Wennberg came to this country from Sweden about 25 years ago, police learned. He bought the house on 17th st. several years ago. Long said he knew of no relatives.

Board to Study Prison Rules

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—A study is to be made of State Board of Correction regulations on hearings of disciplinary charges against prisoners.

A four-man commission has been appointed to make the study as the result of a complaint filed in the Baltimore Criminal Court by a penitentiary prisoner.

He charged that a "court" at the prison imposed improper punishment for infractions of prison rules. The board then requested the naming of the commission.

Selected for the commission by various bar associations, the attorney general and the Criminal Justice Commission were:

Frederick Philip Steiff of Baltimore, representing the Justice Commission; Judge William A. Huster of Cumberland, representing the Maryland State Bar Association; Joseph D. Buscher, special assistant attorney general.

PARDON the pro and con, BUT. Wednesday night when the new Club Cairo show opened we saw something we haven't seen for many columns. Al Schenck, the star and comic of the show, had not one, not, but gosh knows how many hecklers, would be comics or whatever you prefer to call the sort who love to help comics with their routines. We'd like to give you a little of both sides of the story, the public's side first.

It was the night after election (a subject better forgotten where we're concerned) and lots of the people were out celebrating. They were feeling in a gay mood and wanted someone to kid with or in a rather deflated mood and didn't think anyone was the least bit funny. At any rate a few quips were thrown by one or two wits and when Al answered back it only seemed to egg them on. He ran through the better part of his routine before the audience was willing to give him a hand that sounded genuine. Most left the club with no hard feelings.

Now for Al's side. A comic works hard digging up laugh material and rehearsing it. If he's not enough of a natural wit he goes out and pays a writer to work up a new routine or joke. He tries to keep his material fresh and all in all works pretty hard. Nothing gives him a greater kick than to have the audience laugh at one of his jokes, and prolonged applause sounds as good as gold tinkling into a coffer. In other words, these people take their work very seriously and when someone interferes with their job they take a dim view of the whole thing. We can only say that if they wanted a partner in the act they'd probably go out and hire one.

The little chit-chat of Al Schenk vs. the public wasn't the only new thing we saw Wednesday night. The team of Tullah and Miy had our eyes popping. They're booked as exotic dancers. Ye Gods, man, how exotic can you get? They wear costumes that remind us of the uncensored version of an Arabian nights tale. Their rhythm is superb, right down to the last moment when one of the sisters gets down on the floor and fairly wriggles across it. The men with their wives present didn't applaud much, but if you think they didn't enjoy it you have three free guesses coming.

Joyce Aimes, who used to fill in for the band at the Cairo last year, is back with a feature spot in the show, looking as sultry as ever. She was booked in last year for a very short stay and wound up with a three-month engagement. Her songs and accordion playing were good for several encores.

Winn Seeley, the tapster who's played several spots in town before, is back again with new routines and short hair. Winn, we think the routines are swell.

JUST an afterthought: Some of the voters weren't the only ones surprised by the results of the election. Both Normandy Farm and Water Gate Inn were booked full with Republican victory dinners for the next couple of days.

Brook Farm has had a few amazed customers lately. Lady Anez has set up shop with her crystal. As you know, she spent some time at Normandy Farm, where she was somewhat of a favorite. Among the list of notables she has peeped into the future for is Mrs. F. D. R. Perhaps they were looking for a subject for "My Day."

That 'Chi Chi' girl, Rose Murphy, will breeze back into town tonight for a short stay at Club Bali. Rose played to packed houses last time she visited here.

Billy Eckstine is doing his singing in Duke Ellington's new club. Billy found himself hooked to a star when he made his famous "Skylark" record some years back. The record outsold those made by both Glenn Miller and Bing Crosby, both of whom are no mean competition.

Marion Black, who's tickling the Steinway in the Neptune room, wrote a song some time back. Just a couple of weeks ago Arthur Godfrey played it on his network show. According to her press agent the song brought a flood of letters from the listening audience. But she still hasn't talked a publisher into printing it, which might be another case of unrecognized talent.

The Lotus brought in a touch of vaudeville last night in the form of Ladd Lyon. He's billed as "Lessons in Levity," which means that he picks a few people from the audience, brings them up on the stage and tries to teach them some of his stunts. Also good for gals who want to lose weight.

They're mighty good folks to have around...

These four good people have worked for this company a total of 93 years. The average for all 28,000 Esso Standard Oil workers today is almost 14 years with the company!

In a time like this, workers like these are mighty good ones to have on the job—good not just for the company, but also for you.

Their extra measure of skill, experience and job loyalty is setting amazing records in production to help meet an all-time record high demand for gasoline and heating oil and other products.

One reason these extra-good workers are here today is simply the extra-good jobs they have at Esso Standard.

Over 30 years ago, the company set up an unusual "good jobs policy." It was based on the belief that better jobs would mean better workers, and that would mean a better company.

*Since then, with our workers, we have developed plans which give every Esso Standard worker such job advantages as these: uniformly good wage scales . . . vacations with pay . . . special benefits in case of sickness or accidents . . . chance to advance in the company . . . cash savings in a Thrift Plan . . . fair treatment at all job levels . . . and planned retirement with steady income assured for life.

All this was done as a matter of good business. It has given good business results. Not a strike or major work disturbance in over 30 years. Steady, skillful workers on the job. Records in production when the country needs record supply of product. Yes . . . they're mighty good folks to have around, from your point of view and from ours!

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Correction of GOP Congress 'Blunders' Is Task for New One

The new Democratic-dominated Congress will be asked to correct what proved to be the political blunders of the fading Republican-controlled "worst" Congress.

In his attacks on Congress, the President placed himself squarely on record for these changes, among others, that will affect the jobs of tens of thousands of Federal workers:

MONEYWISE, Mr. Truman can be expected to ask the new Congress to provide several billion dollars in supplementary appropriations to Federal agencies. During this calendar year, the President recommended to Congress that it appropriate a total of $39,866,000,000. Instead, the Congress approved only $34,620,000,000.

So, if was expected as late as September 1 that the new Congress would be asked to supply $3,567,000,000 in additional funds. However, the sum could be substantially greater or smaller by January, depending on the international outlook.

USES: The President wants the United States Employment Service back in the Labor Department. And he's committed to the strengthening and rebuilding of that agency, which has been gutted by GOP measures.

Mr. Truman took the hide off Congress in a message that accompanied his veto of the labor appropriation bill because it carried a rider that ordered the transfer of USES to the Federal Security Agency. The rider was passed over his veto, one of the five times it took place this year, a record.

WAA: The President is opposed to the law forced through by Congress to liquidate War Assets Administration and divide its functions between several other agencies no later than February 28. It's a safe bet he will ask Congress to repeal that law.

In the spring, Mr. Truman, in a message to the Congress, urged that WAA be transferred to the Federal Works Agency along with Treasury's Bureau of Federal Supply. Presumably, he will renew this request to the new Congress, but there is a feeling in WAA that the agency can liquidate faster in its present form.

RECLAMATION: It seems to be agreed that the Taber hamstringing of Interior's Reclamation Service made a lot of Democratic votes in the West. The President even asked the brief special session of Congress to untie the knots. It's a cinch he'll renew his plea to the new Congress. Mr. Truman is on record for these changes in the present Reclamation appropriation act:

1. Repeal of the rider that limits to 48 million dollars the amount of money that can be spent for salaries. It has already caused the layoff of upward of 3500 Reclamation workers, a few in this city;

2. The President described as an "invasion of his executive powers" the rider that would force both Reclamation Commissioner Mike Straus and Richard L. Boke, a regional director, from their jobs as of February 1 because they aren't engineers;

3. Repeal of the private-power instigated rider that prohibits the bureau from spending money to build transmission lines from its public power plants, and finally,

4. That the bureau be given upward of 40 million dollars in new funds so it can move ahead on power projects that were crippled by the Congress.

HOUSING: The President reluctantly signed into law what he called the "teeny-weeny" housing bill, but he lectured Congress because it failed to include slum clearance, urban development, and farm housing. We would have far larger housing agencies if these projects were approved by the new Congress.

SOCIAL SECURITY: The President pasted Congress with a veto of a bill that took 750,000 news vendors and salesmen out of the Social Security system. The Congress promptly passed it over his veto. He's sure to return with a bill that would put these people and many more under Social Security.

DISPLACED PERSONS: The President called the law that set up the Displaced Persons Commission a "rank injustice" and he called for its correction at the "first opportunity." He also requested additional funds for this new agency, which the Republicans denied.

TAFT-HARTLEY: The President vetoed the Taft-Hartley Labor Act. Again, it was passed over his objections. The new Congress won't have the 130 members who voted to override this veto.

WAR CLAIMS COMMISSION: This agency was set up by the Congress to pass on claims against the Government growing out of the war. But again the Republicans refused to appropriate funds to permit it to operate. The President is sure to renew his request.

AEC: The President lashed Congress for forcing through a bill that continued the terms of the five members of the Atomic Energy Commission for two years.

FEDERAL PAY: He signed the July 1 pay raise bill reluctantly, describing it as inadequate and inequitable. The President emphasized that the classified employes of the District government had been ignored in the legislation along with Federal executives.

VETOES: Other bills that the repudiated Congress passed over Truman's vetoes were the Knutson Tax Reduction Act and the Bulwinkle Act which exempted railroads from some parts of the Anti-trust Act.

More School Buildings Needed Here, Strayer Says

Congressional Survey Director Promises Constructive Report On D. C. System

Dr. George D. Strayer, director of the $100,000 Congressional authorized survey of District public schools, declared last night that there is a need here for a school building program.

He told an overflow audience of school teachers and officers at the Departmental Auditorium that a building program is necessary to eliminate part-time attendance, provide for increasing population in some sections and "for more adequate school accomodations for pupils now housed in buildings that no longer ought to be continued in use."

His speech was one of a series to be given by members of the staff for the benefit of local teachers.

Salaries Under Study

Speaking only in general terms about the survey, results of which are to be kept secret until presented to Congress, Dr. Strayer said his report will be "a constructive program for the development of the public school system."

He told the teachers the survey is concerned with their problems and mentioned salaries and sick leave among those of primary importance.

"A thorough-going inquiry" will be made into the cost of running the local school system and comparisons will be made with other cities," he said.

Dr. Strayer earlier in the day told reporters that he expected to have his report on school buildings ready by the middle of December and a complete report by the first of March.

Report Date Uncertain

Change in the control of Congress may affect the report dates, he said. Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho), chairman of the Senate subcommittee in charge of the District budget, who was instrumental in having the survey made, was defeated for re-election.

Dr. Strayer gave the teachers an idea of what his report may propose when in his speech he outlined the kind of education he favors.

Elementary schools are not failing to teach the three Rs, but they are neglecting to provide adequate health, counseling and guidance programs, he said.

Speaking of secondary education, Dr. Strayer said that while schools may be proud of the large numbers of students enrolled, it also should be pointed out "a very considerable portion of all youth find little meaning in the program of studies."

Vocational Training Stressed

He stressed the need for additional programs of vocational education and for training pupils in "some salable skill."

Beyond high school, he proposed two years of advanced studies for "a large number of boys and girls," based on vocational courses in high school and leading to responsible jobs.

In a program of education for all the people, he said there must be "adult education on a basis comparable to that made for the education of youth."

On the classroom level, Dr. Strayer, who is professor emeritus of education at Teachers College, Columbia University, deplored a situation in which a teacher dictates and the pupil accepts.

"This is not the method of free men in reaching conclusions with regard to their common problems," he said.

2 Commissioners Seek Supervisors' Removal Because Of Charter Stand

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Montgomery County officials reacted to the charter form of government adopted Tuesday by the voters yesterday as follows:

1. Two county commissioners attempted to oust County Supervisor I. G. McNayr because of his pro-charter sympathies, but were voted down at the board meeting.

2. The board as a whole pledged cooperation in the transition from the present form of government.

3. Commissioner Charles H. Jamison said he is available as a candidate for the proposed seven-member charter council.

4. County Purchasing Agent Wilfred E. Nerlich said he would apply for the job of county manager under the charter.

In Closed Session

Leaders of the abortive ouster attempt against McNayr were President Brooke Johns of the board of commissioners and Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter, a vigorous charter opponent.

Reliably reported as supporting the 35-year-old administrator who earns $7500 in the post, were County Commissioners Oliver W. Youngblood, George Esworthy and Jamison.

The McNayr ouster attempt developed during a closed session in Rockville. McNayr was asked to leave and remained outside for more than a hour.

A motion was made by Sauter to oust McNayr, it was said. Johns was presiding and according to parliamentary procedure he could not second the motion unless another member took the chair.

Each of the three other commissioners refused.

Also a near-victim under the same circumstances was the county public utilities agent, Albert E. Conradis, an attorney. Conradis has actively supported the charter and was appointed by the present board.

Best Effort Pledged

During the closed session, Judge Stedman Prescott of County Circuit Court was called in. One official said later the jurist was asked if he would advise the board on certain matters connected with the charter, but he declined on the ground there may be future litigation on which he would have to rule.

After the stormy closed session, the commissioners emerged with the following statement: "The Board of County Commissioners for Montgomery County, recognizing the expressed will of Montgomery County citizens in the recent election on the charter question, wishes to inform the citizens of the county and charter supporters that it pledges itself to work for the best interests of Montgomery County during its tenure and will make every effort to effect the orderly transition of our present system to that of the charter."

Asked if he agreed with sentiments expressed in the statement, Sauter declared: "I had to."

After the meeting, a reporter asked Sauter if the present commissioners would continue to draw their salaries after the charter council takes over the government reins.

Differ on Salaries

"It is perfectly clear that we are entitled to our salaries during the entire four-year term to which we were elected," Sauter declared.

Asked to comment on whether the commissioners would be paid for the next two years, James J. Hayden, one of the drafters of the charter, said they would not.

"When the first council takes over, the commissioners disappear into thin air and their salaries with them," he said.

The five commissioners, normally, would draw a combined total of more than $20,000 during the next two years.

Commissioner Jamison, a Democrat, said he would run for the charter office if asked to by party heads.

Commissioner Youngblood said that his "present feeling" was that he would not be a candidate. Sauter replied only that he "would look kind of foolish putting my head into such a lion's mouth." Johns and Esworthy would not comment.

In another development, County Purchasing Agent Wilfred E. Nerlich, who served 16 years with the District government in various administrative posts, announced he would apply for the $12,000 a year job of county manager.

A resident of Seneca, Md., Nerlich, who is 39, was appointed to his present post 18 months ago. He last served with the District as administrative assistant to the director of public welfare.

A law school graduate, he has been a county resident for 12 years, eight of which were spent in Bethesda.

Called Ineligible

Second Club Denied Bingo Permission

A second Montgomery County country club was refused a bingo permit yesterday on the ground that private clubs are not eligible, being non-charitable organizations.

Meeting in Rockville, Montgomery commissioners rejected applications for 10 permits for bingo games requested by Congressional Country Club.

Previously, the commissioners had rejected a similar request from Bethesda Country Club.

The board, in refusing the permits, acted on recommendation of F. Barnard Welsh, legal counsel to the board, that bingo permits be granted only to civic, benevolent, patriotic, religious, charitable, educational and fraternal groups and fire departments.

Congressional Club officials stated in the application that proceeds from the bingo games would go into the club's charity fund.

The commissioners also signed an agreement with Baltimore & Ohio Railroad providing that the railroad will finance erection of a new bridge over its tracks at Rockcrest. The county will maintain the bridge approaches under the agreement.

Court Voids Conviction of Bus Driver

The Municipal Court of Appeals yesterday reversed the conviction last year of John A. Prezzi, Capital Transit bus driver, on negligent homicide charges, and ordered a new trial for the defendant.

Prezzi had been sentenced last May to serve three months and pay a $500 fine in connection with the death of Harriet Winslow, 15, of 15 E. Lenox st., Chevy Chase. The girl was killed when a auto in which she was a passenger collided with Prezzi's bus at 13th and Farragut sts. nw., February 15, 1947.

In reversing the conviction, the appellate court found prejudicial error in the charge to the jury made by the late Municipal Court Judge Nathan Margold, trial judge.

The appellate opinion quoted Margold as telling the jury: "I can't see in the name of commonsense if he (Prezzi) was going too fast, immoderately, and crashed into the other car that was not the cause of this accident . . ."

The Appellate Court then commented: "This statement contradicted or at least materially weakened the previous instructions that immoderate speed and death resulting therefrom were separate and essential elements in the crime . . . We think the trial court went too far . . ."

Prezzi, who has been free on $1000 bond, was represented by Attorney R. Sidney Johnson. The Government's case was argued by Assistant United States Attorney Richard M. Roberts.

3 Face Gambling Charges Here; One Is Fined $50

Three men appeared, two in Municipal Court and one before the United States commissioner, on numbers charges yesterday.

James Ellis Lee, 52, a butcher, of 219 H st. nw., pleaded guilty to possession of lottery slips before Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy and was sentenced to a $50 fine or 60 days.

Henry Williams, 41, of 1636 10th st. nw., was held in $1500 bond for the grand jury by United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence on charges of operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

Peter Garbardini, no address, charged with operation, was held in $1000 bond for the grand jury by Municipal Court Judge Thomas Dewey Quinn.

Nonresident Student Billing Left to Schools

Nonresident students attending District schools will continue to receive their tuition bills from school officials rather than from the Commissioners.

The Board of Commissioners yesterday turned down a request of the Board of Education that they take over the billing job and the burden of seeing that the bills are collected.

The Commissioners said the job should remain with the schools since the Board of Education sets the rates, basing them on the per pupil cost of education.

The school board, in asking the Commissioners to take over the collection, pointed out that the money goes into the general fund of the District rather than into the school fund.

The Commissioners approved the following rates set by the school board for the current year:

Teachers College, $303; senior high school, including veterans' centers, $217; vocational high schools, $242; junior high schools, $164; elementary schools, $110; classes for crippled children, $290, and evening schools, $27.

Nature Lovers To Tour Woods Seldom Visited

One of two outdoor walks planned for this weekend by the National Capital Parks will take nature lovers into rarely visited woodlands of the District.

Ranger-Naturalist Howard White will meet with interested persons for the hike at 2 p.m. Saturday at Wisconsin and Nebraska aves. nw. It will end at Foxhall rd. and M st.

Another walk, along wooded and streamside trails, is scheduled for Sunday, directed by Ranger-Naturalist Robert Herr. It will begin at 2 p.m. at Military rd. and Oregon ave. nw., extending to 16th and Kalmia sts. nw. The remains of Fort DeRussey will be visited on the walk.

Musician Sets $500,000 Value on Wife's Lost Love

A Washington music teacher yesterday filed suit in District Court against a local builder asking $500,000 and charging alienation of his wife's affections.

The plaintiff, Walter A. Taylor, Hotel Burlington, named Merwin A. Mace, executive of Mace Properties, Inc., Arlington, as defendant.

According to the suit filed by Attorney Dan Piver, the Taylors were married in Rockville in 1930. Mrs. Taylor, the suit said, formerly entertained as a mind-reader at the Madrillon Restaurant here.

ABC Board Opens Hearing On 57 Counts Against Cafe

Accounts of attempted pickups by women in a downtown cafe were recounted yesterday by a vice squad undercover man at an Alcoholic Beverage Control Board hearing of 57 charges against the cafe's licensee.

Pvt. Samuel E. Wallace also told of seeing several persons stagger or be helped from the premises while he was present during the period from September 15 to 23.

Defendant was Henry G. David, holder of a retail Class C license for sale of all beverages at Mitchell's Grill, 235 G st. nw.

On a typical night, September 17, Wallace said the following acts took place:

He was solicited by a woman. Another woman attempted to pick up an Army colonel.

A drunk, counting a large sum of money in a booth, was joined by a third woman who whispered to him. After the girl allegedly told the drunk "It'll cost you $10," he shouted, "I don't want to go with you."

A drunken man was helped from the cafe by his girl friend.

A soldier was assisted out by his companions, and another man staggered against the juke box on his way out.

David's attorney, F. Joseph Donoghue, told the board none of the charges named a specific complainant and that none of the persons named by Wallace were identified.

At this point, Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert A. Wise asserted it is impossible for a vice squad undercover man to get names. To do so, he said, would expose him as a policeman.

The defense attorney presented eight witnesses who purported to show the place was run in an orderly manner, some saying they were present on the night named and saw none of the mentioned happenings.

Two witnesses said the cafe is the best run in the neighborhood.

Wallace's partner, Pvt. Miles J. Ritchie, testified he was recognized the first night he was in the cafe and had to drop from the assignment.

The 57 charges against one licensee is the largest brought against a single defendant. The previous high was 31.

Hearing will continue Tuesday, November 9, at 10 a. m. Donoghue said he will present 20 additional witnesses at that time to refute the policeman's charges.

The National Park Service last night announced purchase of 67 acres for $20,000 to add to the Gettysburg National Military Park in Pennsylvania.

The land, lying south of the Eternal Light Peace Memorial in the park, is the site of an important military engagement in the first day of fighting.

Alexandria to Get CAA Aid On Low-Flying Plane Problem

Help in solving the nuisance of low flying planes from Washington National Airport was promised the Alexandria City Council yesterday by the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

R. F. Fender, CAA chief of general flight operations, told the council there is no total cure for the problem. But, he said, CAA plans to keep low flying planes over the city at a minimum in the future.

Fender said pilots have been instructed to approach and take off on "channels" over the Potomac River, thus missing the city. He pointed out, however, that bad weather or heavy air traffic sometimes prevents pilots from sticking to these channels.

Much of the trouble, Fender said, is caused by pilots from other parts of the country not familiar with the airport's regulations. CAA, he said, hopes to correct this by giving Nation-wide publicity to the channels.

Fender said CAA is studying the possibility of moving the airport's range station from its present location just south of the airport to a point 4½ miles down the river.

CAA officials had met twice previously with the council to ask that stacks on a power plant now being built in northeastern Alexandria be kept below 164 feet for air safety. The council refused on the grounds it might produce a smoke nuisance. This matter was not discussed yesterday.

Mrs. Beloff Denies Claim Of Intimacies

Final arguments in the Beloff divorce suit will be heard today in District Court.

All three persons named as points in the "triangle" case rested their cases yesterday with Mrs. Simon Beloff, 34-year-old brunette defendant, repeating, from the stand, denials that she had ever been intimate with Leon Spivak, 50, real estate man.

Spivak has been named corespondent and codefendant by Mrs. Beloff's 67-year-old husband, who earlier described how he had spread lime along a path leading to his wife's bedroom in an effort to trace any visitor.

Two sisters, Lillian Soroka, 15, and Eva Soroka, 17, neighbors of Mrs. Beloff's, testified that they never saw Spivak in the vicinity of Mrs. Beloff's residence, 1351 Spring rd. nw.

The girls said Beloff used to appear to visit the Beloffs' young daughter at that address and often wound up shouting imprecations from the street.

"He used to get the dog started barking every time he pulled his car up," Eva said.

At one point during the proceedings, Beloff and Edward J. Reamer, attorney for Mrs. Beloff, began an argument over comments the former is alleged to have made. John Alexander, Beloff's attorney, changed his seat so as to separate the two men, who had been sitting side by side.

Reamer, himself, later took the stand to deny he had any personal malice against Beloff even though he admitted, he and Beloff had clashed over financial matters at the Tifereth Israel Congregation.

Thief Accepts Bid To Stretch Dollars

"Stretch your dollars," advised the show window display of Crosby's Shoes, 414 7th st. nw.—and an impressionable burglar stretched 45 dollar bills from the display into his pocket early yesterday.

The bills were missing from the windows, on either side of the entrance, at 6:30 a. m. when Harry Scholer, store manager, was summoned by police to check the display.

About 250 shoes and various accessories on display were not touched, Scholer said.

A giant dollar sign highlighted each window, the vertical bars moving up and down to s-t-r-e-t-c-h a fan of dollar bills. Several other loose bills were scattered on the floor to complete the display.

Entrance was gained, according to the manager, by breaking the glass front door.

Youth Planes Fingers

Robert R. Martin, 18, of 3158 M pl. se., trimmed the tips of three fingers of his left hand with a wood plane yesterday while making a lamp in the woodworking shop of Anacostia High School.

Taken to Providence Hospital by the school nurse, he was admitted in good condition. His physician said the boy sliced about a quarter of an inch from the nail side of the fingers.

GWU Campaign Ballyhoo Barrage Bursts on Campus

A barrage of campaign ballyhoo burst upon George Washington University campus yesterday as candidates for class officers sought to churn up student interest in collegiate elections.

Results of ballot counting yesterday and today will be bulletined every 15 minutes at a postelection dance in the gymnasium, beginning tonight at 9 o'clock.

To bring out the vote, enthusiasts, honking horns and shouting slogans, cruised around the campus area in cars bearing banners and placards. Other rooters posted signs and some paraded with sandwich boards urging support of candidates.

One would-be officer of the senior class of the engineering school rigged up a balloon barrage loaded with campaign signs behind the library.

Posters of collegiate candidates included such messages to the electorate as: "Church will work his shirt off"—accompanied by a tattered shirt; "Girls love Shoemaker; children love Shoemaker—you will love Shoemaker for senior class president," and "He's no shmoo, vote for Marshall."

Veterans Due To Get Bonuses In Six States

By The Associated Press

World War II veterans in six States are due for an estimated 500-million-dollar windfall in bonuses.

These States approved bonuses: Indiana, South Dakota, Louisiana, Iowa, Washington and apparently, Minnesota. The Indiana referendum is not binding on the 1949 Legislature. The Minnesota decision will not be definite until the State canvassing board determines whether it received the resulred majority of all votes cast.

Four States—Missouri, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Oregon—rejected bonus proposals. In addition, North Dakota voted down a tax for a veterans' rehabilitation fund, and California, with nearly three fourths of the precincts reported, apparently had rejected a veterans' tax exemption proposal.

Antidecay Tooth Treatment Begun in Arlington School

The Washington Post

DEMONSTRATION—Dr. William Burke sprays sodium fluoride on the teeth of Anne Read, 11, of 5125 N. 25th pl., Arlington, Va., to show how it will be done at the John Marshall School today

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Students in Arlington's John Marshall Elementary School today will become the first children in Greater Washington to receive sodium fluoride treatments to check tooth decay.

Yesterday, a special U. S. Public Health Service team moved into the school basement, set up three dental chairs, and prepared to give the new treatment to the school's 417 pupils.

The team, which operates with permission of the Virginia State Health Department and approval of the State Dental Society, estimates that application of the sodium fluoride "reduces new dental decay by 40 per cent."

'Settled' Area Selected

Dr. Thomas Pumphrey, dentist for Arlington's school system, says Marshall School was picked because the area surrounding it "is more settled," with fewer families moving in or out.

This population stability, Pumphrey said, will enable dental authorities to check all children treated three years from now to determine how effective the fluoride treatment is.

The Virginia Fluoride Demonstration Unit, which yesterday set up shop at the school, is one of a series operating throughout the country under the provisions of a million-dollar Congressional appropriation.

Tests Prove Worth

The team consists of a dentist, two hygienists, and a clerk. Children's teeth will be examined, cleaned once, and then treated four times at three to seven-day intervals with sodium fluoride.

Dr. William A. Burke, the team's dentist, estimated it will take several weeks to treat Marshall School students, all of whom have received permission of their parents for the work.

According to the Public Health Service, thousands of children already have been tested with the solution, with teeth on one side of the mouth painted, teeth on the other side left unpainted.

Decay "developed at almost twice the rate on the side which had not received the applications," service dentists said.

In court yesterday, Mrs. Schau testified she first heard the remarks attributed to Mrs. Moskowitz repeated to her by another neighbor, Mrs. Edith Myers, 1301 N. Wayne st.

Charged with illegal use of a military pass to enter the grounds of the Naval Gun Factory, Oscar Williams, 34, of Asheville, N. C., yesterday was held in $500 bond by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

The man, a civilian laborer at the gun factory, will receive a further hearing November 10. He is also charged with attempted theft of $50 in scrap metal from the factory.

According to the FBI, Williams was stopped by a guard as he was hoisting lead from the pile. Although the man had his own pass, he displayed one belonging to a brother, it was said. The pass violation carries a penalty of $1000 fine and a year in jail.

E. Coast Dockers To Ballot Today

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday announced plans for holding a labor dispute election tomorrow under the Taft-Hartley law among East Coast longshoremen from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va.

A court injunction against a longshoremen's strike will expire at midnight next Tuesday. Any walkout would seriously curtail foreign aid shipments to Europe. West Coast longshoremen have been on strike for two months.

Under Taft-Hartley provisions the NLRB is to poll the Atlantic Coast longshoremen on a last offer of new contract terms made by their employers. That offer is a 10-cent hourly increase with a new system for figuring overtime pay to conform with a recent Supreme Court decision.

Parley Ponders Increasing Wage Minimums Here

Revision of minimum wages for more than 20,000 women and male minors in white-collar occupations in the District was considered yesterday by a wage conference called by the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board.

Previous conferences made recommendations on the basis of which wage minimum were revised upward, to meet the cost of living, in five other occupational fields, by the Minimum Wage Board.

Army's New Tank, M-46, Is Speedier, Easier Handled

The Army said last night it has a "sensational new tank," the M-46.

The Army's description of the M-46 "General Patton" tank indicated it is an improved version of the present standard M-26 medium tank. More power will boost the speed 50 per cent over the M-26 model, to 30 miles an hour, the announcement said.

Instead of the pedals and other complicated controls of older models, the M-46 is guided by a "wobble stick," something like the control for a light airplane. Armament includes a 90-millimeter gun firing high-velocity, armor-piercing shells.

Fort Meade, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—The standards of three squadrons of the 102-year-old Third Cavalry group, after numerous Indian scrapes and six wars, will be retired permanently at a review tomorrow.

They will be replaced by insignia of the reorganized Third Armored Cavalry Regiment.

The mounted riflemen were first organized in 1846 to garrison a line of posts from Missouri to the Oregon Territory. The group entered its first combat in the Mexican War and emerged with five battle streamers to its credit, among them Vera Cruz.

W. G. Beckers, Chemical Firm Director, Dies

New York, Nov. 4 (NYHT).—Dr. William G. Beckers, 74, senior director of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corp., died Wednesday at his home here.

Dr. Beckers was born in Germany and graduated from the University of Freiburg, with a Ph. D. in 1897. He joined the Bayer Co. there and came to the United States in 1901 as one of the dye and drug firm's representatives. In 1909 he established Beckers Aniline & Chemical Co. in Brooklyn, and specialized in the manufacture of aniline dye-stuffs. His plant grew rapidly and in 1919 it merged with five other companies to become the Allied Chemical & Dye Corp. Dr. Beckers resigned from the firm in 1920 but remained as a director until his death.

After his resignation he devoted himself to research and invention and held several patents on synthetic detergents—soapless soaps. He was a former director of the Murray Hill Trust Co. and the Goodyear-Zeppelin Co. and was a passenger on the maiden voyage to the United States of the dirigible Hindenburg in May, 1936.

Dr. Beckers maintained a summer home at Lake George, N. Y., and was active in affairs of the town. He was one of the founders of the Bolton Landing National Bank and the Sagamore Hotel and the Sagamore Golf Course. He sold his house in Bolton years ago to the late Harry K. Thaw, millionaire playboy. Dr. Beckers was a trustee of Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, and last year was elected a member of Sigma XI, honorary scientific fraternity. He was a member of the Chemists and Lawyers Clubs.

He leaves his second wife, Mrs. Emma Louise Beckers; a daughter, Mrs. Elsa B. Schreibere, and a son, William Kurt Beckers.

Gen. Smith, OSS Adviser, Dies at 65

Maj. Gen. John P. Smith, 65, who served as an adviser in the Office of Strategic Services during World War II, died last night at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Death was caused by a heart disease, a member of the family said.

Placed on the Army's retired list in 1943 but remaining on active duty through World War II until 1945, the general had devoted more than 40 years to military service.

A native of Hopewell, Pa., he attended Pennsylvania State College, and after graduation in 1907, he entered the Coast Artillery.

His long military career included service in stations in Georgia, New York, California, Kansas, Virginia, the Hawaiian Islands, and, during World War I, in France in command of Field Artillery troops.

In 1942, from command of the Army's Fourth Corps Area at Atlanta, Ga., he came to headquarters of the Services of Supply as chief of administrative services.

During World War II, he also served for a time attached to the Office of the Chief of Staff as well as on confidential assignment with OSS.

His decorations included the Purple Heart and the Distinguished Service Medal with cluster.

I HATE DANDRUFF!

Double DANDERINE GUARANTEES DANDRUFF RELIEF

Contains ingredient used by many hospitals. Provides amazing relief, even in some of the most severe cases.

Is dandruff making your hair unattractive, hurting your business success? Thousands who know what a heavy handicap it is have found that easy-to-use Double Danderine gives them the real relief they've been seeking for years.

Authorities reveal that the most common kind of dandruff is caused by a germ. To get effective relief, this germ must be destroyed. Ordinary preparations that simply remove loose dandruff don't destroy it. But Double Danderine actually kills this germ on contact!

That's why we say Double Danderine guarantees dandruff relief. Try this refreshingly fragrant dandruff preparation. If you're not completely satisfied, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.

*Pityrosporum Ovale, the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

Equitable Sets 3 New Peaks In 69th Year

By S. Oliver Goodman

Entering its seventieth year, the Equitable Cooperative Building Association has reached new high marks in assets, share investments and loans.

W. S. Pratt

President Walter S. Pratt reported at the annual shareholders' meeting that assets as of October 17, 1948 stood at $12,845,541 share investments at $10,984,152, and loans at $11,939,948. This compared with the previous year's figures of: assets $11,425,033, share investments $10,332,589 and loans $9,565,795.

Pratt, who has ended his twelfth year as head of the association and his forty-ninth year of consecutive service, pointed out Equitable's prominent role in the building and financing of a group of veterans' homes. More than 100 of these houses already have been occupied in a tract between 6th and 8th sts. and Emerson and Gallatin sts. in the Northeast section. Altogether, about 200 houses will be erected by Steuart Bros., of which 125 will be financed by Equitable as permanent loans for veterans.

Reelected for three-year terms as directors were Harry Meem, Ralph P. Barnard, Richard F. Green and Wilson L. Townsend. Other directors continue in office. The board will meet Monday for election of officers.

'Sealed Verdict' A Sorry Mistrial

By Richard L. Coe

"SEALED VERDICT," at the Warner, is a synthetic, fishy approach to what should have been an engrossing screen play.

What it seeks to do is to probe the status of the Germans—where, it would ask, does guilt begin? How far have our occupation people gone in their efforts to reeducate the German people? What are these responsibilities of ours like?

But once again a great studio—Paramount—has lacked the self-discipline to face up to a situation. It is complex, heaven knows, but it is surely engrossing, for how clearly the matter is faced does does affect us all. There is no reason why such a picture couldn't be gripping in the way "entertainment" can be.

But no. Paramount's people evidently really believed in their theme after all. Yes, they've gone to the trouble of shooting scenes in the rubble of Germany and they've decked up their story with allusions to fact. But they've heaped on the cliches, all the way from the overseas corporal who falls in love with a 17-year-old lass to the wanest sort of romance between Star Ray Milland and Newcomer Florence Marly. They've even inserted, presumably for the purposes of comedy, a sob sister magazine writer. Insincerity shines everywhere throughout this bunko.

Milland plays an Army lawyer entrusted with bringing lesser Nazis to trial. His particular charge is a Nazi general who seems to have ordered all sorts of inhuman killings, though Milland can find no written proof. The only defense of the general comes from a Parisian girl who says she is repaying a kindness from the general. The Nazi underground is hoping to make a martyr of the general via the Goering suicide route.

Foolish Characters

I won't go into the various plot manipulations. But the things you are asked to believe of the characters are absurd nonsense. You are asked to imagine that several of our officers don't bother to discuss such a case at length; that they don't supply one another with the essential facts of a case. You are asked to believe that Love can Dawn between Prosecutor Milland and Witness Marly. You are asked to think, in short, that these people behave the way Hollywood moguls like to think people behave.

Whether all this is the fault of Script Writer Jonathan Latimer or Director Lewis Allen, I don't know. Perhaps the bigger bosses tied their hands by insisting that extraneous corn be introduced because "the public" expects such stuff. The fact remains, it's poorly written, badly directed, lazily edited.

Consequently, the performances by what may well be a good cast come to nothing and are not worth mentioning, though an exception might be made for Celia Lovsky's moments as the general's mother, a woman of the old Prussian order whose position is essentially dramatic screen material.

"SEALED VERDICT." Paramount release produced by Robert Fellows. Screen play by Jonathan Latimer from a novel by Lionel Shapiro. Music by Hugo Friedhofer. Photographed in Europe and California by Leo Tover. Directed by Lewis Allen. At the Warner.

MORRIS CAFRITZ, whose plans for a new theater on 14th st. were discussed in this column Monday, stated that his limitation of 650 seats precludes any hope for it to be used as a legitimate theater . . . He is, however, seriously considering his Temple Heights tract, at Connecticut and Florida aves., for a "large, first-class legit theater" . . . Parking space wouldn't be too much of a problem there, he adds . . . Well, there goes another pipe dream, but I can't help wondering what he's going to use for movies.

BERT McCORD, whose smoothly written column of theatrical news is one of the pleasures of the New York Herald Tribune, conveys an election night story you may not have read . . . A visitor stuck his head into Beatrice Lillie's dressing room backstage at "Inside U. S. A." . . . Lady Peel was glued to the radio, cheering on President Truman: "My," cried Miss Lillie, "I'm so glad for Tallulah!"

MAURICE EVANS made a remark at the Women's National Press Club luncheon which I must pass along purely as a matter of personal pride . . . The star was recalling different receptions he's had in his tours of the country and quoted a review his Romeo (to Miss Cornell's Juliet) had brought from the Nashville Banner. . . . "Evans behaved," said the Banner critic, "just like Freddie Bartholomew." . . . My wife, Christine Sadler, was on the Banner in those days, and someone asked her if a mutual friend had carved that bitter phrase. . . . Chris thought for a while and said: "No, he didn't. I covered 'Romeo and Juliet' myself." . . . If only I'd taken her word that the Louis Calhern in "The Play's the Thing" was better than I'd thunk it. . . . The thing's now in ts sixth month in New York. . . . Smart isn't she? . . . No, I won't tell you who she voted for.

RAY'S NEW GIRL—Florence Marly, a newcomer from Vienna, makes her first American screen appearance opposite Ray Milland, who's an American captain in "Sealed Verdict," at the Warner

'Larceny' Is Just About That, But Miss Kay DeWitt Is Back

By Orval Hopkins

DON'T LET me beat this theme to death, but Kay DeWitt is back at the Capitol Theater and, as they say in the Sports Department, gee whiz. Miss DeWitt sings two great old Gershwin songs, "The Man I Love" and "Embraceable You." She hits 'em a mile.

The movie at the Capitol is "Larceny," and in it John Payne, for a reason to me completely obscure, is pursued madly by not one but four beautiful dames. Payne, participating rather half-heartedly in a plot to fleece a young war widow, poses as the Buddy of the widow's late husband, then goes soft at the end and spills the whole deal. As Dan Duryea succinctly puts it, "He wasn't cut out for this line of work."

As a matter of fact, Payne appears to be participating not only in this plot but in the entire movie in a sort of half-hearted way. He probably fancies this attitude as a charming, offhand manner. It comes so far, in my humble view, from producing a credible portrayal as to make one wonder if Hollywood couldn't find some other chores for people like Payne to do. Maybe working in the sound effects department, making gasping noises for goldfish. Payne never starts a speech without a gasp, and maybe that would be just the spot for him.

Shelly Winters Play a Moll

Joan Caulfield plays the widow and Duryea is the big wheel of the outfit which is attempting to apply the fleece. Both give rather routine performances, doubtless uninspired by the scrawiness and the pedestrian character of the script. The latter gem was turned out by three people and based on a novel by a couple of others.

Shelley Winters plays a moll, as I seem to recall we said back in the '30's, and she is at once tough, convincing and nice to look at. The authors did bestir themselves enough to give Miss Winters their only good lines, and she met them more than halfway. The other two girls who, as I say, are unaccountably attracted to Payne are Dorothy Hart and Patrician Alphin. I thought Miss Hart to be particularly dangerous looking. I mean a guy ain't safe.

He Makes You Sing

A number of performers are slaving very hard over that hot stage at the Capitol this week. Woodie and Bobby are two handsome young daredevils on roller skates. You know—roller skates? Andre, Andree and Bonnie have a dancing act, Harrison, Carroll and Ross are in with a comedy and dancing routine, and Marc Balfero does a single comic. Ballero is the type who tells a joke, says "Well, it was clean, anyway," then unwinds a considerable string of off-color and not very funny stories. He also does impressions and who, it's beginning to appear, doesn't?

Sam Jack Kaufman is back in the pit, just working like mad, as usual. The customers seemed very glad to see him. Milt Slosser is in his same seat at the organ.

"LARCENY." Universal-International release produced by Leonard Holdstein and Aaron Rosenberg. Screen play by Herbert T. Margolis, Louis Norheim and William Bowers from the novel, "Velvet Fleece" by Lois Bey and John Fleming. Directed by George Sherman. At the Capitol.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

(Editor's Note: Jake Powell, former major league outfielder, took his own life at police headquarters yesterday. Last August, when Powell was released by Gainsville of the Florida State League, Shirley Povich wrote a column about Powell. It is reprinted below.)

DOWN IN THE CLASS D MINORS, JAKE POWELL was giving it a last try. You remember Jake—problem boy of the Nats, World Series hero with the Yankees, ruthless on the baselines, vague about train schedules and contemptuous of the outfield fences.

POVICH

He never could stay put. From the year he came off the Washington sandlots as the big outfielder of the Takoma Tigers and moved directly into the Nats' lineup in 1930, he was off on a gypsy tour of baseball. Chattanooga, New Haven, Springfield, Wilkes-Barre, Albany, Harrisburg, Dayton and Albany had him before the Nats picked Jake up again in 1934.

That was after he whacked out a .361 batting average for Albany and just missed leading the International League in hitting. Jake did all right in his first full year with the Nats in 1935, beating out enough bunts to boost his average to .312 and Manager Bucky Harris cheerfully overlooked Powell's late-hour frolicking.

POWELL WENT SOUTH with the Nats in 1936, but when they broke camp on the only train out of Orlando, Fla., on the appointed day, Jake wasn't aboard. And if you don't get out of Orlando on that train, you don't get to Cordele, Ga., where the Nats had an exhibition game the next day, and Harris was mad when he counted noses and found no Powell. "This will cost him two hundred," said Harris.

But when the Nats reached the Cordele park the next day, they were greeted there by Powell. Jake had missed the train for reasons that weren't satisfactory to Harris. Then how did he get to Cordele. "I chartered a plane," explained Jake. But what he didn't explain was that it was a charge job, with the plane company presenting the Nats with the bill for Powell's excursion two days later in Birmingham.

If it wasn't an abundant life for the Nats in those years, it was at least a more exciting one with Powell one of their number. Hank Greenberg was taking a routine infield throw after Powell grounded out in May, 1936, and the next think he knew Powell crashed into him madly, broke Greenberg's wrist and put him out of the Detroit lineup for the rest of the season. Jake didn't apologize. He saw nothing to apologize for. He had beaten out a hit.

POWELL FOUND AN ADMIRER in Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees, who liked Jake's rootin'-tootin' style and when he offered Ben Chapman in an even swap, the Nats grabbed it up. Jake did more than all right for the Yankees, before Charley Keller came along from Newark and moved him out of a regular outfield job. But Jake got in some hot licks for the Yanks in the 1936 World Series against the Giants.

At a time when Carl Hubbell was the best pitcher in the business, Jake issued a preseries statement of his own. "This guy Hubbell is just another pitcher," said Powell, lead-off man for the Yankees And then he banged out four hits against Hubbell in the opening game, led the Yankees at bat in the series with a .455 average, and scored eight runs to tie the record for a six-game series.

He picked up three nice World Series checks with the Yankees in 1936-37-38 and ran the bases better and worse, alternately, than any man on the Yankee club. McCarthy used to excuse Jake for trying to stretch his hits by saying "Jake takes insane chances and has no business going for the extra base most of the time but he's so lucky somebody ends up throwing the ball away and Jake winds up with two extra bases."

THE WASHINGTON FANS weren't fond of Jake after he became a Yankee. He caught it from the left field bleachers in Griffith Stadium after roughing up First Baseman Joe Kuhel in a Yankee Stadium game. Jake answered back, and the bleacherites threw a dozen pop bottles at Jake's head. Jake calmly picked them up, waved away a ground crew attendant who was approaching with a basket, and threw the bottles back at the bleacher fans.

His trouble with Kuhel started on the same kind of a play on which Powell broke Greenberg's wrist. Kuhel barely did get out of the way and then challenged Jake. They were swapping punches all around the first base territory when Jake finally discovered he was outnumbered. From off the Washington bench Catcher Walter Millies leaped on Jake's back and bore him to the ground.

Jake got up, though, and took a punch at Millies' jaw. Then he learned to his pain that Millies had fortified himself with the catcher's mask before entering the battle. The Nats wound up with Powell on their ball club again in 1943. They brought him from St. Paul. When he reported they knew they had the same old Jake. He showed up with a black eye, a souvenir of a small fracas with Eric McNair, the A's old second baseman, in his farewell game with St. Paul.

Pick-The-Winners Lineup This Week

PENNSYLVANIA VS. PENN STATE in what probably is the East's top game Saturday.

This game is among the tough ones in this week's Pick-The-Winners contest sponsored by The Washington Post.

This contest is designed to reward those who know their teams well, and study the accounts of games week by week.

The winner of each weekly contest will receive two (2) tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 27, and an all-expenses paid trip to the big game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week also will receive four (4) tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. This game will be selected by The Washington Post.

The contest each week will include 20 of the major college games. Each contestant will select the winner (or tie) of each of these games.

A twenty-first (21st) game is listed on which the "Probable Score" will be given by each contestant.

Irish and Michigan Too

Penn, Georgia Tech Figure to Roll On

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Taking a stab at the weekly pigskin predictions while perched on a shelf at the National Horse Show, or horsing around with a six-weeks average that now stands at .774 on 369 correct guesses and 108 that went amiss:

Penn State vs. Pennsylvania—Fans in the Keystone State have been waiting six years for this one. Neither team has been beaten in two years, although the Nittany Lions' tie with Michigan State rubbed a little of the luster off their Saturday collision. On the theory that the hefty Quakers have done the most with the toughest opposition, one shaky vote for Pennsylvania.

Tennessee vs. Georgia Tech—The fast-coming Volunteers, who gave North Carolina's Tar Heels all they wanted, must win this one to stay in the running for the Southeastern Conference title. But we'll take Tech.

UCLA vs. California — After their narrow squeak against Southern Cal, the all-victorious Golden Bears probably welcome a chance to take on UCLA, which has dropped four of its seven starts.

Navy vs. Michigan—It was a 41-7 triumph over Navy that enabled Notre Dame to replace Michigan as the No. 1 team. If Michigan is to return to the top, the Wolverines need to make a showing at least as good.

Stanford vs. Army—The Indians probably figured on having more strength when they scheduled this one. They may score, as five of unbeaten Army's six victims have done, but they hardly figure to win. They get to take a nice trip though. Army.

Oregon vs. Washington—We're still wondering who'll go to the Rose Bowl if Oregon wins all seven of its Pacific Coast Conference games and California takes its six, since they don't meet this year. Oregon.

Northwestern vs. Wisconsin—With the Rose Bowl assignment in sight, the powerful Wildcats aren't likely to stub their toes now.

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—A young hunter, only 4 years old, stole the spotlight at the National Horse Show today by taking two blue ribbons in successive appearances.

The youngster with the winning ways was Adventure, a chestnut gelding from the Llangollen Farms of Mrs. E. Cooper Person, the former Mary Elizabeth Whitney, at Upperville, Va.

He made his own forecast of things to come when he finished second in a conformation class yesterday, defeating several older horses with gaudy records.

When competition in the young hunter division opened today, Adventure stepped to the front among the fox chasers of his own class. He started off by taking first place in an event for middle and heavyweight green hunters.

Take Jockey Club Cup

Then he returned a short time later and grabbed the Jockey Club Cup in competition among 4-year-olds and under, suitable to become hunters.

The day's work, accomplished before a matinee crowd of some 2500 at Madison Square Garden, meant seven and a half points to Adventure and sent him to the front in the scoring for the young hunter championship of the show.

In the International low score jumping competition, Mexico's Olympic champions took a commanding lead over Army riders from France and Canada. Capturing the first of three events, the Mexicans had 12 faults compared to 24 each for Canada and France.

Rain Slicker Third

Third to Adventure was another Virginia entry, Rain Slicker, owned by Morton W. Smith, Middleburg. A Llangollen stablemate, Carry Me Back, placed fourth. The aptly-named Virginia horse also was third in the heavyweight open class.

In the lightweight green hunter division a 5-year-old chestnut gelding, Glen Erin, won the ribbon. Glen Erin is owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hale, Greenwich, Conn.

4232 Watch Midget Racers At Uline Arena

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Everything went round and round in small circles, including the eyes of 4232 paying customers, last night at Uline Arena as the midgets and the widgets were brought indoors for the first time in Washington.

As auto racing, it didn't mean much. But for entertainment with a slight possibility of disaster in the offing, it was all the easily-thrilled assembly seemed to ask.

Making a hideous noise with their exhausts and screaming tires, six "bugs" from the regular midget circuit took part in each race except the finale. One of the first couple of cars in line generally won.

The feature race proved that point. Ernie McCoy of Reading, Pa., started the 30-lap grind in first position and was in the same spot when it was over. Vernor Land of Long Island, held second throughout, and New York's Len Duncan moved up from seventh to finish third.

An expert at figuring such things said the average speed was a little over 30 miles-an-hour on the 1-10th of a mile flat track. Top speed was about 50 (the br-r-r-m-m part of each lap) and accidents were limited to cars locking wheels, thumping the retaining wall, or ramming one another on the turns.

There were laughs, though. Five cars tangled hopelessly on the first turn of a semifinal and the crowd loved it. Jim Forte drove his No. 6 up the back of No. 62, driven by Jack Gregory and the stands roared. In another event so many course markers were flattened that the cars were racing on a 1-20th of a mile course and a joyous time was had by all.

Even the widgets—toy cars circling on a wire—provided their share of noise and entertainment. If you could see them at all you agreed they were doing all of the 105 or 110 m.p.h. claimed for them.

Lions and Reds Play Here Tonight

Coach Frank Beisler's Washington Lions will be out to snap a two-match losing streak at Uline Arena tonight when they entertain the Eastern Division leading and defending champion Providence Reds in an American Hockey League showdown at 8:30 o'clock.

The local pros upset the Indians in Springfield, Mass., last Saturday night, 5-3, but since have lost consecutively to the Buffalo Bisons and Philadelphia Rockets on the road.

Caps Defeat Providence, 99-95, in 3 Overtimes

Providence, R. I., Nov. 4.—The Washington Capitals scored their second consecutive B. A. A. victory of the young season tonight as they edged out the Providence Steam Rollers, 99 to 95, in a thrilling game that went to the third overtime period before it was settled.

A crowd of 2808 kept up a continual uproar in the later stages of the game which was the first in the association's history ever to go into three overtimes.

At the end of regulation time, the teams were tied at 66-all. Each team scored six points in the first overtime to deadlock again with 72 each. Scoring was plentiful in the second overtime which ended at 86-all.

The Rollers forged ahead in the third overtime by three points before the Caps started to cut it down again. Leo Katkaveck sparked the winning drive of the visitors while Bob Feerick, who was the leading scorer for the winners, contributed valuable points. After tying it up at 90-all, the Caps surged ahead steadily.

Feerick totaled 22 points while John Norlander and Fred Scolari made 15 points each. Kenny Sailors and Fred Pugh led the Providence scorers with 17 each.

Chick Harbert, Haefner Tie In North-South

Pinehurt, N. C., Nov. 4 (U.P.).—Long-hitting Chick Harbert and Clayton Heafner took some punishment from par today but stayed ahead of the field with 141 strokes each after the second round of the forty-sixth annual North and South Open golf championship.

Harbert, the Detroit slammer, took a 37, 36—73 today over the tough 6,952-yard Pinehurst Country Club course to go one over par. But his 68 which put him in a first-round tie for the lead was enough to keep him ahead.

Heafner, the Charlotte, N. C., pro who was one stroke behind the first-round leaders, moved up today with 34, 38—72.

Best round of the day was by Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., as only six out of nearly 10 players whipped par. Palmer shot 69.

Lew Worsham, Washington, D. C., winner of the 1947 National Open, turned in a 70 today for a 145 card.

Slamming Sammy Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., got a 35 on the front nine but ran into trouble to take 73 for the round. That gave him 143 and a tie for fourth place with Julius Boros and Joe Taylor.

Catholic Shakes Up Line-up for Tonight's Game

Coach Tom Chisari foresees only more trouble for his Catholic University grid squad when it invades Newport News, Va., Friday night for a game with the Naval Apprentice School eleven.

He intends to give reserves who have shown promise a real chance to prove themselves and will send a revised lineup on the field.

Among those certain to see more action than in the first four games are Johnny Murphy, crack defensive end; Randy Marshall, 190-pound freshman tackle; John Golla, husky Texan fullback, and Gene Aroni, 140-pound scatback.

Newport News is coached by Frank Dobson, former Maryland and University of Richmond mentor, and is reported to be a big, sturdy eleven. It will be a two-touchdown favorite over the Cardinals.

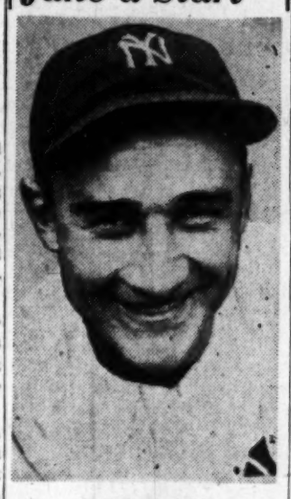
Old Takoma Tigers Gave Jake a Start



JAKE POWELL
Ends his life

By Garrett Waters

A HAPPY-GO-LUCKY chap, likeable, a guy who had an infectious grin, one who could be very serious at times, and a guy who could play baseball with the best of them when he wanted to.

That was Alvin (Jake) Powell, whose shocking death occurred yesterday as he took his own life at police headquarters.

In the sports field, I guess I knew Jake about as well as any number of his friends and associates. You see, I practically grew up with him.

Jake played on a team I managed in those kid days. We were in our early teens, but Jake's presence on the team helped make it the power it was on the sandlots then.

Maybe some will still remember the team and when Jake played. We called ourselves the Takoma Tigers. I might add we won three championships in the old Washington Post League, which sponsored practically every sandlot circuit in the Greater Washington area in those very eventful days for us kids.

I'll never forget how Jake got

Post Contest 'Runner-up' Is Winner After All

Horace Hines, a Government attorney, received a pleasant surprise yesterday. Last week's "runner-up" in The Washington Post football contest learned that he's a winner, after all.

Hines was among 23 who picked all 21 games. His score of 14-13 for California over Southern California was considered seven points off, too, but J. William Richards, GI student at Maryland, got the judges' original nod with a 20-7 prediction of the 13-7 game.

Yesterday the judges reconsidered—they didn't want to be accused of splitting a hair too finely. Their solution was to name Hines a cowinner.

Hines, who lives with his wife, Martha, at 1030 S. Barton st., Arlington, therefore, will receive the all-expense trip for two to the Army-Navy game at Philadelphia November 27. In addition, the North Carolina alumnus gets four tickets for the Maryland-North Carolina game.

Conn Out Of Stadium Clash With Injured Leg

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Georgetown, in its next-to-last home appearance, makes another attempt to get over the .500 mark tonight at Griffith Stadium against New York University.

The Hoyas were favored to do that last week but a fighting Den-ver team had other ideas and held them to a surprising 10-10 tie. It made the Hilltoppers' record 2-2-1.

Once again, Jack Hagerty's boys figure to win easily over a team they stopped last year, 25-0. However, once again, they could be surprised.

Georgetown is severely handicapped by injuries, principal one removing Soph Billy Conn, outstanding offensive back. Conn is far in front of his mates with 294 yards gained rushing and six pass completions in eight attempts accounting for another 112.

Barba Replaces Conn

Conn's knee injury gives another Jersey soph a starting opportunity. Dick Barba, who has been overshadowed by Conn since Carteret Prep days when he ran second in All-State selections, moves into the tailback slot.

Playing out of position at fullback, Barba nonetheless has done well. He's averaged nearly four yards a try in 27 ball-carrying attempts and may really blossom against the Violet tonight when he gets an opportunity to run wide. Barba hasn't passed much but boasts a .667 mark with two of three completions.

Behind Barba is another second-year man, Tom Hardiman. The lanky New Englander has been showing improvement all season and his six for 11 passing mark includes two touchdown tosses against Fordham.

Rose At Quarter

Still another soph (wait until next year for those Hoyas!) is going to start at quarterback—Billy Rose. Rose has taken two passes for 50 yards and one touchdown.

Johnny Hughes, high stepping halfback, rounds out the backfield and George Benigni and Bill Dzugan will start at end. Dzugan replaces the injured Al Sarashevitz, a fine defensive wingman.

Undermanned N.Y.U. should be taken by Georgetown but that's what Lehigh thought last week when it had a 20-0 lead in the third period. Scoring three times in 11 minutes, N.Y.U. came back to win 21-20.

Although beaten three times in five starts, Coach Edward F. (Hook) Mylin, one of the country's best, has a smart, tricky club. And in Back Billy Payne, N.Y.U. boasts a breakaway runner who is ever dangerous.

CBS Covers 29 Games Tomorrow In Three-Hour Broadcast Experiment

In a revolutionary radio step, the Columbia Broadcasting System will experiment tomorrow with a three-hour broadcast giving on-the-spot coverage of 29 major college football games instead of play-by-play on one.

The broadcast will be heard locally on WTOP (1500 on your dial) from 2:30 to 5:30 p. m.

Red Barber, CBS sports director, conceived the idea of covering the highlights of the top games around the Nation. And Barber, operating from New York, will direct the show.

These games will be covered with direct pick-ups, announcers on the scene will give capsule reports each quarter:

Navy vs. Michigan at Ann Arbor.
Missouri vs. Oklahoma at Norman.
Notre Dame vs. Indiana at Bloomington.
Northwestern vs. Wisconsin at Madison.
Harvard vs. Princeton at Princeton.
Penn State vs. Penn at Philadelphia.

In addition, telephone reports (with Barber's conversation heard by listeners) will be carried on these games:

William & Mary vs. North Carolina at Chapel Hill.
Tennessee vs. Georgia Tech at Atlanta.
Pittsburgh vs. Ohio State at Columbus.

The unique football roundup also includes reports on three Southwest Conference games from Dallas; five Pacific Coast contests from Los Angeles and Rocky Mountain area games from Salt Lake City.

Depending on special wire reports, Barber plans to touch on the progress of 12 other important games. Scores of all the games will be flashed throughout and peppy college music will be supplied by Howard Smith and his orchestra.

Here's the complete radio and television sports lineup for tomorrow:

Aging Mare Wins Feature By 2 Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico Race Track, Md., Nov. 4.—Slated to begin raising a family after the close of racing here, Mrs. H. K. Haggerty's Rampart, a grand old mare, turned on the heat in the stretch today and won the twelfth running of the $7500 added Lady Baltimore Handicap.

In winning the annual test for fillies and mares, the daughter of Trace Call drove into the finish line two lengths in front of a photo for second money.

The camera showed W. G. Jones' Winter Wheat second by a neck margin over the Woodvale Farm's Halsgal which Jockey Conn McCreary came down from New York to ride. Christiana Stable's Camargo was the only other starter and was a far-back fourth.

Rampart Returns $4

With win betting only conducted on the four-horse field, Rampart returned a $4 mutuel to her backers in a crowd of 11,600. The mare carried 124 pounds, tops for a winner of the Lady Baltimore, and was clocked in 1:46 2/5, fair time despite the track being in muddy condition as the result of rain last night.

Apprentice William Gilbert, who rode four winners yesterday, treated his followers to a double today when he won the second heat with Mrs. M. Kautz's Bo Mowlee and then came back to the winner's circle in the fifth race atop Watson Elliott's True Dream.

The young, daring reinsman came through along the inside rail while saving a lot of ground with both of his winning mounts. With Bo Mowlee he got up to win by a head from Mrs. Janon Fisher jr's Gyrfalcon and, if he had been forced to take an overland route, it is doubtful if Bo Mawlee would have finished in the money.

In the fifth race, which called forth $8,000 platers, Gilbert was next to last with True Dream in the early stages and his mount seemed hopelessly beaten at the three quarter pole. However, the early leaders tired in the sloppy going and True Dream had plenty of speed in reserve for the stretch drive.

This try, Gilbert again took the chance of getting through without losing ground and True Dream scored by a half length from R. A. Johnson's Petee Dee, while E. L. Rankins' Blue Sweep, who held the lead on the turn, took the third money. True Dream returned $8.80 for $2 by covering the mile and a furlong in 1:54 4-5.

The day's steeplechase brought a suspension for the remainder of the meeting to Jockey Harry Harris. He was aboard W. G. Jones' Oak Leaf which finished second to F. Ambrose Clark's Scuttleman. S. C. Clark, jr.'s My Good Man was third.

Crippled Terps Off for Game

Maryland, only two points away from a perfect season, leaves here today by plane for the trip to Columbia, S. C., where it hopes to make South Carolina its sixth victim on Saturday.

The Terps, beaten 13-12 by Duke for their only loss in six starts, leave National Airport at 1 p. m.

Guard Paul Broglio hurt a knee in practice yesterday and won't make the trip. Others ailing and not expected to see much action are End Francis Evans, Backs Earl Roth and Vern Seibert.

Rowland Coaches by Phone; GW's 'Waterboy' Chief Aide

More and more each week, Bo Rowland of George Washington is earning recognition as one of the most unconventional football coaches in the business.

The first thing his players learned about Bo when he came to G. W. last spring was that he didn't believe in pregame pep talks. "A waste of breath," he called them. "Besides, I'm no orator."

His latest fancy is, just before kickoff, to go as far from his players and as high in the stadium as he can.

His explanation is, "Why should I blind myself just because I'm coach? I can't see what's going on at ground level. Up high, I can watch the formations, spot my team's mistakes, and telephone them to the bench.

"No, the team doesn't miss me," says the Bo. "I have complete faith in Line Coach Bo Sherman's ability to handle the squad while I'm away."

Oddly enough, the key person in this operation is G. W.'s "chief waterboy," Jim Lorenz. He sits at the other end of the telephone line, and transmits Rowland's observations to Sherman.

"A valuable man," is the way Rowland describes Lorenz. "He hasn't made a mistake yet."

Lorenz's job is not simple. Describing the football maneuvers can get awfully technical. Lorenz is always able to catch on, though, because he played halfback at Carl Schurz High in Chicago a few years ago.

Now, as a change of pace in his first year at the G. W. law school, Jim supervises the waterboy staff of five. And he'll be on the job when the Colonials visit the Citadel Saturday at Charleston, S. C.

Rowland is probably the only active college coach who doesn't sit with his team during the game. But he confesses that he didn't originate the idea.

"I learned it back in Oklahoma 20 years ago when I was an assistant coach. Lou Hardage was head coach. He would sit up in the press box and telephone his instructions down to me."

Old Takoma Tigers Gave Jake a Start

me to sign him with the Tigers. He had pleaded for weeks with me to give him a uniform, but I didn't want to do it because at the time we had a full roster.

FINALLY, he cornered me one day and said, "Here, boss, is 50 cents. Now will you let me play?"

Well, I took it and Jake was then and there installed as our centerfielder. But I might explain, it wasn't a "bribe." I took the 50 cents because the week before Jake had punctured a tire on my old Model T Ford which I used in those days to cart the team around to our games. I figured it was payment for repairs.

Jake went on to become one of the best ball players in the Greater Washington area in the ensuing years. In fact, he performed so well that Clark Griffith, president and owner of the Washington baseball club, became interested.

It was quite an event when Mr. Griffith came out to one of our games to get a look at Jake. We didn't tell Jake that "Griff" was in the stands to just see him play. Instead, we said that he came out because he was interested in a pitcher we had on the mound that day.

I remember Jake saying then, "Pitcher? Well, I'll make him look at me today!"

Whereupon Jake proceeded to catch afire. He belted four hits in four trips to the plate, one a triple, threw a man out from centerfield and stole home for a run! In addition, he made a couple of catches in the outfield that were sensational even for sandlot performers.

THAT night, Mr. Griffith signed Jake to a big league contract.

Many talented youngsters played with Jake on the Takoma Tigers. They included Tony Rosser, who later starred with the old FBI team here, Eddie Fitzgerald, Jimmy Wilson, Benny Meush, Abe Povich, Gil Simpson, Jim Munro, now a big-wig in the American Legion, and Horace Duffy, former Central High School star, now an FBI agent—to mention a few.

Eat? Why, Jake could outshine three people his size in this respect. I know because Jake used to take me to his father's store to "store up" before our sandlot games.

But he could play baseball. There's no argument against that.

Two Other Interhigh Games Today

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Twice-beaten McKinley Tech, a tattered remnant of last year's championship eleven, has a chance to get back into Interhigh playoff contention today.

All it has to do is knock off favored Anacostia, which holds down second place, and has been beaten only by Central. The Tech-Anacostia game, one of three league contests today, will be played at Anacostia, with the kickoff at 3:15 p. m.

Cooldige invades Wilson, and Roosevelt journeys to Eastern for the two other league games at 3:15. League-leading and unbeaten Central gets a rest after playing on seven straight weekends.

Tech's chances are not as bad as they might seem at first glance. Its two losses were to Central, which has beaten everybody else, and Wilson by a 7-6 score.

The defending champs hold league wins over Roosevelt, Western and Eastern and handed Montgomery-Blair its only loss of the season in non-league competition. By winnng today, the Trainers would go into a tie for second place with Anacostia.

Two other important games are on today's 15-game card.

Unbeaten and untied Georgetown Prep continues its bid for the Catholic High title when it plays last year's champion, St. John's, at Central Stadium at 3. Despite its loss of Guard Jack Jarboe because of injuries, Prep, with Backs Billy Bidwill, Pete Corcoran and Ed Claxton, is favored.

Washington-Lee of Arlington, unscored on in its last four games, goes after its fifth straight victory at 8:30 when it is host to George Washington of Danville. Bruce Hillenbrand, Jack Gilfallen and Biff Johnson are the backs who will be trying to boost W-L's season's record to 6-2.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1948

APPLE pancakes with sour cream make a tempting dessert, but they can also be served as a main luncheon dish. Use your favorite recipe for a thin pancake batter. Then make a great big pancake by pouring ¾ to 1 cup of batter onto a griddle or skillet. Bake slowly until golden brown on underneath side, then turn and bake on other side. Roll up and serve on a platter, sprinkled generously with confectioner's sugar and garnished with fried apple slices. Serve with a dish of sour cream, to be spooned over the hot pancake and apples

Recipes to Toast King Apple In Celebration of His Week

By Lucia Brown

DID YOU know that the apple is first cousin to the rose?

It's not hard to believe in the spring, when apple blossoms in the orchard are giving the nod to their kinfolks, the wild roses, along the fence rows.

It's not hard to believe in the fall either. Then the apple really comes into its own as the world's favorite fruit, just as the rose is the world's best-loved flower. Popular appeal is a quality that these two cousins share equally.

Turning the spotlight on the apple right now is National Apple Week, which comes around once a year when the apple supply is at its peak. The week we're in right now—besides being distinguished by the election and other world-shaking events—is National Apple Week, a time for serving delicious apple dishes and munching crisp, fall fruit.

To add to your apple-eating prospects, we offer today a round-up of recipes—some for old-fashioned favorites, some for new-fangled ways of serving the fruit that tempted Adam.

APPLESTRUDEL

Crust

1 cup flour
1½ tablespoons shortening
6 to 8 tablespoons lukewarm water

Cut shortening into flour, add enough water to make dough, and roll crust out on a clean dish towel until it is so thin that "you can read a newspaper through it."

Filling

8 apples, pared and sliced thin
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped almonds
½ cup raisins
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon bread crumbs

Mix all ingredients and lay filling on crust. Roll up by picking up the towel and pulling it toward you, rolling the crust over the filling as you go. Bake the roll in a medium oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, until juice comes out, or about 1 hour.

APPLE PRUNE PIE

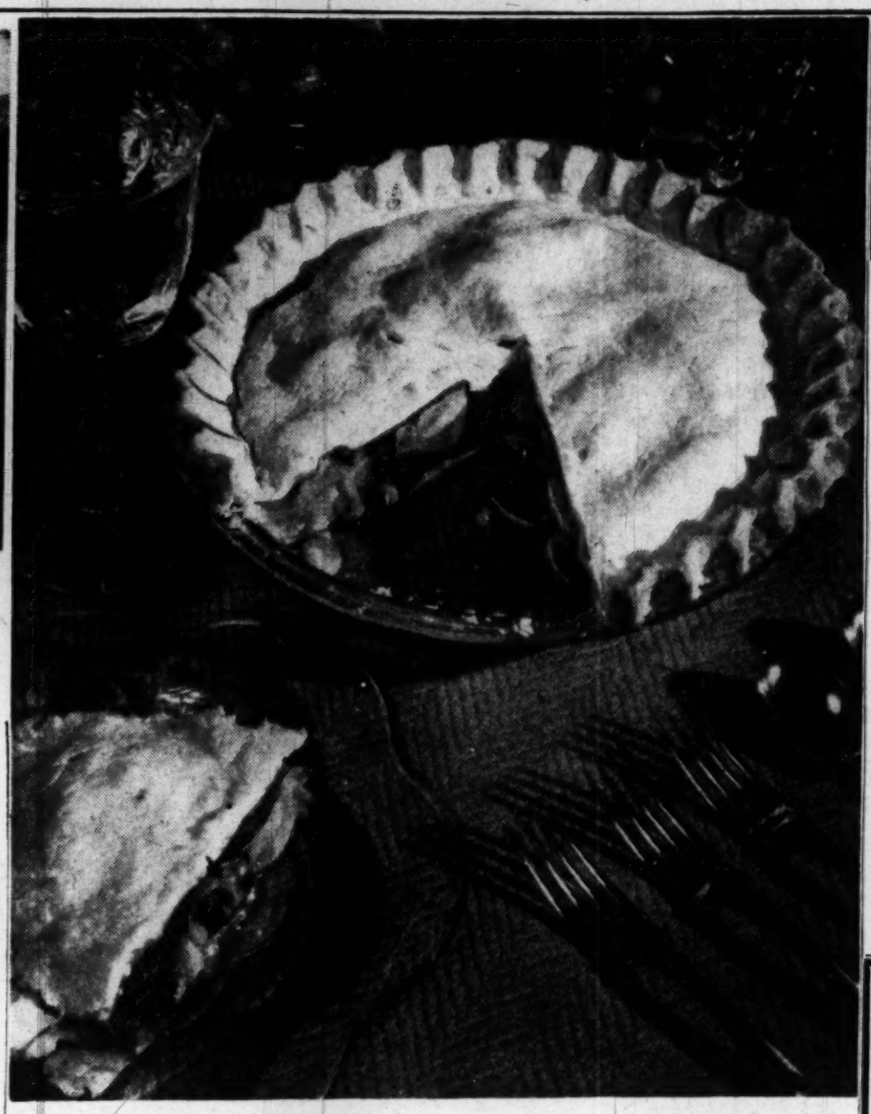
3 cups pared, sliced apples
1 cup cooked prunes, quartered
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
1 package pie crust mix
3 to 4 tablespoons cold water

Combine crust mix and water and mix lightly with fork. Roll out one half of dough on floured board, and fit into 9-inch pan. Combine apples, prunes, sugar, cinnamon, lemon juice and flour. Turn into pastry-lined pan. Dot with butter. Roll out remaining dough for top crust; cut gashes to allow escape of steam. Moisten edges of lower crust. Place top crust over filling; trim edges, seal and flute. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) 10 minutes, then in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 40 to 50 minutes.

APPLE MACAROON PUDDING

1 egg, lightly beaten
¾ cup sugar
5 tablespoons flour
1¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nuts
1 cup chopped apple
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Gradually add sugar to egg while beating. Add dry mixture to egg mixture, add vanilla, chopped nuts and chopped apple. Pour mixture into large, well-greased pie pan (at least 10-inch) and bake 45 minutes at 325 degrees Fahrenheit. Serve slightly warm with whipped cream.



NEW way to eat that apple a day is in apple-prune pie, a pleasing combination of healthful fruits. Put the apples in raw and the prunes in cooked and flavor 'em up with cinnamon and lemon juice

Mary Haworth's Mail

Cherished Wife, Mother of Five Children, Verbally Kicks Herself for Caring Madly About Gay Romantic Bachelor Recently Met

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When you have finished my letter you will say that I am the most unworthy, ungrateful woman who ever lived and undoubtedly you will be right; but I have my problem and heartache, believe me.

John and I have been married 16 years. I am 37 and he is 43, a quiet, dull sort of man, as I can see now. We have five children, all in school, a home of our own and a decent car; and John has always been the soul of kindness to me and the children. Practically his only fault is an occasional mild binge in a tavern with some of his cronies.

Until a few months ago I was satisfied with our life, or at least I thought I was; and then at a mutual friend's house I met Mike, a bachelor, 38, who is handsome, gay, romantic, all things my husband has never been. He has been in my thoughts ever since.

They Are Having Secret Meetings

WE HAVE HAD several dates and although nothing untoward has happened so far, I feel that it will, sooner or later, unless I can forget the whole mad thing. Mike has nothing to offer me, in the way of home and marriage, but even so I think only of him and the wonderful times we could have together.

Although I am past the bloom of life, Mike loves me and I feel for him as I hadn't thought it possible to care for a man. I can't

Ask Anne

What is the best method of removing a white water ring caused by a flower vase on a bleached mahogany coffee table? E. J. T.

Sometimes, such spots can be removed by wiping with camphorated oil or turpentine. If this doesn't completely remove it, then try this: Rub with a paste made by mixing finely powdered rottenstone or other scratchless abrasive and light oil. Rub with the grain and be careful not to get the paste in the area surrounding the stain. When the spot is removed, polish the entire surface with furniture polish. As a precaution against future water spots, apply several thin well rubbed coats of wax to the table top.

What gadget is recommended for rolling up the hair of baby girls, 2 years of age? I do not want to split her hair ends. M. M. C.

I am advised by a school which trains beauty operators that wrapping the hair up on rags or using the metal curlers which fasten by metal bands (available at dime stores) would be best. It seems that some splitting of hair ends can be expected with any method used to curl it since the hair must be dampened to curl. This causes the hair to become dry and brittle and then split. Because of this, if your daughter tends to have dry hair, it would be wise not to wet it and put it on curlers too often.

Do you know of any place where it would be possible to buy jelly, jam or marmalade in cans? For over a year I have been sending packages to a widow with four little children in Vienna, but no glass jars or bottles can be put in overseas packages. Now that Christmas is coming, I would like very much to send the children some, as it would be nice to put on their bread for school. They do not have meat, cheese, butter or anything like that for sandwiches, as the little I can send them in that line is kept for the main meal of the day. M. H. F.

A health food store which can be reached by calling Columbia 2980 sells jams, jellies, honey, etc., in cans which have been especially packed for overseas shipping. As a matter of fact, these same stores carry almost every food packed in cans. The list includes butter, dried milk, dried eggs, bacon, etc.

Post-Election Day Wits Fill Wires With Quips And Parties With Puns

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

POSTELECTION DAY wits and witticisms: The one-word telegram dispatched by former OPA head Paul Porter to special counsel to the President Clark M. Clifford (who'd been offered a lucrative post in a private law firm). It said succintly, "UNPACK."

The election eve gathering of Democratic notables, some hundred strong, all prepared to drown their sorrows the pleasanter way, left stunned. Finally a grudging tribute to Truman—a dig at Dewey, whom many present had been chasing discreetly. "Well, leave it to the people to recognize a phony" . . . The gent with the agreeable Government job who has been wooing the GOPs with fiery ardor since last June's convention, at the same party remarking gloomily, "There's a hearse drawing up to the door."—The two old-time State Department boys who had dusted off their autographed photographs of Herbert Hoover, readying them for star positions on their office desks.

Douglas Opposition, Longworth Wit

THE opponents of California's newly reelected Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, who, on election morn, plastered her district with a synthetic photograph of herself, Wallace, Stalin, with a bleeding heart underneath.

The grand finale of the Dewey descriptive trilogy supplied over the telephone from Ohio by stanch Republican Alice Roosevelt Longworth. First bon mot dreamed up by Helen, widow of New York Representative Kenneth Simpson, went, "You have to get to know Dewey to dislike him." Second riposte by Maestro Longworth was, "Why, he's the little man on a wedding cake."

Ultimate coffin lid nail, driven in hard, was her merry, "Well, you can't make a souffle rise twice!"

Specials for Disaster Fans

AMONG the happier participants in the debacle must be the distinguished political columnist who, at the Republican convention, looked suitably serious but trailed through the Democratic clambake wreathed in smiles. "I love disaster," he explained cheerily. Now think of all the lovely disaster offered up on a platter; some fun for even the bluntest type writers!

Some fun, too, for amateur crystal ball reader Jean, wife of real estate man, James L. Dixon, who, five months ago, warned Republican bigwigs of a Truman-Democratic landslide . . . And just think of all the horoscope girls who predicted Dewey in the ascendant, Truman in for bad luck. They may be right, at that. The upset's personally comforting, since the stars supposedly predicted a nice financial increment, which hasn't as yet materialized . . . Neatest twist was the wire to Democratic Chairman India Edwards from Mrs. Frederick Witt, "Never has anyone owed so little to so many!"

Marimba Band Will Play for UN Club Dance

A treat is in store for members of the United Nations Club and their guests Saturday evening at 9 when they dance at the club to the strains of the outstanding Guatemalan marimba band which is making a good neighbor tour in the United States.

The Guatemalan Ambassador, Ismael Gonzalez-Arevalo, is sponsoring the dance and will be present with members of his staff and their wives.

To some of the musicians the present good-will tour is a repeat performance as they were also members of the marimba orchestra that made such a tremendous success here in 1933 with their concerts at the Pan American Union and Constitution Hall.

The present band, which adds color to their already colorful music by performing in uniform, will give a concert at the Pan American Union next Monday evening at 9 and will also play at Walter Reed Hospital, Bolling Field Air Base, and Georgetown University during their Washington stay.

Be Informed, Articulate, Dr. Bailey Tells League

Too many women's organizations are content with receiving their information from speakers rather than digging in for source information. This is the belief of Dr. Stephen K. Bailey, member of the Hoover Commission on the Organization of the Executive Branch of Government, expressed Wednesday before the Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters' economic policy committee at an afternoon meeting held in the YWCA.

To be effective in helping to set legislation policies in Congress, he insisted that groups must be active and articulate as well as informed.

The conclave, which will continue through November 9, will be the organization's first since the establishment of the State of Israel.

Number for the Younger

Today teachers believe that it is not a particularly good idea to teach younger children their number combinations. Scientific studies and careful observation prove that multiplication and division especially will be learned more easily and effectively if they aren't started too soon.

In the kindergarten and the first grades, informal experiences with numbers are best. The same thing is true at home. Youngsters get a better idea of what is meant by numbers through first-hand experience rather than through recital of number tables.

Indeed, there can be a lot of fun centered around number experiences. Jimmy and Nancy will enjoy seeing who can be the first to bring mother three pieces of paper or two books and four oranges.

Before you realize it, the children will know how to use numbers and these numbers will mean a good deal more than had they been learned by drilling on the addition or multiplication tables.

understand this, for I have always loved my children dearly and would miss them so much if I left. I have thought of giving up Mike, but my heart feels dead at the prospect of never seeing him again.

Heretofore my husband and I have been completely true to each other; and I know he is aware of my quasi-affair and deeply hurt by it. I know I shouldn't hurt him; also that the whole situation is impossible, and that I very much need advice. H. L.

Woman Owes Charm to Good Marriage

DEAR H. L.: True, indeed, Mike is all things that John is not, but the difference is all in John's favor, insofar as their worth in relation to "the woman beloved" is concerned.

John's devotion is the sort that steadily nourishes a woman's life; makes it a well-tended garden, so to speak. Or, to put it another way, he affords his spouse full lease, while his protection lasts, on basic forms of security for her that contribute vitally to a woman's health, happiness, feminine turn of mind and grace of feeling in adult years—thus keeping her personality in perennial bloom through changing cycles of age and experience.

Because of these benefits casually derived from marriage to John, you are ripely attractive at 37, with zest for more of life, now that the children are in school. But like so many shallow minds, you are steeped in the notion—so dear to the movies—that "youth is everything" and that the way to relive it or prove you've still got it is to get madly romantic about sex again, in cahoots with some personable vis-a-vis whose drawing power has mostly to do with the fact that he (or she) is an unknown quantity.

Husband's a Man; Beau Is a Worm

SPEAKING in metaphor, we have likened your husband to a good gardener. And in comparison to him, Mike is a worm, working his way to the core of your past contentment; battering, as it were, on your wholesome nature without concern for damage done. As you say, he has nothing to offer of home or marriage, merely excitement as an end in itself.

The fact that Mike is a bachelor at 38, and beguilingly ready to sneak-date you, a cherished wife and mother of five, explodes the theory that he is a masculine elemental force. He is chiefly attracted by your maternal attributes. Being infantile, he is always seeking mother-adoration; and egoist that he is, he would derive great consolation from proving to his own satisfaction that you would neglect or maybe even abandon your own five dearly loved children to be with him.

For advice: Give Mike the bum's rush and switch the coquetry you've been wasting on him back to John, who probably hasn't received much stimulus-to-romance of that sort from you in at least 10 years, hence finds marriage so dull nowadays that he relies on mild binges to enliven boredom. M. H.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Some Second Thoughts On the Election

The "experts" didn't think it was possible, but somehow the Republicans managed to snatch defeat from the jaws of victory.

For the next few weeks, the analysts and commentators will blush every time they think of their predictions of a "Dewey landslide." The local restaurants ought to feature "crow-quettes" on their menus.

As our Walter Haight might put it: They should have played it safe, and bet their choice to "place."

Many voters still hadn't made up their minds when they walked into the polling places. They're the folks who slowed Mr. Gallup down to a trot.

Political writers seem to need a better education in all phases of arithmetic—addition, subtraction and retraction.

Ever since I was a little boy, I've read their learned statements that in bad times farmers vote for a change, and in good times they vote for another four years of the same Administration. I believed the experts, but judging by their astonishment, they didn't believe themselves.

Oh, well—Dewey was a cinch to lose anyhow. He had the indorsement of John L. Lewis.

Last summer, Elmo Roper was so sure Dewey would sweep to victory that he said there was no use of his taking any more polls. A great many people are now ready to agree with Mr. Roper's conclusion.

The analysts who predicted 15 million votes for Henry Wallace appear to have gotten their decimal point in the wrong place.

One commentator, in the early dawn following election day, mourned:

"My big mistake was when I let them make a 'political analyst' of me, and forgot that I was a reporter. Right now, I feel like resigning from the human race."

Mr. Truman turned out to be the Nation's champion "poll vaulter."

After conducting such a high-level campaign, Mr. Dewey certainly came down to earth with a thud.

Like many another successful man, the President seems to have drawn his strength from the enemies he made.

They laughed when Harry sat down to play; but doggone if the audience didn't demand an encore.

ARE WE LICKED?

When I first suggested that our town contains 10,000 people with hearts, who would not be content to accept the Commissioners' decision on Dorothy Kilmer, the response was gratifying.

I felt sure that in a city of a million, at least 1 per cent of us would be willing to contribute $1 each to get Dorothy out of her wheelchair.

During the first few days, District Liners started the fund rolling at a fast pace. But then the election came along, to divert our attention, and the fund suddenly started to look like the Republican tabulation in South Carolina.

So let's get back on the ball. Dorothy was crippled by a District policeman, through no fault of her own. If the Commissioners won't accept responsibility, we must.

The doctors say that $10,000 will pay for a course of "physical rehabilitation" that will get Dorothy out of that wheelchair. A civic group has agreed to act as administrator of the fund.

But they'll have nothing to administer unless you and I finish this job we've now undertaken.

It's not my purpose to write a daily item about Dorothy, because I don't think it's necessary. For the next few days, you'll find only a "box" reporting results, to serve as a reminder to those who "meant to mail it yesterday, but forgot."

Thank you.

NEW YORK.—Will Hays, who was chairman of the Republican National Committee and Postmaster General, attended a luncheon for Jim Farley. The toastmaster suggested that Mr. Hays must be unhappy thinking of all the jobs being given only to Democrats by Mr. Farley and his successors as Postmaster General and chairman of the Democratic National Committee . . . "This only reminds me," said Mr. Hayes, in his response, "of a cartoon I once saw, showing a poker game in which a kibitzer whispered to a player: 'Look out—the dealer has just dealt himself an ace off the bottom.' And the player replied: "So what—it's his deal, isn't it?'"

Studio softball games have become Hollywood's newest pastime. In the Metro-Twentieth Century ball game last week, Outfielder George Jessel frantically ran back for a ball, missed it and kept right on running out of the park and home . . . At one studio where shake-ups are in progress, no team was formed because the executive producer couldn't trust any other eight men with bats in their hands . . . At all inter-studio ball games the rule is that if a producer or executive is covering any base, no writer on the opposing team is permitted to wear spikes, because the temptation would be too great.

Bobby Clark, who plays the role of the President's husband in Mike Todd's new musical, "As The Girls Go," refused to appear with his painted eyeglasses, which he used for over 30 years. Last weekend, however, Clark relented and restored the painted eyeglasses . . . His argument had been that the glasses never were really important. "Many years ago, when I was in the Follies with Fannie Brice," he cited, "in the middle of the show's run I asked Fannie whether she noticed anything different about me and she said 'No.' For three days I wore no glasses on stage, and Fannie never noticed."

At the beginning of the Presidential campaign a White House visitor was told by Truman: "This is a nice place to live. The view is wonderful and the service is of the finest. But, honestly I'd be more comfortable in Independence, Missouri. I've chosen to run for two reasons: First, because I'd like to do all that can be done to bring peace to this world and, secondly," he added, pointing to the chair behind the Chief Executive's desk, "just to keep Tom Dewey out of there."

The Merry-Go-Round

How Thomas Helped Aide On Committee

By Drew Pearson

Public indignation over Congressman J. Parnell Thomas' practice of getting salary "kickbacks" from low-paid clerks and stenographers has diverted attention from another little parnellian practice—namely, keeping men away from army combat and then collecting from their families.

Pearson

During the war, when Thomas also was a member of the important Military Affairs Committee, he got two soldiers—George Tiplitz of 162 Fifth ave., New York City, and Edward Allen Kimmel of Long Beach, N. Y.—transferred away from combat. Later they and their families contributed $850 to Thomas's re-election campaign, though they did not live in the Congressman's New Jersey district.

However, humble apologies are offered to Congressman Thomas for underrating his ability in this direction. The two men mentioned above were not his only achievement in war-service-dodging.

On November 16, 1944, Thomas wrote a letter to John Flagg, of the Watson Flagg Engineering Co., 24 Morton street, Paterson, N. J., which read in part:

"Dear John:

"As you probably know, the Dies Committee is winding up its affairs this year. We have had with us for the past six and one-half years a man by the name of Robert Stripling, whose title has been chief clerk and chief investigator. Stripling . . . now finds himself in a position where he either has to get a position with a company doing defense work or be drafted.

"He is 32 years of age, he has a wife and one child, and is making his residence in Washington. But would be willing to move anywhere in the East. . . . If you think that he would fit into your setup, I am quite sure that he would be pleased to talk the matter over with you. Let me know if there is any interest."

The fact that Stripling, chief investigator for a committee supposed to set an example to the world of good Americanism, was four times deferred. At that date, just before the Battle of the Bulge, men considerably older and with more children were being inducted.

So, when Stripling's draft board refused to defer him any longer, Congressman Thomas tried to get him a "war" job.

Exit From Army

The dodge, however, did not work. Stripling was finally taken into the Army. But not for long. That great example of Americanism, J. Parnell Thomas, once again came to his rescue.

Stripling was with a military Government unit at San Antonio, supposed to leave for Japan to help General MacArthur police the country just after V-J day. The unit had been especially trained for this duty.

But although Stripling had been in the Army only nine months, whereas some men he was supposed to relieve in Japan had been in four years, Congressman Thomas took up the matter of his discharge with Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, chief lobbyist for the Army on Capitol Hill.

And on October 15, 1945, General Persons replied that he was keeping "Private Stripling in this country" in order to have his discharge arranged. The general wrote Thomas as follows:

"In reply to your recent inquiry with respect to the manner in which Pvt. Robert E. Stripling should proceed to apply for discharge based on his importance to national health, safety or interest, the following information is submitted."

Then, after advising Thomas how Stripling should apply to his commander with supporting statements from the Congressman emphasizing the "national importance of the work," General Persons concluded:

"In accordance with our conversation, the War Department has arranged to hold Private Stripling in this country for a sufficient time to permit his discharge application to be filed and acted upon."

Accordingly, Private Stripling's unit sailed for Japan. He was discharged and came back to Washington.
